NEWS FROM THE PRESIDENTIAL PARTY.

Cardinal Manning's Views on the Irish Situation—Several Big Fires in the East and the South—General News.

Cardinal Manning on the Irish Situation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The Herald prints this morning an interesting interview with Cardinal Manning. His general view of Ireland is hopeful. He professes affection for the country, and believes that the relations of landlords and tenants have improved, and that agrarian agitation has been laid at rest. He looks for reforms which shall benefit laborers, as farmers have been benefited, and for a time when the Irish artisan shall live in his own cottage, till his own garden, and find at home the advantages for which he now looks wistfully to foreign lands. The cardinal traces the social upheaval to the influence of continental secret societies. He thinks that Ireland could not thrive if separated from England. He denounces assisted emigration as a means of clearance, while approving the return of the paupers who were sent to our shores.

The Break in Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The break in prices to-day was due entirely to the attack by the bears, as there is nothing new in the financial situation which would cause shares to decline. Many operators bought on the break Saturday for a turn, but they were shaken out this morning, and this accelerated the decline. There are the usual rumors afloat of financial embarrassments of individuals and firms, but no names are mentioned.

The failure of Cecil Ward has just been announced at the stock exchange. Liabilities are understood to be under $50,000.

H. B. Stanton, a stock broker, said this trouble can be traced directly to Jay Gould, who is endeavoring to obtain control of Villard's stocks, consisting of Oregon Transcontinental and Northern Pacific.

News from the Presidential Party.

CAMP CROSBY, ON DINWOODIE CREEK, via FORT WASHAKIE, Wyo., August 12.

Broke camp at 6:00 A. M. The route lay along an old Indian trail, marked faintly by time. A portion of the party climbed the foothills and mountains to the left, in search of game and scenery, but the game has nearly vanished, being well nigh exterminated. Only one deer and one antelope were seen. As coming events are sometimes said to cast their shadows before, so this may perhaps indicate the sad fate of the Indian race. A march of fourteen miles brought us to Dinwoodie creek, a noisy stream rushing down in a tumultuous way to join its waters with Wind river. In honor of the governor of Montana, this camp has been named Camp Crosby.

Two Suicides.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—A young man named John Harrison, while crossing the Van Buren street bridge over the Chicago river this afternoon, broke in upon ordinary conversation by remarking, "I might as well end it here," and plunged into the river. Two hours preceding this, an unknown man leaped from the Division street bridge into the river. The bodies of both men were recovered.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 13.—Archbishop Elder yesterday issued an edict to the clergy of his district to meet here the 14th day of August, to devise some means to pay the creditors of the late Archbishop Purcell as a matter of charity, but not as a discharge of a legal obligation.

SENATORIAL INVESTIGATION.

Master Workman Campbell Lays the Operators' Grievances Before a Committee.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A sub-committee of the United States senate committee on labor and education began its session to-day in the post office building. The members present were Senator Blair of New Hampshire, Chairman George of Mississippi, Pugh of Alabama, Call of Florida, and Aldrich of Rhode Island. The special subject investigated was the strikes and labor movement in general, the object being to obtain information that may be used in future legislation to prevent them. The first witness to-day was master workman Jno. Campbell, of Pittsburg. He testified that he had been a telegraph operator over twenty years, and had been connected with the Knights of Labor and the Brotherhood of Telegraphers two years. Between 18,000 and 19,000 telegraphers in the United States and Canada are members of the brotherhood and the whole membership is about 20,000. The cause of the strike was the refusal of the company to grant a demand on the part of the operators for increased compensation for Sunday service. The salaries of telegraph operators are systematically cut down and the object of the strike was to bring the rate of compensation to the former standard. An operator now per month, the average rate throughout being about $55 for commercial operators and $40 per month for railroad operators. The average rate for railroad operators in Pennsylvania by actual census, is $28.85 per month. The rate wages for first-class commercial operators now ranged from $60 to $65 per month. Salaries in New York city are higher than those in smaller cities, with the exception of New Orleans, Memphis and Nashville, where the scale of wages was about equal to that in this city. The lowest rate for commercial operators was from $30 to $40 per month for operators at small way stations. Before the reduction in wages rates were 25 to 40 per cent. higher than at present. In 1870 first class operators could make from $90 to $120 per month. These rates extended back to the time of the beginning of the war, when the scale was about the same as at present for railroad operators, and that for commercial a little higher. The Western Union employs in the country, and about two-thirds are railroad operators. The American Rapid Company only employs one-fifth as many operators as the Western Union. The protest of the brotherhood was against these companies and all employers of telegraph operators. The rate of wages was not considered sufficient to live upon, and was much below that of common laborers in many instances. The companies were able to pay better rates to their men, without increasing the rates for service to the public. This was evident from the large dividends paid by the Western Union, besides their facilities for transmitting messages have been increased by the invention of the double and quadruple. There has been no reduction in the tariff in consequence of these improvements, but, on the other hand, the wages of operators have been reduced. The number of operators had doubled since 1870, while the facilities of the company had more than doubled. The Western Union in that year handled 7,000,000 messages, and last year the number was 40,000,000. Campbell recited the history of the strike since it began.

PAID A FIXED SALARY

ONE QUARTER OF ALL THE OPERATORS

THE GREAT STRIKE.

Continuance of Systematic Wire Cutting—Operators Returning to Work.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Press Agent Somerville, of the Western Union Company, said this morning that since 6 o'clock last night 18 wires had been cut. The company are short about twenty five wires on the Albany circuit, comprising wires of the Mutual Union, American Union, and the Atlantic and Pacific companies. Six wires were also cut on the South route, between New York and Newark. Twenty of the Southway lines were cut this morning. Eastern lines are all O. K. Twenty of the Gold and Stock wires were cut in this city between midnight and daylight. Linemen were sent to be out repairing. The Western Union has employed detectives to watch the wires, but so far no important arrests of wire-cutters are made. Somerville said that the states in which wires are cut would have to pay for the damage done and the expenses of repairing them. Striking linemen persistently deny that they cut any wires.

Officers of the Western Union say they are well up with business and need but a few more telegraphers to place them in as good circumstances as before the strike. Of 153 operators of the company in this city, seventy-one are now open. It is said one of the striking operators in this city and another at Long Branch had returned to work to-day.

A LINEMAN FIRED AT.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 13.—While a lineman of the Western Union Telegraph company was up a pole repairing wires, at 8 A. M., three rifle shots were fired at him, two of which whistled close by his head.

A NUMBER OF BIG FIRES.

The Town of Vineyard Haven, Mass., Nearly Destroyed—An Appeal for Aid.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Aug. 12.—The fire was checked this morning. The village is a sad sight, and is being visited by thousands from all parts of the island and from the mainland. The loss is estimated at $190,000; insurance, $64,268. All stores in the place but one are burned. The wife of James Davis, an aged citizen, died from excitement consequent upon the fire.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Aug. 12.—A public meeting was held at Cottage City, at which a relief committee of twenty one prominent residents and visitors were appointed, this afternoon. The committee have issued the following appeal:

An appalling calamity has befallen the village of Vineyard Haven. Contributions of food, clothing or money, addressed to Captain Jos. T. Smith, treasurer, Vineyard Haven, Mass., will be thankfully received by the relief committee.

WM. H. ARNOUX, Chairman.

We, the selectmen of the town of Tisbury, in which the village of Vineyard Haven is situated, endorse the above appeal.

FREEMAN ALLEN.
OWEN TILTON.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The town of Cottage City, Martha's Vineyard, is in flames. The prospects are the entire settlement will be burned.

LATER.—A large number of cottages and business blocks have been destroyed. The loss is estimated at $250,000. The fire originated in a church. The cause is unknown.

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—The fire is in Vineyard Haven, not Cottage City as before reported. A large number of cottages mostly belonging to summer residents, have been burned. The fire broke out at 9 o'clock. It originated in the harness manufactory of R. W. Crocker, and owing to a brisk northeast wind quickly swept through the village to the westward. There being no fire apparatus in the town, assistance was summoned from Cottage City by telephone. Nearly the entire population of that place hastened to the scene. The burned section begins at Jenkins' paint shop, on the east side of Main street, and extends southward to and including the Mansion house. The loss cannot be accurately estimated, though probably it will fall a little short of $200,000—almost a death blow to this ancient village. It leaves hundreds of people homeless, many of whom are thrown on the charity of their neighbors. There is a considerable insurance on the property destroyed, but at this hour of the night it is impossible to obtain particulars. There have been no accidents or loss of life, though the fire spread quickly and covered the territory thickly settled. The town is at present full of summer boarders from Washington and elsewhere. At 2:30 the fire is under control, and the destructive work is ended.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

COTTAGE CITY, Aug. 13.—Thousands of people visited the scene of the fire at Vineyard Haven Sunday. The people are not broken, and many are already preparing to build. Scores of homeless ones are unprovided for, and will be cared for by the relief commission. Sixteen thousand dollars were subscribed by citizens on the island yesterday for the relief of the sufferers.

GREAT HOTEL BURNED.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 13.—The Kimball house burned down last night. The fire originated in the rear of the building. Everything was favorable to the escape of guests. Within twenty minutes the hotel was emptied. Within an hour the hotel burned to the ground. The hotel was built by H. I. Kimball and owned by Robert Toombs, John Rice, Jose P. Thompson and others. It cost $600,000; furniture, $125,000; insurance, $80,000, distributed among many companies. The Gate City National bank, Harralson & Bros., tobacco; John B. Daniel, drugs, and others are among the losers. The total loss was $1,000,000; insurance not over $200,000. The fire is claimed by Mr. Culberson to be incendiary. In the vaults of the Gate City bank were half a million dollars, and it is yet a matter of doubt whether this will be recovered.

MORE OF THE ATLANTA FIRE.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 13.—The fire broke out at 4:30. Opinions as to the origin of the conflagration differ. Charlie Slider and Phil Green, two newspaper men on the Constitution, saw the fire breaking out, and realizing the danger guests were in rushed into the building and made their way along the corridors, waking up sleeping occupants. In some places they certainly saved lives, as there were people in the house who had not been brought out by the first alarm. They went to the top story of the house and did much good work in waking people. They express the opinion, that when the debris is removed it will be found that there are persons who perished in the flames. The flames had enveloped the building on the west side before the officers of the Gate City bank arrived. L. J. Hill, president, was absent from the city. Milldorf, Hill & Co. and Ed. McCandless were on hand as soon as notified of the fire, and with the assistance of citizens took valuable books and papers from the vaults to a place of safety. A safe containing one-half a million in valuables could not be removed. As soon as possible a steady stream of water was turned on the vault, and it is thought the papers and money are safe.

LOSSES AND INSURANCE.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 13.—The loss by the Kimball house fire is $600,000 on the building and $125,000 on furniture. On the whole amount there is only $80,000 insurance. The reason why the owners carried so little insurance was because of the high rate charged. The Kimball house was considered the worst risk in the city and a rate of 2½ per cent. was charged, while on ordinary central property only 1 per cent. was charged. The Republic block, just opposite, was insured at 1¼ per cent., the additional one-quarter being made because of the proximity of the block to the hotel. Mr. Scoville, proprietor of the hotel, spent $20,000 on improvements and furniture when he was preparing for the exposition. He carried a policy of $100,000 on this up to a year ago, when he declined to renew it. At the time of the fire he had only $12,000 insurance.

ANOTHER HOTEL BURNED.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—The hotel at Devon, on the line of the Pennsylvania railroad, about eight miles from this city, burned to the ground this morning. Particulars are not yet ascertained. Wires are burned, and particulars can only be received by trains. There was no loss of life.

BIG BLAZE IN ONTARIO.

MEDFORD, Ont., Aug. 13.—The Methodist church, Nobles & Gibson's hotel, and nine stores, burned to-day. Loss, $80,000.

SAD SUICIDE.

The Wife of Senator Allison of Iowa Drowns Herself.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, Aug. 13.—The wife of United States Senator W. B. Allison committed suicide by drowning herself in the Mississippi river some time during last night. She left home yesterday afternoon, shortly after 1 o'clock, informing her servant that she was going to one of the neighbors. Instead, however, of taking the direction indicated she went in an opposite direction toward the country, where she has been accustomed to take almost daily walks. It was ascertained that she wandered around in the outskirts of the city, and during the afternoon she was seen by several persons, walking rapidly and apparently very much excited. Not returning by 9 o'clock nor being at the place she was supposed to be, an alarm was given and search instituted and maintained throughout the night. This morning her body was discovered by the outgoing train at 7 o'clock, in the river almost a mile below the city. She had cut up her gossamer, placed some stones in it, and tied them securely about her neck, and then had walked deliberately into the river, about thirty-five feet from the bank, and laid down and drowned where the water was only two and a half feet deep. Mrs. Allison was of a highly nervous temperament, and during the past two or three years has suffered from and been treated for a mental disease. While at a water-cure establishment in western New York, in 1881, under medical treatment, she attempted suicide in much the same manner, but was rescued. She was a niece and adopted daughter of the late Senator Grimes of Iowa, and has been married for [illegible] years. She has no children. Senator Allison opened the campaign at Clarinda, Saturday, and yesterday was in Council Bluffs. A dispatch was sent to him last night as soon as her disappearance became known, but it is thought he was not reached until this morning. The shocking event has thrown a gloom over the entire community.

PIRATE WRECKERS.

An Organized Band Operating in the Black Sea.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Information has been received here from the Straits of Yenikale, one of the most dangerous passages in the Black sea, that an individual named Francesco, a former pilot of Italian origin, was at the head of a band of pirates of various nations—English, Italian, Greeks and Russians—who make their living by disasters on the coast. They were in collusion with pilots and charged large sums for assisting vessels which the pilots allowed to go ashore. In less than two years fifty vessels were stranded and had to rely on assistance from these private salvors. The English marine insurance companies, on learning the facts, sent an agent to Odessa to lay the matter before the authorities. A preliminary inquiry has fully confirmed the suspicions of the public, and it is said that some government officials are compromised in the matter. The English insurance companies paid indemnities amounting to many millions of roubles. A great many of the disasters occurred in warm weather, and other suspicious circumstances were noticed, such as fortunes rapidly made by some of the pilots.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

RETURNED FROM THE SOUTHWEST.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—General J. H. Devereaux and other officials of the Vanderbilt system arrived here to-day from the southwest. Members of the party acknowledge that their visit was made with a view of ascertaining the advisability of building a line from St. Louis to Kansas City and Omaha, but that nothing definite has been determined upon.

A new invention is a cast-iron cat, a machine full of springs, claws and a lot of boxes, and the whole looking like an infuriated cat. This thing is wound up and set on the back roof at night, and it at once begins a series of growls, which soon attract the living Thomas cat, and after the proper amount of joint debating, the live cat bounds upon the iron one; the jar sets off the springs, which grasp the cat and hold him until the saw and grinding machinery reduces him to a sausage.

COMPLETION OF THE BIG TUNNEL.

Status of the Work on the O. & C. Extension—The Road to be Opened to Grant's Pass in October.

Last Friday the contractors on the Cow creek tunnel on the Oregon & California extension, reached daylight over the center, and will have the tunnel ready for the track layers in about ten days. The perforation was 2800 feet, and is the longest tunnel on the line except the one at the Siskiyou mountains. To an OREGONIAN reporter who applied for news concerning the progress of the road beyond this tunnel Manager Koehler gave the following information: The grade and the high structures between the Grave creek tunnel, which was finished early in July, and the Cow creek tunnel, a distance of seventeen miles, are finished and track laying will proceed with only slight interruptions to Grave creek. There will probably be no serious delays in finishing the line between Glendale, the present terminus, and Grant's pass, ninety-eight miles south of Roseburg. Regular trains will not run beyond Glendale until the road is opened to Grant's pass, which will be done about the middle of October. From Grant's pass to Ashland, a distance of forty-five miles through Rogue river valley, the road is easy of construction, and it is expected that the line will be in operation to Ashland by the end of the year.

Thirty-two miles of road beyond Ashland will finish the Oregon and California Company's share of the line connecting Oregon with California, but these thirty-two miles are in the Siskiyou mountains and quite as difficult of construction as any like distance through the Cow creek hills. There will be six tunnels, aggregating 6,000 feet in length, the longest being a little over 3000 feet.

WAREHOUSE AND SIX CARS BURNED.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

FOREST GROVE, Aug. 13.

Saturday evening, at about 7 o'clock, the large warehouse at the depot, belonging to Hon. A. Hinman, was discovered to be on fire. The flames spread so fast that all efforts to save any portion of the building were useless. The building and machinery cost $2,200, and were insured in the Phoenix and Home for $2000. Six cars belonging to the O. & C. R. R. Co. were lying on the side-track by the warehouse and were all burned. It is thought that this loss will include only the wood work of the cars. The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Hinman informs your correspondent that he will not rebuild this season.

Permanence of Tenure.

Springfield Republican.

It is a singular fact that while the opponents of civil service reform claim that permanence of tenure of office for the mass of the subordinate civil service is undemocratic and aristocratic and British in idea, all the great democrats accepted this permanence of tenure as a matter of course, and were greatly enraged when it was departed from. Jefferson and Madison, for instance, the two living ex-presidents of the democratic party, were greatly alarmed by the passage of the four years term of office bill in 1820, and so was John Quincy Adams, the greatest living representative of the northern wing of the democracy, and the next president. So was Calhoun and his great whig contemporary, Webster.

DISTINGUISHED FOREIGNERS.

Whom Mr. Villard will Bring out to Oregon Next Month.

New York World, Aug. 8.

The German mail steamship Fulda arrived off Sandy Hook at 4:30 yesterday afternoon. She steamed up the bay and made fast to her pier in Hoboken shortly after 6 o'clock. As the gang plank was thrown aboard Mr. Henry Villard, president of the Northern Pacific railroad, pushed up the incline to the steamer's deck and gave Major General von Xylander, one of the passengers, a hearty greeting. Major General von Xylander is of the Bavarian army, and a member of the staff of Emperor William of Germany. He is a tall, good looking man with a dark complexion, and upon his breast, concealed beneath his outer coat, are a number of gold medals presented to him at different times in appreciation of the services he had rendered his country. The general will be one of the 300 guests of Mr. Villard who are to participate in the ceremonies attending the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad and its opening for general traffic. After the general escaped from the custom house officials he was driven to the residence of Mr. Villard.

In the party of which the general will be a member there will be a number of distinguished Europeans. A party of thirty, consisting of several titled gentlemen, several members of the German reichstag and representatives of the various corporations of that country, will leave Bremen for this country on the 16th on the Elbe. Another party, among whom will be two members of parliament, will leave England about the same time. Among the Americans who will accompany the party will be General Grant, Secretary Lincoln, Mr. William M. Evarts, together with several foreign ministers, members of congress, of the state legislature and several governors. Mr. Villard will take charge of the entire party, which will leave this city on the 3d instant for St. Paul. On the way the party will see Niagara falls, Buffalo and Chicago. Upon their arrival at Minneapolis they will enjoy a banquet, after which they will continue to the end of the route to Portland, Oregon. Thence a trip to Puget Sound, British Columbia and the Willamette valley. About September 20 the party will start on their homeward trip. They will visit San Francisco and Yellowstone park possibly in time to join the presidential party. If they have time the party will also visit New Mexico and the south and southwestern states and territories.

A DESERTED MANSION.

The Palatial Residence of Kate Chase Sprague Standing Idle.

From the Baltimore American.

An old and intimate friend of the Chase family recently called attention to the fact that while Governor Sprague's New England estates are being sold under the hammer, that of his wife, Kate Chase, stands idle and deserted on the hills overlooking the national capital. "Edgewood," as it is called, is tenantless while its owner roams in Europe. She left here a little over a month ago, with her children, for a five years' tour abroad. At least that is the length of time she promised to be absent, though many of her friends believe she will be seen here again before half the time is past. The grounds are kept in tolerable order by the faithful servant in whose charge they were left by her. But the great house, with its fine furnishings, stands practically as she left it, and the broad acres of the magnificent estate lie uncultivated. It is a characteristic southern mansion, set in the magnificent forest which shrouds the hills north of the city. From its broad verandas which grace the front of the building, the visitor looks through an opening in the woods down upon the city of Washington, with the white dome of the capitol gleaming in the sunshine, or the mellow moonlight, as the case may be, and making a beautiful picture. The house is a large three-story brick, well built—for it is one of the old time buildings—with perhaps twenty rooms, broad, airy halls, wide verandas, and surrounded by beautiful grounds and magnificent forest trees.

"How is it," was asked a friend of the fair proprietress, "that this fine estate is left idle?" "That," was the reply, "is what no one knows. Certainly, Mrs. Chase is not so well off financially as to be able to afford to throw away such a place. She is, however a very peculiar woman and if she can't get what she wants for it she is not likely to let it go at all. She has been offered $150 a month for the house and won't take it. She wants $300 a month and unless she gets that prefers to let it stand idle. Queer? Well, that's about on a par with most of her performances. Now, here's an estate worth $30,000—she has been offered that for it and yet she will not make any use of it. Why, she wouldn't allow it tilled when she lived here. She kept two or three men employed keeping it in order, but wouldn't allow the ground tilled. The place brought her in debt every year. The taxes are something enormous."

"But," suggested the correspondent, "it has been stated that congress relieved the estate from taxation." "That," continued the gentleman referred to, "is like many other things that have been said about this family. It is only partly true. Congress did relieve it from certain taxes, but those were back taxes altogether. The place, you know, belonged to her father. He bought it long before the war. After his death it was found that there were some $20,000 taxes due and unpaid on it. Well, Kate was pretty shrewd. She knew her power and how to make use of it to advantage. She proposed to the other heirs that she would take the estate just as it stood, providing for the taxes herself, giving up to them, I suppose, certain of the other property. They agreed to that. The property was transferred to her in her own name, and after a while a little bill made its appearance in congress remitting the taxes then due. That, however, does not affect it now. The estate is subject to taxes just the same as any other property in the district. The old servant now in charge tells many stories illustrating the peculiarities of his mistress. She wouldn't let him plant cabbage anywhere near the house, because she could 'smell 'em.' Last spring she engaged a man at a very high price and set him to plowing up the fields. She said she was going to make the land of some use to her. But, bless you, he hadn't got it plowed before she called him in one day and told him to stop all work on it; that she was going to Europe, to be absent five years. So the farming was stopped, and she and her family went off, leaving him in charge of the house. There it stands, just as she occupied it, all the furniture and everything, except that she sent the silver and some very choice pieces of bric-a-brac to the safe deposit vault." Since her departure a very strong influence has been brought to bear on her agent to induce him to take a few summer boarders, but thus far he has proved inflexible.

NEWS NOTES FROM THE DALLES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

THE DALLES, Aug. 13.

Miss Ella Harkins of Portland, Oregon, is visiting the family of T. W. Miller.

A party, consisting of Dr. Shackelford, Messrs. Tim Baldwin, O. N. Thornbury and Al. Bettingen, started for Trout lake, near Mount Adams, this morning. Object, hunting and fishing.

A company bearing the name of Max Blank & Co. has been formed for the manufacture of brick in large quantities. The amount of brick made by the present managers is insufficient for the demand. Blank & Co. already have several large orders on hand.

Dogs are being slaughtered. The wholesale business of poisoning dogs is reprehensible. Sprinkled in with dead curs and Indian "kamuxes" are some valuable canines. It will become exceedingly rough for the rascal engaged in this amusement should he be caught.

A horse race took place on the flat near the brewery Saturday. The livery stables of Adams & Brown and Wiley each furnished a horse. Wiley's horse now chews the pie. A multitude was gathered to witness the event, and a stack or two of money is said to have changed hands.

We have had no rain as yet but indications are favorable for a shower. The sawmills along the river are at quite an expense on account of the shallowness of the creeks, and a little rain would be acceptable all around. The smoke is still thick enough to be cut with a butter knife.

Thirty-nine thousand dollars' worth of property in various parts of the city changed hands within the past few days. The Dalles has a "boom." From the general appearance of things this is not a soap bubble boom, but a solid, substantial one, come to stay. Nothing is thought of now but brick buildings, and one often hears in passing a crowd, "When are you going to put up your brick block?" &c.

SULLIVAN COMING TO THE PACIFIC COAST.

Severe Storm Near Council Bluffs—Killed by Indians—A Crazy Man in Church—The Salvation Army.

A Scandal With Peculiar Features.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 9.—Bird Island, a small village in Renville county, this state, is agitated over a scandal with peculiar features. Mrs. Engstrom, wife of John Engstrom, a cripple, left her husband and went to live with a man named Stokes. Some days ago, one of the children being sick, Engstrom went to his father-in-law's, where his wife was, to get her to come home and care for the child. Stokes and Cornish (Mrs. Engstrom's father) drove Engstrom from the farm, nearly tearing all his clothes from him in the melee. On hearing this the citizens of Bird Island decided to tar and feather Stokes, but one of the party, named J. O. Desmond, got drunk, and let their intentions be known to Stokes, who, on the arrival of the party, fired into their ranks, the shot taking effect in the face and head of a druggist, named [illegible], producing a painful but not dangerous wound. The crowd, learning of Desmond's treachery, turned on him, and gave him the coat of tar and feathers intended for Stokes. No arrests were made.

Photographers in Council.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 9.—To-day's session of the photographers National convention was devoted to the discussion of the feasibility of fixing regular rates for pictures per dozen, but no action was taken. The committee on nominations reported the names of J. W. Kent of Rochester, N. Y., for president, W. A. Armstrong of Milwaukee for secretary, J. T. Harold of Boston for treasurer, J. Douglas of Chicago and James Landy of Cincinnati to constitute the executive committee. The remainder of the election occurs to-morrow. A discussion followed on blisters on albumen paper. The dry plate process formed the topic of the afternoon, and the use of the electric light, with experiments, followed in the evening.

Crazy Man in Church.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—At Dubuque, Ia., yesterday morning, while mass was being celebrated at the cathedral, W. W. Pyne, formerly landlord of the Key City house, came into the church, and making his way to the altar, took off his coat and began to preach to the assembled congregation, calling himself Jesus Christ returned to earth. After a desperate struggle he was secured and carried to jail. Mr. Pyne has lately shown strange symptoms of insanity, and has no doubt lost his reason. He has been known as an estimable man, and his misfortune excites deep regret.

The Salvation Army Again.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Several weeks ago the common council passed resolutions prohibiting the Salvation Army from parading the streets. To-night the entire army determined to defy the board of aldermen, and marched through the streets shouting Hallelujah and singing hymns adapted to popular airs. The police arrested the whole body and escorted them to the station house. When about to be placed in cells the alderman who opposed the resolution signed their bail bond, and the parties will appear before a justice to-morrow.

Sullivan, the Slugger.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—A Herald reporter asked Sullivan "What are your plans now?" "Oh! I shall remain here three months or so, and make things lively; then I shall probably make off to California with a manager and make exhibitions." Later he was waited on by delegates of the striking operators, and asked to be umpire for a baseball match between the telegraphers and printers this afternoon, the proceeds to go to the strikers' fund. Sullivan consented, expressing his admiration of the pluck of the operators in holding out as they did.

The Postal Telegraph Question.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The Public to-day makes a strong argument favoring a government telegraph, mainly on the grounds of public safety. It says: "Modern science has developed a power which in this country cannot safely be left to a few individuals. A double system of telegraph lines which can never be consolidated secretly, bought up, manufactured for stock jobbery ends, or crushed out in competition, has become a national, public and political necessity.

A Cave in Lookout Mountain.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 9.—Explorers recently discovered a cave at the base of Lookout Mountain, the opening being at low-water mark in the Tennessee river, three miles from the city. Explorations developed a wonderful cave of unknown depth. At the extreme point a very large lake was encountered, into which a fall 150 feet high poured its water with a noise of thunder. Other waterfalls and other interesting phenomena were discovered.

An Alarming Malady.

MUSCATINE, Ia., Aug. 9.—Hilton Junction, twelve miles from here, is much agitated over an alarming malady, supposed at first to be cholera infantum, but which, though mainly confined to children, has attacked grown persons. There were seven deaths yesterday, all the children of Mrs. Amati. Several grown persons are now seriously ill, including Dr. Sherwood, a resident physician. Including children, nearly 100 deaths have occurred from the malady.

Editor vs. Bunko Steerer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Hungry Joe, the famous bunko steerer, who beguiled Oscar Wilde, tried his hand on William Hartman, editor in chief of the London Morning Post, who arrived yesterday to accompany Hatch and the Yellowstone expedition. After trying a long while, Hartman, who knew the trick, outwitted the whole gang, and, after giving them a lecture, departed, leaving Joe and his pals lamenting.

A Fiery Son of the South.

GALVESTON, Tex., Aug. 8.—The News' McKinney special says: At the confederate reunion to-day General Cabell declared that England and America can never have more than an unnatural friendship. He hoped to live long enough to lead ex-confederates under the stars and stripes, in a contest against England.

A Severe Storm.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Aug. 8.—A terrible rain and hail storm swept through this section to-day. It was about two miles wide, beating corn and all growing vegetation into the ground. It is regarded as one of the most severe storms that ever visited western Iowa. Several lives are reported as having been lost.

NEVADA.

Sheepherder Killed by Indians.

EUREKA, Aug. 8.—A sheepherder, named Rutherford, in Silver Peak district, White Pine county, was shot and killed last week by Indians, while he and a man called Doc. Clay undertook to drive off a Pi-Ute patch of ground they were cultivating. Rutherford is thought to have been innocent [illegible] Clay. The Indians threaten that they will kill Clay. The neighbors say that the violence was unprovoked, and if Clay is killed it will serve him right.

Messrs. Fleming Bros.:

Sirs,—I take this opportunity of informing you of the benefits I have derived from Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills. I have for two years past been afflicted with a severe pain over the eyes, accompanied with a nervousness and sense of dizziness; a malady beyond the power and skill of our physicians to relieve and cure, caused, as far as I myself could judge, by a diseased state of the liver and stomach. Some of the doctors tried bleeding, and various other remedies were tried, but all in vain, for the deep-rooted disease still stuck fast. At last, I procured a box of your valuable Liver Pills from a druggist here, and found, after taking a portion of them, that the disease and painful sensation over the eyes have almost entirely left me. I will close by advising all those afflicted as I have been, to procure the valuable medicine at once and save much time and pain, with little expense. With sincere gratitude and respect, I remain, yours respectfully,

GEO. W. RUSSELL, Toronto.

New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams, No. 248 Seventh street, testify that they have both been suffering with the liver complaint for about five years, during which time they have spent a large amount of money and tried many remedies, but to no purpose. Finally, hearing of Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., they purchased four boxes, which they took according to the directions accompanying each box, and now pronounce themselves perfectly cured of that distressing disease.

SOME PHASES OF TAXATION

Even though it be true that the purpose to tax credits in our state is firmly fixed and never will be abandoned the fact does not prove, because nothing can prove, that the policy is anything but an unscientific one condemned everywhere by an intelligent experience. Every attempt to tax credits has the effect in the long run, to make the borrower, or debtor, pay the tax, not to the state, but to the lender. This is elementary and axiomatic. One may grow weary with repeating it just as it may become irksome to insist on any primary truth as, for example, that two and two make four but these simple truths lie at the base of every possible transaction. Whenever an attempt is made to tax credits, the lender soon puts himself in a position which enables him, by various expedients, to escape the tax, or, if that is impracticable he calls in his loans and ceases to lend. Experience abundantly proves that intangible property will in nearly all cases escape taxation no matter what effort is made to levy and collect upon it. Our mortgage tax law will prove only temporarily effective, because most lenders will draw their money out of mortgage investments as soon as they can. This large numbers are taking steps to do now.

Bonds of the United States bearing only 4 per cent interest are at a high premium and there is a premium even on the 3 per cents. The reason is not far to seek. Persons who have money are like our Oregon farmers who have land—the former place their money where it will be taxed as little as possible and the latter insist upon and enforce a low valuation of their land in order that the taxes may not oppress them. The purpose to invest in securities which cannot be reached by taxation is simply the manifestation of a desire on the part of those who have money, whether the amounts be large or small, to place it where it cannot be reached by the mob of tax eaters who swarm and throng everywhere lying upon all property within reach burdens most difficult to be borne. This, too, is one thing that makes the farmer insist upon having his land rated by the assessor at no more than one-third of its value. All over the country there are large and growing classes who live upon the proceeds of taxation. Their time and ingenuity are wholly devoted to the invention and perfection of schemes to increase taxation and to obtain the manipulation of some branch of the system and some part of its proceeds and profits. The system is divided into innumerable parts, under state, county, township, municipal, school district, road district and other subdivisions. Every possible effort is made by the classes who have taken up as a profession this business of living off the industry and property of the country to levy the largest possible taxes in all directions. On the other hand whether tax payers have much or little, they are interested alike in hiding it as far as possible out of the sight and away from the clutch of this greedy rapacity. From hence in no small degree arises the fact that property is concealed from the assessor.

It is likewise one of the great causes which induce farmers to insist on low valuation of their lands. From the same cause arises the eagerness to invest in United States bonds, even at a rate of interest so low as never to have been heard of before. The man with but little money and the man with much money alike do everything in their power to keep out of the clutches of the harpy tax eaters and to escape confiscation. On their side the tax eaters remit no vigilance and allow no opportunity to escape them of increasing the public expenditures as far as possible. The consequence is that when property happens to be in such shape, place or condition that it cannot obtain concealment, or when its owners happen to be persons who have no ingenuity in protecting themselves against this organized rapacity by dextrous manipulation of indebtedness and other expedients of escape such property is taxed enormously. A burden is thrown upon it which is most unjust and oppressive. If the property happens to be money, taxation almost confiscates any income that can be derived from it. It is but natural under such circumstances that investments in United States bonds should be sought, so that the person who has money, if it be but a few thousand or a few hundred dollars, may be able to snap his fingers in the face of this rapacious and insatiate spoliation.

Here, a man who has anything that can be reached by taxation particularly if it be a kind of property that may be set down at its actual value, might almost as well fall into the hands of the highwaymen at once as to be caught in the huge machinery of our system of taxation. He will come out every year almost as badly dealt with as the man of the parable who was going from Jerusalem down to Jericho. Within a year past great sums of money belonging to our citizens here have been invested in bonds of the United States and more will be. Even those who have but little money are becoming inclined to these investments as a refuge from a taxation which sequestrates pretty much all the profit that can be derived from money employed either at interest or in any legitimate business. By the time the man gets through the hands of the various assessors and collectors of the state tax, county tax, city tax, school tax, road tax and poll tax, he begins to feel very thoroughly used up, especially if he is a man of small property depending on his labor or a little investment for his maintenance. Taxes take about all the money he can raise and he has nothing left. Wonder is often expressed that money is not more freely invested in our state and city. But there is nothing surprising about it. They who have money and are looking for chances inquire about taxation almost the first thing. When informed of the fact it is not strange that they should look elsewhere or, as a last resort, take government securities at 3 or 4 per cent. as a choice.

Again, under this system of taxation, there is no possibility of the rapid development of manufacturing industry. Taxation of credits makes it virtually impossible to secure money for undertakings of this description. The exactions of such a system swallow up about all [illegible] upon which the manufacturer can [illegible] profit. It is difficult at best to start manufacturing enterprises in a new country, where skilled labor is scarce and in short supply, where the market is not large and is already occupied by the products of great establishments in the older states, and where even the sources of raw material have to be developed. When there is added to these difficulties the burden of a system of taxation which [illegible] the very credits on which business [illegible] one may readily see why eastern capital [illegible] money could be had from [illegible] low rates, if it had a [illegible], in addition to the [illegible] the starting of manufacturing [illegible] in a new country, the [illegible] system.

[illegible] which arrived in the Columbia [illegible] with a general cargo [illegible] lighter 1000 tons to [illegible]. This, so her [illegible] will cost $1,000. Is it surprising that a higher rate is asked for ships [illegible] other coast ports?

[illegible] people from this [illegible] near the mouth [illegible] Ilwaco and North [illegible] living in tents and [illegible] are at the resorts on [illegible] fresh and cool [illegible].

EVOLUTION AND THEOLOGY

Mr Beecher, who is to lecture upon "Evolution" in this city on Tuesday evening next, in a recent letter to a fellow minister of Chicago declared himself "a cordial Christian evolutionist." If he touches in his lecture here the religious or spiritual side of his subject, we shall doubtless obtain a statement which will throw light on the meaning of the phrase, as he uses it. A tendency to recognize the theory of evolution in the dealings of providence with mankind, is to some extent observable among a good many theologians of the present day.

This recognition has been more disputed perhaps on the part of those who belong to what is loosely known as the liberal school of religious thought. It is logically involved however, in the orthodox theologies or, to speak more precisely, in the creeds of the regular Christian sects which claim to base their tenets upon the old foundations. The ecclesiastical bodies quite generally agree that there has been a development of the divine order as exhibited in history. They all affirm that we are living under a "new dispensation" of which Judaism was the immediate predecessor. They do not regard Christianity as a revolt or protest against the Mosaic institutions but as their legitimate and foretold consummation. And yet the contrasts between the two systems are so sharp that it would seem as if the new ecclesiasticism represented a distinct change of front. But, if Christianity be accepted as a fulfillment of conditions which existed in their germs in Judaism, we have the doctrine of religious evolution without going further. Christianity itself is certainly undergoing the same process, at least to this extent, namely that it necessarily modifies its interpretation of doctrines to meet the new growths of man's moral intellectual and religious being.

Thus there is an important correspondence between theologians and scientists, and necessarily so, because the different parts of a great system cannot be hopelessly at variance. There has been and still is excess of dogmatism on both sides, obstructing just and fair views of the subject. Science is prone to argue the whole question from the basis of physical facts and theology has often attempted to carry its point by efforts to force capitulations of judgment, and conscience, too. But human history now has sufficient range to prove that the whole development of man as a moral and intellectual being, and the development of human society as well, is only a process of evolution, and as religion in general, of which the Christian religion claims to be the fullest development yet reached, has in all ages been regarded as the greatest of human concerns, it too must unfold and develop by the law of man's growth. Every intelligent person of mature years, now living has witnessed striking proofs within his own lifetime of the "Evolution of Christianity." A lifeless religion Christianity would soon become in this age of intense activity without this power of unfolding to meet new conditions and new demands.

THE HARVEST

It is still too early to determine definitely what our grain surplus will be this year but there is reason to believe that it will be in the neighborhood of 250,000 tons, perhaps more, certainly not less. The work of harvesting is now well forward in the region east of the mountains, and about 2000 tons have already been received here. In quality this grain is fully equal to the famous yield of 188[illegible] while its quantity satisfies the highest expectations of the spring. The total surplus for export will not fall short of 150,000 tons and it may be much higher. It is thought that the excellence of this year's crop as regards quality will do much to remove the prejudice against Walla Walla wheat which exists in the English market. Samples now on the way, it is hoped will almost extinguish the difference which has always ruled between the produce of the Willamette valley and that of eastern Oregon and Washington. Besides the large foreign shipment from the Walla Walla country, there will be a considerable movement toward western Montana. We learn that contracts have been made for delivery of wheat in large lots as far east as Helena and that there is likelihood of a steady future market in that direction.

In the Willamette valley harvesting work is progressing fairly well though it is not so well along as in the eastern country. Recent reports concerning the happy surprise of farmers as to the yield from their blighted fields, are fully confirmed. The yield is at least a two-thirds crop and the surplus for export is expected to reach 100,000 tons. The quality is the usual Willamette valley grade. Excepting a few sample lots, no grain has yet been received here from the valley and it will be fully two weeks before a general movement this way will begin.

The tonnage situation, upon which so much depends has not changed. Disengaged ships in the river and those on the way will afford about 120,000 tons before January 1. The demand for ships continues good elsewhere, and while there will of course, be additions to this list there is not likely to be a movement this year so great as to weaken rates. The difficulties of the Columbia and Willamette rivers will operate against our shippers in the matter of securing ships in competition with other places. There is now less than sixteen feet of water on St. Helens bar at high tide and every ship which comes to this port will have to lighter up and down. This is expensive and tedious and shippers will have to make up in advanced charter prices the extra charges and the cost of delay.

A CALL UPON PORTLAND

Within four weeks the Northern Pacific railroad will be completed. It may be assumed that citizens of Portland see the necessity of causing this city to manifest in a proper way its sense of the importance of the event. It would be lamentable were it otherwise. Portland's position is such as to turn all eyes upon her on this occasion. Till this great national enterprise brought her into notice she was almost unknown in the eastern states. Now, everybody knows Portland as the great objective point, in the west, of the Northern Pacific railroad.

To testify her appreciation of the importance of the great event soon to be celebrated is not only a duty Portland owes to herself, but it is an obligation due to the mighty enterprise which is to put new life into the northwest. We are to have now the consummation so long and so earnestly desired. It will undoubtedly work great changes upon the country. It will connect a vast section hitherto isolated with the busy life of the older and richer country. It will send the pulsations of a quickened activity through every artery of northwestern life. No place is likely to be more affected than Portland by the introduction of this new and powerful force, in which and through which there is possibility of magical transformation.

But it is a law of growth that the destiny of every city depends a great deal upon itself. There is as much difference between the results of enterprise and of inertia in the case of a city as in the case of an individual. Energy, directed by intelligence in either case bears the palm. Portland has position, capital and established business. Her central situation, to which all lines of transportation and of business converge, or from which they all radiate, with the capital she commands or already employs in nearly all branches of industry and trade, gives her a rank which she can lose only through neglect on her own part to seize the new opportunities which the railroad era brings to the great northwest.

There is now a call upon Portland. In her celebration of the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad and of the redemption of the great northwest from its isolation, she must do what will be worthy alike of herself and of the event. A call is made upon citizens to hold a meeting at the rooms of the board of trade for action to-day. A spirited response is the most urgent and necessary thing ever yet required of the citizens of Portland.

AN ARMED PEACE

Count von Moltke is reported as saying that the expense of keeping Germany in readiness for war is small as compared with the loss she would suffer if attacked while unprepared for war. This is the theory upon which all the states of Europe continue to exhaust themselves through the fearful drain of constant military expenditures. On that shallow argument Germany must in a time of profound peace keep under arms year in and year out fully half a million men lest some day there should be war. Russia must keep a million, France as many as Germany and so on. But the theory is false. It is not cheaper to keep a nation prepared for war, as preparation is now understood in Europe than to endure the destruction of war when it comes. No loss that war can inflict not all the destruction and waste of war for one year is so costly as twenty years of preparation and peace. Germany has spent more since her last war with France to put herself in a position to make French revenge impossible than all France lost by the war, and it seldom happens that a war is so uninterruptedly unfortunate to the armies of one side as that war was. It is a generally recognized principle that a large expenditure that is made once for all and is then done hurts less than the comparatively smaller regular outlay that must be kept up for uncounted years, and this is the principle of this regular expenditure for war preparation in comparison with war losses. Great as were the expenditures of our own country during the civil war the aggregate is insignificant compared with the amount that would have been paid in maintaining an "armed peace" like that which exists in Europe. The worst of it is that a nation at last must certainly add the war loss to the other expenditures, for preparation does neither prevent war nor guarantee victory.

St. Louis is agitated over a new Sunday law. The mayor of the city and the governor of the state are determined that the law shall be enforced whether the people like it or not. There has never been much regard for Sunday in St. Louis. The customs, traditions and morals of the old French founders of the city have been handed down to the present generations with little change in the outward form of Sunday observances at least. The saloons and the shops places of amusement and entertainment, market places and the like have regarded Sunday as their best day and made the most of it. The saloon keepers have organized to resist the law, and there is no doubt but that they have a strong public opinion back of them which though not outspoken, would rather see them succeed in their fight than no.

Fear is expressed that this is but the first of a series of smoky seasons. The fires raging all over the country had their origin in the efforts of settlers to clear the land, and such efforts will not cease till the whole country is occupied. The number of homemakers increases each year and will continue to increase for many years to come. While it is true that settlers ought to be careful it is equally true that they will not and during the dry weeks of every summer hereafter we are likely to be enveloped in a blue unwholesome cloud. Of course it is not to be expected that all seasons will be as bad as the present one which is the dryest ever known in the country.

When will the telegraph wires be restored across that creek in California? During most of the time for five days telegraphic communication has been interrupted by an incident which would not have been suffered to break the connection three quarters of an hour in any eastern state.

THE CATTLE BUSINESS.

Concentration of Capital—Ranches of 500,000 Acres

Cheyenne letter in the Philadelphia Press

One thing is plain the method of forming combinations and consolidating separate interests into a few hands which has characterized railroad and manufacturing interests east has taken almost entire possession of the stock business here. Since the opening of the season the number of ranches sold out to a few powerful buyers is estimated at over 200. Such great corporations as the Swan Bros Gilchrist & Wirlsor Rand & Co and the Powder River Cattle company have absorbed a great many ranches, some of which have been regarded as very large and prosperous. Foreign capital is largely concerned in these transfers. For instance, it is well known that Mr Swan of the company first named above, has been but temporary manager for a syndicate possessing immense capital, resident in Edinburgh, which has purchased all the Swan Bros' cattle for $2,500,000. The Powder River company as well with a capital of £1,000,000, has a directory composed of the Duke of Manchester, Lord Neville, Messrs Sartoris and Kemp and other Englishmen of wealth. These people have paid 50 per cent more for their cattle than they would have been asked twelve months since.

Then I saw the other day a gentleman returning through here from Laramie who I was informed represented a large accretion of capital in the east. He had been to the Cheyenne and Arrapahoe agency Indian territory and purchased from the Cheyenne and Arrapahoe Indians 500,000 acres of grass land from each with the privilege of fencing. He was in some doubt about interference from the government, as the leases have yet to be approved by the secretary of the interior before they can be acted upon but said if all went smoothly the ranch buildings would be put up at once. He claimed that the land at present was valueless to the Indians and his purchase would give almost every Indian inhabitant of the reservation an annual income of $10 apiece.

Even while I am writing I am informed authoritatively by a friend of the Swan Bros whom I mentioned just now as having sold out to the wealthy company from Edinburgh and Dundee Scotland that they (the brothers) have formed the Swan Land and Cattle Company in which Chicago and Milwaukee capital is largely interested. Then there are the Standard Stock Company in North Cheyenne with a capital of at least $550,000. Pratt & Ferris, on the North Platte, worth about the same or more. The company just formed at the head of Running Water, in Wyoming, with an immense capital and finally the American Land and Cattle Syndicate organized a couple of months ago at Kansas City.

This latter is now fast completing the details of its organization some of which will make trouble in the cattle business, or I am mistaken. It is a concentration of capital of great strength and aims at the exclusive control of large domains in the southwestern territories. It will have branch offices in New York and London as well as Texas. Its membership numbering at present about thirty includes some of the wealthiest men, and and cattle owners in Kansas City. Both the United States senators from Kansas and the governor of the state are members.

In the southwest it is just the same. The largest transactions in cattle ever made in this country barring one have just been made in Fort Worth and Gainesville Texas aggregating over $2,500,000. But I am not attempting to print a catalogue, only to show a tendency. And it is the most natural one in the world. "What's the use of our small ranches?" asked of me a drover with the air of a questioner who can answer his conundrums best himself. "It costs but little more to protect a large lot of cattle than it does a small one. 500 head will scatter in grazing as far as 10,000. You've got to have about as many horses and saddles and boys for the round up and branding. There's no proportion at all in the profits."

WOMAN SUFFRAGE AT ASTORIA.

Astoria Aug 13.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

A large and enthusiastic woman suffrage rally was held in this city during the past week, under the leadership of Mrs A S Duniway the chief editor of the New Northwest who seems determined to leave no opportunity untried to make Oregon what she calls the banner state of the new dispensation. The M E church which was opened to the first meeting of the rally proved far too small to hold the crowd which assembled at Liberty hall on the second evening. With the exception of the reception tendered Miss Willard during her visit here the oldest inhabitant has witnessed no gathering like it. Judge Dennison occupied the platform with Mrs Duniway on the first evening, and followed the lady's impassioned, pleasing and logical address with an eloquent argument replete with historic incidents made applicable as he proceeded to woman's present demand for recognition as a co-sovereign with man in everything that pertains to the mutual interest of the sexes. He ridiculed what he called the silly bombast of men who monopolize all the light positions under large pay and yet pretend to protect women by denying them equal opportunities for honorable competition in easy avenues of occupation, though they will look on unmoved at the efforts women make for a livelihood at the wash tub. And even this last channel of protective industry he said was now being monopolized by Chinamen. He claimed that as Oregon was the last state in the Union to accede to negro suffrage she could now most courageously retaliate by becoming the first state to concede woman suffrage.

A choir of ladies and gentlemen rendered excellent music. Freeman Parker Esq, a veteran Californian who is now visiting his brothers in this place favored the rally to some superb violin solos and Miss Edith Conn a precocious child of seven summers gave word [illegible] in elocution.

The second evening brought out a very large assembly. After music by the choir Mrs Duniway spoke for an hour, her subject "Woman's Latent Power as a Helpmeet," being an exceedingly interesting review of what women had done as accomplished after their husbands had failed in business, the logical sequence being that they had possessed the power in a latent condition all along which had it been allowed opportunity to expand would have prevented the failures which have frequently driven husbands to poverty and sometimes to suicide. She advocated equal rights of women for man's sake as well as woman's, and concluded her argument by a stirring appeal to the voters of the state to place Oregon in the lead and thus win power [illegible] with the proud prestige of a preeminence that once possessed will belong to her forever.

Letters were read from Hon C W Fulton and T A McBride, who though unable to leave their business connected with the court to attend the rally were in hearty sympathy with its aims and objects. The letter from Judge McBride was particularly striking. He said he was so busily engaged in trying to bring criminal voters to justice that he was compelled to forego the more pleasant duty of assisting during the evening in the great work of agitating the enfranchisement of the law abiding element—our wives and mothers, whose moral power is nowhere else so badly needed as at the ballot box. The letter evoked the heartiest applause.

Mr O. Curtis was the next speaker. His argument, though brief, was pointed and telling, and the gentleman made many friends for himself and the cause before he left the platform.

Judge Tozier of Portland made the closing speech, holding the audience till a late hour by an amusing historical and logical address, in which he brought forward many new facts and theories and summed up much that had been said during the evening in new shapes, making points at every turn in favor of woman suffrage, and concluding with a commentary upon the lately increased rotundity of women's skirts, which it gratified him to say gave evidence that Oregon's women "were not going to be tied back any more."

The meeting adjourned amid general enthusiasm leaving Astorians ready and anxious for many other rallies of the same order. Respectfully, A E A

A CARD.

In the [illegible] papers of [illegible] there is a complaint about a [illegible] of [illegible] and lack of trains to and from the park at [illegible] Caledonian games on Sunday last in which I am indirectly censured. I [illegible] to state that early in the last week I leased the track for the day to Mr P W [illegible] of the New Market theater and was in no wise interested in the games of the day or the results thereof. What little I could do towards maintaining order on the ground I cheerfully did. Allow me to add that this is the last time that I shall ever lease the track to anybody without the stipulation that all stands erected and business carried on [illegible] on the track shall be under my control.

CITY.

LAW ABSOLUTELY INOPERATIVE.—"What has become of the whisky case?" is a question that is frequently asked upon the streets not only by the respectable element of this city who would like to see the laws sustained, but also by the better class of liquor dealers, who have paid the license and hate to be defrauded by the competition of a hundred or more disreputable dives, kept by 'respectable merchants' like "Dick" Gerdes and "Joe" Taylor. The question is a hard one to answer. "Dick" Gerdes is now a councilman, and by a judicious use of his political influence he has been enabled, though not with his associates of the obnoxious law hanging over their heads, to render it absolutely inoperative. At least it would certainly appear that way, as the unlicensed saloons are running in full blast and the police, acting under instructions from the common council, take no notice of these open and flagrant violations. As for the status of the case in the courts that is very easy to determine. The case of the city of Portland against Oliver Sesson was made a test and after considerable delay it was brought to trial on an appeal in the state circuit court from the decision of Police Judge Moreland. The jury decided that the law should be sustained and the liquor dealer pay a fine. All this happened several weeks ago. At the last day of court the defendant's attorneys appeared, willingly and made a motion for a new trial. Judge Stott listened to the arguments, etc., and announced that he would take it under advisement. Now, gentle reader, you know just as much about it as we do.

THE "DAISY ANDRUS."—At 5:15 yesterday afternoon the hull of the new Jefferson street ferryboat was launched from [illegible] ways near the foot of C street, East Portland. Probably 200 people witnessed the launch, at least twenty responded to the invitation to go aboard. The run was 140 feet with a sharp grade, which looked dangerous to nervous people. On board were but two ladies and a little girl, but many others occupied positions for seeing the launch. At the signal both ropes were cut and the pretty hull glided swiftly down the ways without a mishap. On striking the water it keeled over so that water almost wet the deck, staunchions and stays proving convenient help for keeping one's feet. While going down a neat flag was floating bearing the words "Daisy Andrus." The boat is named after a daughter of councilman W. H. Andrus. Mrs. Sorenson, wife of the builder, broke the regulation bottle of champagne. The launch was a perfect success in every way and Mr. Sorenson is to be congratulated upon his work. The dimensions of the hull are 120 feet length, 36 feet beam and 7 feet depth of hold. She will be furnished with 16-inch aprons and has an overhang of 7½ feet per paddle. To-day the hull will be towed to the wharf of the Willamette Iron Works where machinery will be placed. In about two weeks the boat will be placed on the route, new landing pontoons being now built.

ANTI-CHINESE DEMONSTRATION.—Quite a commotion was created at the corner of First and Taylor streets yesterday afternoon by a stranger who had evidently been drinking. S. Wilcox, street contractor, had a force of Chinamen employed in repairing a sewer, and the stranger interrupted them to inquire by whom they were employed. Mr. Wilcox objects to having his employes interfered with, and seizing the intruder, blew a police whistle. No policeman happened to be within hearing, but a crowd soon collects, who sympathised with the stranger and encouraged Mr. Wilcox to let him go. But this scheme did not meet with the approval of the latter, and he held his prisoner and continued to blow his whistle. The stranger offered no resistance, being evidently dazed by the crowd which thronged around him. Finally the crowd began to hustle Mr. Wilcox and his prisoner, and so energetic did the hustling become that Mr. Wilcox was thrown down and his hold upon the prisoner broken. The latter was then told to run and away he sped, like "a deer when horses and hounds pursue," and before a policeman reached the spot was probably concealed in the bush. Several blows were struck, but considerable feeling was exhibited by the crowd, who were evidently hostile toward the Chinese and did not like to see them employed on street work.

A QUESTION OF JURISDICTION.—Some time since the Northern Pacific Terminal Company brought suit against Goldsmith & Loewenberg in the state circuit court to have condemned for terminal purposes certain property at the north end of [illegible]. Julius Goldsmith, one of the defendants, appealed to have the suit transferred to the United States court, he being a resident of New York, which fact entitled him to make the application. The United States court issued a writ of certiorari directing the circuit court to deliver up the records in the case. The state circuit court, however, paid no attention to the order and proceeded with the case. The plaintiffs yesterday asked the state circuit court to enter a default against the defendants, which was done. The defendants' counsel yesterday applied in the United States court to grant an injunction to put a stop to further proceedings in the district court. Judge Deady denied this injunction, as the United States statutes forbids the United States court to grant an injunction to stay proceedings in the circuit court, except in bankruptcy cases. Judge Deady, however, said that any judgment given by the circuit court in the case would be void, and that if the company attempted to take possession of the property under such a judgment they would be enjoined.

LEG CRUSHED.—John Stoops, a driver of one of Powers' furniture delivery trucks, met with an accident yesterday, both painful and serious. While his team, attached to the truck, was standing in front of the store unhitched some slight noise in the street frightened them, and they started to run. Stoops sprang at once to stop them, and catching the reins pulled the horses around, thus cramping the heavy truck. Just as he was jumping upon the truck, his left leg was caught between the truck and the wheel, and the latter, was still turning, thereby grinding the member into a pulp clear to the very bone. The shrieks which the terrible pain wrung from the lips of the injured man brought a large crowd of people to his assistance. The horses were secured and the driver was carried into the store, where he was made as comfortable as possible until the arrival of Dr. Saylor, who had been summoned. Upon dressing the injury the muscles were found to be severely crushed and cut, but it is thought not sufficiently to cause amputation. After his wounds were dressed, Stoops was removed to the Good Samaritan hospital, where he will remain until his recovery.

GROWLS ABOUT THE PICNIC.—OREGONIAN reporters were frequently asked yesterday why this paper did not "burn up" the management of the picnic at City View park the day before. There were a good many disappointed visitors, but who is to receive the "burning up?" It is possible only to censure the guilty persons, and all the trouble was caused by the crowd being larger than was expected and prepared for. No baseball match during the season attracted half the number who attended last Sunday, and if every one directly and indirectly connected with the day's sport had known that 3000 would attend, there would have been provided additional [illegible] ropes and sixty men with rifles and gatling gun to keep the crowds off the track (nothing less formidable would have held them in check); about thirty superintendents of various contests, and 4000 or 6000 sandwiches and as many cups of coffee. Stebbins and Harris say they did all they could do; so do the managers of the park; so do the baseball captains. As soon as the name of the guilty party can be learned, he shall receive the necessary scorching.

THREATS OF LYNCHING.—A gentleman who came up from Astoria last evening by the steamer Wide West stated to an OREGONIAN reporter that furious conversations were heard in that usually quiet city, which boded no good to Peter Smith, the brutal, [illegible] fisherman who committed an outrage last Friday night upon the sick wife of Jack Ashley, near Brookfield, W. T. Smith, though still in the hospital, [illegible] in danger of his life, the [illegible] men and good citizens, [illegible] believe that the law has not just [illegible] a wretch. When asked if [illegible] would be lynched [illegible] the reporter's informant said the [illegible] might think himself well off if that was all he received. Threats had been made that Smith would be taken from the hospital before many days had gone by, and having been well roasted, would be set on fire. Our informant added: "If he should chance to die during this treatment it would neither more nor less than what he deserved."

ABATING A NUISANCE.—The inhabitants of a Chinese wash house on the south side of Pine street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, were complained of yesterday to the police by the residents of that vicinity as maintaining a filthy nuisance that was likely injurious to the public health. Not only was there a cesspool that gave forth the vilest of odors, but slops were thrown promiscuously in the yard and from second-story windows upon the roof of an adjoining cottage, much to the disgust and discomfort of its inmates. An officer was sent to the house and the Chinese proprietor of the place arrested and orders issued that the nuisance be abated forthwith as well as the [illegible] present filth be at once removed.

SEASIDE TROUBLES.—Sam Simmons has heard through the papers of a foundling left at his cottage, and so have all the other Portlanders at the beach, and the amount of chaffing Sam has to stand is quite destroying his pleasure and spoiled his appetite for crabs and clams. He has written to his wife to get rid of the infantile incubus at once, claiming that he will not return home till the house is clear of extraneous youngsters. He doesn't dare, charging his wife to get rid of "it" as soon as she can, and then to come down to the beach and have the original family along, as he is bothered to death by the Portlanders there. Sam evidently likes this style of, is resenting his family a [illegible] of reprogation.

LATEST AND WORST TRIBULATION.—There is something not altogether displeasing to us in the misfortunes of our friends and newspaper men who have been driven to the verge of madness by not being able to obtain telegraphic dispatches may derive some consolation in knowing that others are even in a worse fix. The editor of the Chehalis Nugget is obliged to suspend publication because a hog was dating the coast along and ate up his press rollers. These rollers, as all should know, are made of a mixture of glue and molasses, and the hog rolled them like a sweet morsel under his tongue. The sad circumstance cast a gloom over the entire community in which the Nugget circulates.

NEW CONSTABLE FOR ALBINA.—By order of the county clerk yesterday D. J. Shields was appointed constable for Albina precinct vice John F. McCarthy, the regularly elected incumbent, who has recently resigned, the office not proving lucrative enough as his daily employment and its duties being sufficiently onerous to interfere with his other labors. Mr. Shields has not yet taken the oath of office, but has signified his intention to do so at once. His appointment was urged by many prominent citizens of Albina.

DOES NOT FEAR DINNIE.—D. A. McMillan, the wrestler, called at this office to say that injustice was done him in last night's Telegram, by the inference that he was afraid to wrestle with Dinnie at City View park. He claims that he was ill and in no condition for a struggle, and he did not want his friends to lose their money, as they were anxious to bet on him. His only reason for taking part in the light contests was to give to the sport greater interest for lookers-on. He says he is willing to meet Dinnie in any one style (Scotch back-hold excepted) or in any five styles of wrestling, for any amount of money that the Scotch champion will put up. While willing to acknowledge that Dinnie has a greater reputation on paper, McMillan claims that he can defeat Dinnie not only at wrestling, but at most of the Scotch games in which the brawny Scot has achieved world-wide fame.

OPIUM SMOKERS ARRESTED.—When Policeman Ward went up to the corner of Sixth and Pine streets yesterday afternoon to abate a nuisance caused by a Chinese wash-house he very opportunely stumbled upon an opium den and made two more arrests. Going into the wash-house, his nostrils quickly caught the villainous odor arising from the fumes of burning opium and making an investigation almost before the Chinamen were aware of his presence in the house, he discovered two fiends taking the long draw. One was a Chinaman and the other a hoodlum, named respectively Ah Tom and George Wilson. Both were taken to the city jail and will be called up for examination in the police court to-day.

LIFTING MACHINE AND LIFTING.—A peripatetic individual who seeks a living without work was standing around a lifting-machine on the corner of First and Alder streets last night, engaged in gathering in the dimes of gullible young men who were trying to see how far they could pull up a steel spring. Judging from last evening this sort of business must be lucrative and pays a large interest upon a small investment. The most sensible man in the crowd was a big broad-shouldered fellow who remarked: "When I get down to lift, some other fellow has got to pay for it. It's not me that'll be paying for the privilege of breaking my back on a big lift, and don't you forget it."

WELLS, FARGO & CO.'S LIST.—The following letters remain uncalled for at Wells, Fargo & Co.'s office: Miss Alice, care Miss Armonda; Fred Bectel, George W. Cleaveland, A. N. Coyne, W. A. Doolittle, B. F. Dennison, Rev. Wm. Dollarhide, George Everest, Mrs. E. A. Fish, Mrs. Greinshaw, Mrs. Mollie Gage, Charles Hutchinson, Frank Hutchings (4), Martin L. Haas (6), Cass Hirsch, Ben F. Jones, Wm. J. Melliken, Mrs. Leckenson, Archy Lamont, Sophie Meggs, Samuel Matson (2), N. Nickerson, John Parsell, T. M. Riventine, John Sherman (2), John P. Shaw, J. Stosal, Louis Schwabacher & G. Telortuman, George B. Williams, jr., Mrs. Marya Wigcand, Geo. Wallace.

RESPECTFULLY REFERRED.—B. Fallon, the agent who runs the Ivy Green saloon without a license, unmolested by the police authorities, called at the city jail yesterday and complained in person to Chief of Police Watkinds that the wicked Chinamen who infested the new theater adjoining his most moral resort, had dumped a large pile of shavings and other carpenters' refuse between the two buildings. Mr. Fallon was treated with the utmost courtesy, and politely informed that his complaint came properly under the care of Chief Engineer Jordan of the fire department who would undoubtedly attend to the matter at once.

HEADQUARTERS MOVED.—Mr. R. M. Steel of the Oregon Construction Company, who is down from the front, says that their headquarters have been moved sixteen miles beyond Meacham's. The entire force, except one gang, are now at work on the other side of the summit. Mr. Steel has fully recovered from his recent attack of fever. He says the weather during the summer has been fine—always cool in the evening, never excessively hot during the day and no annoying smoke. With good food and clear, cool, sparkling mountain streams for drinking water, there has been but little illness among the men.

TIME EXTENDED.—There appears to be no prospect of work being commenced upon the Morrison street bridge this summer. Hon. R. Mallory and ex-Attorney-General Williams, counsel for the Willamette Iron Bridge Company, applied for permission to file a writ of review in the U. S. court last Friday, and present their arguments in favor of the application. The court stated that the other side was entitled to a hearing in the matter, and ordered that they be notified and given till yesterday to appear and make their objections. As some of the parties are absent from the city, the time was yesterday extended to the 22d inst.

LARGE-SIZED PACHYDERM.—"Why don't you abuse the telegraph company as they deserve?" asked a prominent business man yesterday of an OREGONIAN reporter. "The company is treating this section of the country shamefully and it will make the public feel good to see the monopoly abused if it don't benefit them otherwise." The aforesaid business man had evidently forgotten that Jay Gould, the personified grand monopoly of the country, is a large sized pachyderm, and besides, his hair is too far away to be reached by any fire loaded on the Pacific coast.

STRUCK A PIER.—The tug boat Oswego, owned by Captain Taylor, while towing a barge up the river on Saturday evening, had one of the blades of her propeller broken off by coming in contact with one of the sunken piers of the Morrison-street bridge. The pier was supposed to be midway between two other piers, and the craft was kept about twenty-five feet from the center of the passage, just where the pier proved to be, and in striking over it lost a blade of her propeller. The sunken pier should be buoyed to prevent a repetition of the accident or the occurrence of a more serious one.

WEDDING.—Last Thursday Mr. Frank W. Baltes, of the firm of D. C. Ireland & Co., was married, at Union, Oregon, to Miss Agnes May Bell, daughter of Gen. O. F. Bell, formerly of this city. The groom is one of the most competent and industrious of craftsmen, is an honorable young man, and has a host of friends in this city and Astoria, who wish him and his bonnie bride all the happiness they anticipate.

NEW COUNTY BRIDGE.—A new pile bridge is to be built for the accommodation of farmers across the Columbia slough, near Thomas Cully's place, 450 feet in length. The county court has advertised for bids from builders, and full plans and specifications can be seen at the clerk's office at any time between now and the 10th of the present month. This bridge is much needed and will be appreciated by many people.

REDUCED RATES TO YELLOWSTONE.—Yesterday the traffic department of the Northern Pacific received authorization from eastern headquarters to sell excursion tickets from Portland to the end of the Yellowstone Park branch and return, in parties of not less than ten, at $75. This is a reduction of about one-third from the regular fare.

MILDLY INSANE.—Chas. Harris, a young man who has been a resident of Portland for some years and has become weak-minded through bodily afflictions, was yesterday adjudged insane by County Judge L. B. Stearns upon the certificates of Doctors Wells and Wheeler. Harris was taken to the asylum by Chief of Police Watkinds.

BRIEF MENTION.

There were twenty-four arrests made yesterday by the police.

Yesterday, a vessel's yards were put to a novel use. Men at the Willamette Iron works were ready to put on the smoke stack of the new steamer building for the Shoalwater Bay Transportation Company, so they hauled the boat alongside the ship Geo. S. Within a few days four of William Grenfells' horses have been lamed by picking up nails on the street. One of them is seriously injured and may be permanently disabled. A handsome black colt belonging to Hon. Richard Williams was lamed a day or two since by striking a nail in his foot. There appear to be more nails in the streets than are desirable.

Policeman Belcher discovered a seedy looking individual wandering about Couch precinct last evening with a new pair of boots hanging upon his shoulders, which boots he tried in vain to dispose of to various persons during the evening. At last Belcher arrested the man, who gave the name of John Ford. Both man and boots are now at the city jail awaiting identification.

James B. Stephens Gains his Suit in the State Circuit Court.

EAST SIDE REAL ESTATE LARGELY INVOLVED.

Full Text of Judge Stott's Decision Based Upon the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law of John Catlin, Referee.

Among other important decisions rendered by Judge Stott, just prior to his recent adjournment of court for a short recess, was that in the suit of James B. Stephens against W. F. Allen and the estate of J. C. Hawthorne in favor of the plaintiff. This suit involved a large amount of real estate situated within the corporate limits of East Portland, and also 640 acres of valuable land in Washington county. This property had passed from the hands of the plaintiff some time in the year 1877, when it was worth $25,000 and when the plaintiff had debts that he was unable to meet. Later on, the property becoming more valuable, he made an attempt to recover its possession, and now has succeeded in showing to the satisfaction of the court that the manner in which the defendants got possession of the property was through deeds which must be considered simply as mortgages, and, hence, redeemable. This state of affairs is wholly explained below, which is given in full:

JUDGE STOTT'S DECISION.

James B. Stephens plaintiff, vs. W. F. Allen, Rachel Hawthorne, administratrix, and S. E. Joseph, administrator, of the estate of J. C. Hawthorne, deceased, Louise B. Hawthorne and Catherine Hawthorne, and Rachel Hawthorne, their guardian, defendants.

This cause having come on to be heard before John Catlin, the referee heretofore appointed by the court to take the testimony and report the findings of fact and law herein, the plaintiff appearing by Messrs. Thayer & Williams, Bingham & Gleason and E. W. Bingham, and the defendants appearing by Messrs. Dolph, Bellinger, Dolph & Simon and Killin & Moreland, and the said referee having heretofore filed in this court the testimony taken, by him in said cause together with his report of the findings of fact and law thereon, and it appearing from said report that the plaintiff, James B. Stephens, was on the 8th of May, 1877, the owner in fee of all the property described in his complaint herein, and that its reasonable value at said date was about $25,000; that on said 8th of May, 1877, plaintiff was owing Ladd & Tilton the sum of $12,462 75, and that he was indebted to W. F. Allen, one of the defendants herein, upon a promissory note executed to him by plaintiff, and J. C. Hawthorne as surety, which note bears date June 1, 1877, and was for the sum of $1706, which bore interest from date at the rate of one per cent. per month, and that on said 8th day of May, 1877, and for some time prior thereto, it was inconvenient for plaintiff to pay said indebtedness, and that the defendants, W. F. Allen and J. C. Hawthorne, who had long been plaintiff's confidential friends and advisers, undertook to assist plaintiff, and to that end it was agreed by and between them and plaintiff, that they, Allen and Hawthorne, should borrow the money to pay off the indebtedness to Ladd & Tilton upon their own credit; and that plaintiff should deed to them, as security for the money that they should so borrow, and interest that might accrue thereon, all of his property; and that it was further agreed by and between said parties that Allen and Hawthorne should have the right to sell the said property in parcels, as purchasers could be obtained, and that the moneys realized from such sales should be applied to the payment of the sum so borrowed, and accruing interest and expenses attending the same; that said deed should stand as security for the payment of said note to Allen, and that Allen should give his personal attention in conjunction with plaintiff in making sales of said property; and that defendant, Allen, should be allowed a reasonable compensation therefor; and that after the payment of the amount so borrowed, and interest and expenses attending the management of said property as deeded by plaintiff, and the said note due Allen for his said services, plaintiff should have back the entire residue; that in compliance with said agreement and for the purposes mentioned in said agreement plaintiff conveyed to said Allen and Hawthorne the property described in the complaint herein, and thereafter Allen and Hawthorne borrowed money and paid off said indebtedness to Ladd & Tilton, and the defendant, Allen, entered upon the business of negotiating sales of said property in pursuance of said agreement and contract, and that he thereafter effected sales of considerable portions of said property prior to February 15, 1881, and applied the proceeds to the payment of expenses incurred therein and to the payment of money so borrowed and accruing interest; that said J. C. Hawthorne died February 15, 1881, leaving him as surviving his heirs, Rachel Hawthorne, his widow, and Louise B. Hawthorne and Catherine Hawthorne, his daughters, his only heirs at law, and that Rachel Hawthorne is administratrix and S. E. Joseph, administrator, and Rachel Hawthorne general guardian of said children, who are minors; and that said administratrix and administrator and general guardian were duly appointed by the county court of Multnomah county, Oregon, and each accepted and entered upon the performance of the appointed trusts; and that immediately after the death of said J. C. Hawthorne, the said W. F. Allen and the representatives of the estate of J. C. Hawthorne, deceased, claimed that the said real property was owned in fee by the said W. F. Allen and the heirs at law of said J. C. Hawthorne, deceased, and that plaintiff owned a life estate during his natural life and the life of his wife in a tract of 20 acres known as the homestead, upon which plaintiff and his wife resided; that W. F. Allen and J. C. Hawthorne and his representatives have expended in and about said property the aggregate sum of $32,-420 33 and have received from said property in sales and rents the sum of $23,483 49, leaving a balance due from plaintiff to defendant in the sum of $8,936 84 with interest from the commencement of this suit and that upon payment of said sum and interest, plaintiff is entitled to a deed conveying to him all the property mentioned in his complaint herein, excepting so much thereof as appears by the record to have been sold prior to the commencement of this suit; and the value of the property remaining unsold was at the time of the filing of the report herein, to-wit, July 25 1882, of the value of about $50,000, and that prior to the commencement of this suit plaintiff did offer in writing to pay $13,000 on account of any claims of defendants against said lands, and that defendants refused to accept the same, and as conclusions of law said referee found that the deeds described in plaintiff's complaint should be declared and held to be mortgages, and that plaintiff should pay defendants the sum of $8,945 84, together with interest thereon from the date of the commencement of this suit; and that upon the payment of said sum and interest the defendants should re-convey to James B. Stephens the whole of the real estate described in the complaint, excepting so much thereof as has been shown by the record herein to have been sold by W. F. Allen and J. C. Hawthorne.

It is therefore ordered, decreed and adjudged that said report be and the same is hereby in all things therein confirmed, and that said deeds described in the complaint herein be and the same are hereby held and declared to be mortgages, and that there is now due and owing from the plaintiff to the defendants the sum of $8,945 84, with legal interest thereon from the 4th day of September, 1881, and that upon payment or tender of said sum with interest as aforesaid, then that said defendants reconvey to plaintiff the lands remaining unsold, which lands are as follows, to-wit, situated in East Portland, Multnomah county, Oregon:

All of block 191; also lot 7 in block 22, East Portland; also all of the following described real property, situated in what is known as Stephens' addition to East Portland: All of blocks 20, 21, 46, 27, 28, 32, 33, 34, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 69, 70, 71, 72, 90, 91, 110, 111, 113, 25, 129, 130, 131; also fractional blocks numbered 14, 13, 24, 30, 31; also the east half of block 115; lots 5 and 6 in block 59; lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 in block 84; lots 1 and 2 in block 97; south west half of block 101; lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 in block 106; lots 1, 2, 7 and 8 in block 107; lots 5 and 6, in block 108; the west half of block 115; lots 1 and 2 in block 116; lots 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 in block 14; lots 1, 2, 7 and 8 in block 109; lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 of block 114; lots 5 and 6, of block 121; lots 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 of block 123; also lots 1 and 2 in block 36; also the following described parcel of real property situated in the county of Multnomah state of Oregon, and more particularly described as lot 1 in block 263 in Atkin's addition to East Portland; and also the following piece, parcel or tract of land in said Stephen's addition to East Portland, to wit: Commencing at a point in the southwest corner of Third and V streets, and running thence southerly and parallel with said Third street to the south line of Washington street; thence westerly to the Willamette river; thence northerly along the bank of said Willamette river and with the meanderings of said river to V street; thence easterly parallel with and along the line of said V street to the place of beginning, containing about nineteen and one-fourth acres of land and being the premises upon which the plaintiff herein now resides; and also the following described parcel of real property, to-wit: being the south half of section 29, in township 1, south Willamette meridian, situated in Washington county, state of Oregon, containing 320 acres of land and being the south half of Edward Sexton's donation land claim; also that certain piece or parcel of land lying and being situated in Washington county, Oregon, and more particularly described as follows: All of the north half of the following described tract of land—The south half of the southeast quarter of section 20; the south half, the northeast quarter, and the south half of the northwest quarter of section 23, all in township 1 south, range 1 west, containing 640 acres, the said entire piece being the donation land claim of Edward Sexton and wife.

And it is further ordered adjudged and decreed that upon such tender or payment being made by plaintiff to defendants this decree shall stand in lieu and place of a deed, and that plaintiff recover of and from defendants his costs and disbursements herein taxed.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE OSBORNES.—Last night, Miss Fannie Osborne, who is announced to give entertainments at New Market, Friday and Saturday evenings, gave a reading to a number of invited guests at the parlor of the Esmond. Her selections, which embraced every shade of elocution, stamped her as an artist of no ordinary ability. Several of the Knights Templar who accompanied Gen. Pike on his trip north heard the Osbornes' entertainment at Victoria, and they have asked THE OREGONIAN to say on their behalf that the performance was very creditable and highly interesting.

CHINESE GAMBLING ROW.

One Mongolian Gets His Head Cut Open by an Iron Bar in the Hands of an Enemy who Escaped Capture—A Bloody Affray.

The sharp, shrill sound of a police whistle, blown by some person at or near the corner of Second and Alder streets, about 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, startled a little knot of policemen, among them Chief Watkinds, who were standing about or in the entrance to the city jail. All started at once for the spot, Chief Watkinds and Policemen Ward, Putnam and Smith being the first to arrive. Some Chinamen pointed out that there was some trouble in the tan gambling den just underneath the brass and iron rooms of the notorious Sam Nevilles. The heavy doors and massive wooden bars that formerly used to keep out all but the well-known patrons of the Chinese "tiger," now were wide open to all since Judge Stott's recent decision that the game of "tan" does not come under the meaning of the statute against gambling.

The police consequently lost no time in making their way through a dark passage into the large, open gambling hall. There were but five Chinamen in the room, except the prostrate form of one upon the floor, from a wound in whose head there flowed at every pulsation of the heart the crimson tide of life. The five Chinamen were taken into custody, and the wounded man, who was unconscious, was put into an express wagon and taken to the city jail.

Doctors Saylor, Wells, Harry Lane and one or two others, having heard of the case, dropped in to take a look at the wound. Dr. Lane washed, sewed and dressed the injured head, the scalp of which was badly cut, and one or two little pieces of bone were found chipped from the outside of the skull, but the most searching examination could discover no more serious fracture. The patient was then sent to St. Vincent's hospital, where he recovered consciousness, and at midnight was resting easily.

SEARCHING FOR A CULPRIT.

After the victim and the prisoners had been removed the police procured lamps and candles and made a careful search of the premises to see if any one was concealed therein. Such a den as the place proves to be on investigation, is seldom seen by Christian white man. Little rooms, not big enough to swing a cat in without knocking its brains out, divided by narrow and dark passages, the whole reeking with the fumes of opium filled all the space not occupied by the gambling room. In some of the rooms were opium layouts evidently abandoned in haste by the smokers, as the pipes were warm and the lamps still burning. Every bunk and table was looked under and every dark hole and cranny examined and an ineffectual effort made to find the entrance to the cellar, but no one was found and finally the search was abandoned.

Although the five prisoners first taken evidently knew a great deal about the affair they would say nothing, and it was thought that one of them was the real culprit who had made the murderous attack. One result of the search through the gambling house was to bring to light an iron crow, such as is used for opening dry goods boxes. On this were blood stains, showing conclusively that it was the weapon employed by the assailant.

THE CAUSE OF THE AFFRAY.

An intelligent Chinaman who had inquired into the matter, furnished the following account of the cause of the row: Two Chinamen, Ung and Wong, were playing at the same table. Ung bet two bits and Wong four bits. Both won, and when the dealer passed over their winnings Ung took the four bits belonging to Wong. This caused a disturbance, and Wong went out to a wood engraver's in the next block and secured a large chisel. While he was gone the dealer advised Ung not to make a row, as he would make the matter all right. Ung told the dealer to mind his own business, and another quarrel ensued in which Ung was knocked down and beaten by the dealer and cashier of the game. The dealer states that Ung seized a big ink bowl to hurl at him and hit himself over the head. This story is rather thin; but if true is one of a few instances on record of a man knocking his own brains out. Wong, while coming back with his chisel was met in the hall by a crowd of Ung's friends and severely mauled but he made his escape to Tong Duck Chung's store and so saved his life.

BOARD OF TRADE.

The monthly meeting of the board of trade last evening was well attended. President Mackay and Secretary Arnold were present.

The minutes of previous regular and special meetings were read and approved.

A letter from the national board of trade asking the Portland board to co-operate in the attempt to secure the passage of a national bankrupt law was referred to the legislative committee.

Applications for membership were read from Wm. Dunbar, Watson, Wright & Co.; Brownsville Woolen Mills Co., I. D. Hunt[illegible] & Co., L. Epplinger, G. [illegible] & Co., Hegele, Crowell & Co., M. W. Smith, [illegible] Sears, Scofield & Tevis, Abraham, Hirstel & [illegible] and F. C. Woolsey. On motion, the rules were suspended and the secretary instructed to cast ballots in favor of the applicants.

Some weeks ago Wm. MacCann [illegible] Sons, of London, wrote the board asking it to pay them a liberal monthly sum for a circular they wished to publish, the purpose of the circular being to attract the notice of small foreign vessels to Oregon. The board declined the proposition.

Owing to the proposed opening of the Northern Pacific and celebration to take place here early next month, the time for holding the annual meeting was deferred until September 23.

On motion the board adjourned.

TUESDAY MORNING, AUG. 14, 1883.

JURY, BENCH AND BAR.

OLYMPIA, W. T., Aug 10, 1883.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Causes that brought about the shooting of Duke have their effect upon the people generally. According to the effect is the cause denounced or approved by the public. The public, as such, is a thing that is sometimes worth much and then again with it the cause easily wrecked upon. Often times these opinions are taken advantage of to denounce and ridicule a system or an institution, without knowing the causes of the wrong complained of, and without coupling cause with effect. I might say about [illegible]. But then the question may be asked, "What is the proper use?" The proper use of anything is that use which reason and experience have taught us to use the best, and we generally use a thing best when we use it for the purpose for which it was designed. Now then, for what was the jury designed?

1. To arrive at and decide disputed facts.
2. To place upon the people a fair and reasonable responsibility for the enforcement of justice and the maintenance of government.

The jury is in a sense the exercise of sovereignty by the people. It brings the government directly home, as it were, to the people. It makes them locally co-ordinate branches of the governing system, and you can't separate the jury and the judiciary without destroying a link in the chain of republicanism. All laws and the other dies, as a matter of course. I have read a great deal that has been written on judges, and none lately with more satisfaction than that appearing in THE OREGONIAN from Judges Deady and Burr.

I can, however, only agree with these gentlemen in part.

Much that has been complained of concerning the "jury" can, I think, with much reason be laid to the fault of the "bench and the bar."

There is always another side, and now let us audi alteram partem. This other side has its faults and is deserving of attention. Years of experience as a private practitioner, prosecuting officer and judge have brought me face to face with the weakness, wrongs and corruption on both sides. But it is only when this weakness, wrong and corruption is made public that moral sentiment becomes indignant, and resort is had to that "higher law." It has often occurred to me, when such occasions arise, would it not be well to let that "higher law" grasp a lawyer, a judge and a jury at the same time [illegible] the accused? Have we not in our [illegible] the court room of that solemnity, of that sacredness of character that were among the causes of its creation, and thus turned our houses of justice into a [illegible] forum and technical [illegible]. Justice is blinded and befogged; the jury brow beaten and bewildered; the witness is bulldozed and misled; the judge is vexed and annoyed, and while the wrong [illegible] the [illegible] clears away and the criminal escapes. Then who is? The lawyer is honest, the judge is sound [illegible] and [illegible] law, and the jury are either fools or dishonest. Now this jury has, perhaps, been selected because of their ignorance and want of integrity. This has been brought about by the attorneys, and may be examined [illegible]. The judge may not be directly a party to this travesty on justice, but in most cases, where such things occur, his indifference and technical quibbles have permitted justice to be strangled in her own house. That higher law, the law of justice and common sense must [illegible] stand in the court house, and must be [illegible] by the judge and supported by the bar. Have not the bench and bar contributed much to muddy and corrupt the stream of reason and justice? Of course, as the Duke and other such affairs are the exceptions I now simply compare the exceptions on the other side that the word [illegible] of both may be seen. But are not these exceptions becoming too frequent? How is it that the public is beginning to look upon the bar as dishonest, and ready and willing to take any side and enter into any scheme, no matter how corrupt, immoral or unjust, for money? Because in this age of money getting the end is money, and it is too often argued that the end justify the means. Is it not as proper to say "that the bar is deteriorating" as it is to say "the people are too corrupt?" The jury comes from the people and thus probably affects its origin. The jury is but an auxiliary to the whole machinery, or method of arriving at the execution of the law, and can be no more blamed for its non-execution than the bench and bar. Before the evils and faults of the jury can be remedied, the evils and faults of the bar must be stamped out. The bar must rid itself of the public odium that seems to be yearly growing upon it.

There was a time when the profession of the law was looked up to as combining all the qualifications of honesty, integrity, knowledge, experience, learning. But, like politics, it has come into disrepute and popular opinion is fast coupling it with all that is rascally and bad. Too many of the jury evils which are complained of have been inculcated and taught to the jury by the bar. The bar has lost sight of its profession, and it must purify itself.

Now-a-days every crank, every woolgatherer, who happens to be law struck, and punched in the head with a volume of Blackstone, is a lawyer. The name is too easily acquired. Look at the number of ignorant and irresponsible characters the profession contains! These characters, devoid of experience and education, without the necessary qualifications to pursue the profession as a science pertaining to the affairs of government, become the pirates of the craft, and are fast bringing the profession to ruin and disgrace. The bench and bar must free itself of such characters; must labor to make the profession what it was originally intended for, namely, by its learning, integrity and experience, a true science, aid the people and the government in a true and just interpretation and execution of the law, and from the tribunals established by law assist in the administration of right, reason and the prompt adjudication of the troubles, differences and disputes of the people. If the people are corrupt, then the bench is tainted with, because supplied by, that corruption. The people supply the bar and the bar supplies the bench. If, then, the bench and bar have knowledge and honesty, why not try and purify the polluted stream they complain of? Why blame the people for a fault that they have power to correct? Look into the ranks of the legal profession to-day and see the Augean stable. There was a time when it was among the most lofty of ambitions to be honored with the last title of "Lawyer." As I have said, it was evidence of learning, of trained study, of integrity and honest ambition. To-day it is, in the popular mind, trickery, knavery and ignorance and duplicity, to be shunned by the honest and the upright. Its power, and place of honesty and scientific study is usurped. The profession is looked upon to-day as means of plundering the wealthy and deceiving the innocent, so that every ignorant man who wants to ply his trade of handshaking [illegible] the "law" a cloak to practice his [illegible]. Such characters have nothing to lose and everything to gain by their knavery. The profession must purify itself. The motion to say "there is room enough at the top" while the bottom of the ladder is so polluted as to make it almost impossible to reach the top without being spotted. If the legal profession is overcrowded—and I maintain that it is—with men who have neither the learning nor [illegible] only to pursue it as an honorable pursuit, then it must lose its reputation and popular estimation. The ignorant and untrained not having the capacity to study and become acquainted with the principles and truths of the cases on which they profess, adopt dishonest, unlawful and corrupt practices, and the profession as a whole must bear the odium. These practices have their effect upon the people, and more especially upon the jury. The bench, bar and jury are three in one.

"They came in and must go out together." If one is rotten so is the other, and the whole need purification.

OLYMPIC.

SOUTHERN OREGON RAILROAD NOTES.

From the Jacksonville Times

Four dollars and fifty cents is being paid for two-horse and $7 for four horse teams to work on the Oregon and California.

A large number of Chinese are now passing through the valley, on their way to the Siskiyous to work for the railroad company.

The Cow creek tunnel is bored through solid rock, but it was found necessary to timber the draw creek tunnel nearly the entire way.

There are only three heavy cuts to be finished between the two large tunnels. These will be completed by the time the Cow creek tunnel is ready.

There is considerable of a cave in the Grave creek tunnel, and it may take some time to repair it. It is as much as a man can do to crawl through one end of it.

There will be some very heavy work in the vicinity of Louse creek, which may not be finished until some time in October. The trestlework there will be long and high.

The air compressors are in position at the north end of the Siskiyou tunnel and everything is being got in readiness for active operations. Boring will be commenced very soon.

The railroad extension is moving forward more rapidly than is generally supposed. Engineer Dolson expects to have 3500 men at work in the valley by the 1st of next month.

The Oregon and California railroad has filed in the office of the secretary of state maps of their last division of the extension south, embracing their line from near Ashland to the state line.

The sawmill at Julia is turning out a large amount of lumber for the railroad, most of which is shipped to Roseburg for the round house and other new buildings the company are erecting there.

It is said that the proposed railroad from Red Bluff, Cal., to Oregon, via Modoc county, is only a paper road, and that the California and Oregon Land Company, which owns the lands east of the mountains secured by the Oregon Military Road Company, is at the bottom of the scheme.

The railroad bridge across Rogue river will be put up about 100 feet below where Chavner's bridge now stands. A force of Chinese have already arrived and commenced getting things ready for the structure. Considerable trestlework will be necessary in that vicinity.

The Red Bluff Cause says the rails are now laid to Spring creek, about eight miles above Redding, and timbers are being taken to the front for the bridge over that stream. The bridge material is framed and fitted in the shops below, and when it arrives at the front is all ready for putting up, and the strong masonry piers made ready to receive the superstructure.

Immigration Statistics

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—The immigration association of California reports this evening the arrival of 1012 emigrants in this state during the week ending to-day. A large majority of the arrivals are Swedes. Next week members of the association propose making an examination of government lands in Sacramento valley, embracing parts of fourteen different counties.

Wong Shok Lee, president of the Hop Wo, Chinese Company, San Francisco, Cal., endorses the great pain-reliever, St. Jacobs Oil.

FOR PROHIBITORY LAWS.

PORTLAND, August 11.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

While reading the article entitled "A Prohibitionist's Ideas," we felt a little piqued that the writer should so boldly assert that the friends of prohibition never essayed to publish evidence to prove the efficacy of such laws in the sections where they had been in force, when we remember having read, only a few days since, in your paper, "A Woman's Views on the Temperance Question," wherein she, at least, made the effort to add an proof, from incontrovertible authority, that good, and only good, had resulted from the enactment of such salutary laws.

But we presume his worthy gentleman from Marion thought it hardly worth his while to waste his time in perusing a prosy article from the pen of "only a woman."

However, while we charitably forgive him (and if we have wronged him we are ready to be forgiven), we trust he will not read this little effusive article far before he discovers it is not written by one of the sterner sex, and then it is more than probable, out of the curiosity so natural to the lords of creation, he will not stop until he has read the closing paragraph.

But seriously, and right here my conscience tells me this is by far too serious a subject to joke about, evidence there is in abundance to prove conclusively that prohibition does prohibit.

It is notably true that those who argue to the contrary in bringing forward their proof seldom disclose the authors' name; and when they do, for fairness, probity and high-standing they are not to be compared with those royal names—many of whom our nation delights to honor—who come out early and boldly for prohibition, without waiting for public sentiment to be first lifted to their lofty standard.

These are composed largely of men of learning and wide experience—men who understand all the ways by which evil doers strive, and are often successful in breaking through the meshes of the statutory enactments, which are needed to restrain only [illegible] kind.

Right here it might be well to state that no one is so sanguine as to suppose that law will prohibit altogether the sale or use of intoxicants, any more than the laws against other crimes cause them utterly to cease; but surely it is not supposable that scores upon scores of law-abiding men will dare to ply their nefarious trade, with their antechambers of hell in full blast, both day and night, as now they do, when law says plainly and unequivocally they shall not. Then law is in itself an educator, a mighty moulding power, and its force, if not its benign influence, will, in time, penetrate, and it is to be hoped, elevate that element, which [illegible] has ever been but the bane of society.

But let us turn to the law and to the testimony, or as our brother from Marion says, let us have a little evidence that prohibitory laws have been and can be enforced.

The report of the attorney general of Maine for 1871 contains reports from the county prosecuting attorneys, as follows:

Cumberland—(Portland is in this county.) "I have met with no difficulty in prosecuting persons indicted for violations of the liquor law, which does not attend the successful prosecution of other criminal offenses."

Hancock—"There is hardly a town where public sentiment gives it any countenance; in no place is it ever sold openly."

Lincoln—"Several attempts have been made to open rum shops, but in all cases have they been [illegible] in the bud."

[illegible]—"Efforts put forth in the year past have been crowned with a fair degree of success."

Androscoggin—(Lewiston, with a population of 21,000 is in this county.) "Ever since the enactment of the liquor law, the faithful manner in which the same has been executed, has rendered this county not only an unproductive field for the rum seller to ply his trade, but also a dangerous one, so far as his personal liberty is concerned. There is not an open bar for the sale of liquors in operation."

The same may be quoted from other counties, but we forbear.

Governor Perham, in his message to the legislature, said:

"Other states have temperance men and women as devoted and as efficient as ours, but, having no laws to aid them, the success they desire is not attained."

Governor Nelson Dingley, Jr., said in 1874 to the commissioners of the Canadian parliament:

"All organized opposition to the law has died out. The city of Lewiston, (with Auburn) with a population of about 30,000, has not an open dramshop." Hon. William P. Frye, member of congress and ex-attorney of Maine, writing to Hon. Neal Dow, says: "I can, and do from my own personal observation, unhesitatingly affirm that the consumption of intoxicating liquors in Maine is not to-day one-fourth as great as it was twenty years ago; that the law of itself, under a vigorous enforcement of its provisions has created a temperance sentiment which is marvelous, and against which opposition is powerless. In my opinion, our remarkable temperance reform of to-day is the legitimate child of the law."

Strong testimony that, and it was indorsed and concurred in by the United States senators, Hon. Lot M. Morrill and Hon. Hannibal Hamlin; and also by members of congress, J. G. Blaine, John Lynch, John A. Peters and Eugene Hale.

Hon. Woodbury Davis, judge of the supreme court for ten years said: "The Maine law is enforced now far more than the license laws ever were."

Horace Greeley, after visiting the state, wrote to the Tribune substantially to the same effect.

We have proof before us from five different mayors of Portland, Maine, which unite in testifying to the grand results which follow the enforcements of the law in that city. Also, we can bring testimony from Judge [illegible] of the supreme court; J. H. Drummond, ex-attorney general; F. W. Rice, warden of the state prison; Hon. George G. Stacy, secretary of state; General Dyer, inspector general of the militia; H. [illegible] Goodman, judge of the police court of Bangor; Hon. Wolcott Hamlin, supervisor of internal revenue for Maine, and from a large number of other prominent men, who freely give their word of honor that these same things are true.

From Massachusetts like testimony comes from such honorable witnesses as Hon. Thomas Talbot, Governor Washburne, Hon. B. O. Putnam, Captain [illegible], Chief of Police W. J. May, District Attorney for Suffolk County John B. Goodrich, Gen. B. F. Butler, and many others, who were loud in their praise of the practical workings of the law—while in force. And when license again was permitted Governor Claflin said in his message: "The increase of drunkenness and crime is very marked and decisive;" and the chaplain of the state prison in his annual report for 1868, says: "The prison has never been so full as now. If the rapidly increasing tide of intemperance, so greatly swollen by the present wretched license law, is suffered to rush on unchecked, there will be a frightful increase of crime, and the state will soon have to enlarge the limit of the prison or erect another."

If time and the patience would allow, an unlimited amount of evidence could easily be here arraigned, from every other state so fortunate as to possess such wise lawmakers, even from every township, where local option has prevailed. But, believing that in this case, as in most others, prudence to be the better part of valor, we in mercy forbear.

W. C. T. U.

NOTES FROM OLYMPIA.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

OLYMPIA, W. T., August 11.

A few peals of thunder last evening and a few drops of rain.

Work on the new wharf is being rapidly pushed forward, so that before long we shall reach deep water.

The Olympia academy will be opened on the 10th of next month, under the auspices of the M. E. church.

Flies, wasps, mosquitoes, yellow jackets and all kinds of flying insects are in their glory just now, to the great inconvenience of bipeds.

The teachers' institute, which will convene in this city on the 21st inst., will probably be a very interesting convention, at least, the programme is a good one.

Rev. T. L. Eliot of Portland has been visiting here for the past few days, and preached at the Unitarian church to-day to large congregations both morning and evening.

The city council has made extensive improvements in streets and sidewalks during the past year, so that we are not now ashamed to have visitors come to see us.

Invitations have been extended by Mr. Villard to all the officials of the territory to be present at the driving of the last spike of the N. P. R. R. It is to be presumed that most of them will attend.

An extensive land case has been on trial during the past week, the property being located in Puyallup valley. From the number of witnesses to be examined it looks as if it would last all of this week.

Thos. McDowell, an old resident of this city, died during the past week. He served under General Taylor at Buena Vista and under General Scott at Vera Cruz, afterwards coming to this coast with General Grant.

Nothing is more needed in this city, and nothing would pay better, than a large hotel, especially during the summer season, when the place is "inundated" with visitors. A man with capital to invest in such a business would reap a large profit, and it is to be hoped that such a one will come this way.

The following officers of Tacoma lodge, No. 4, I. O. G. T., were installed on the 9th inst.: B. W. Davis, W. C. T.; Miss Rena Bagley, W. V. T.; Daniel Thurston, Secy.; Miss Kate Pearce, Treas.; N. Pattison, F. S.; Chas. Allan, Chap.; Miss Annie Pattison, R. H. S.; Miss J. McCarroher, L. H. S.; John Brewer, W. M.; Miss S. Sparks, I. G. The lodge now consists of eighty members, and expects to be the banner lodge of the jurisdiction before long.

On Saturday, September 1, a school election will be held in the city for the purpose of ascertaining whether the people wish to have a school tax of $5000 levied for the purchase of school property. It seems that Hon. M. Bunn has offered a most eligible piece of property for $4000, provided it be purchased for school purposes, and for the honor and credit of the town it is to be hoped that every taxpayer will consider it to be his or her duty to vote in favor of the tax, as no such favorable opportunity to acquire valuable school property will be likely to occur again for some time, and were the amount placed at $10,000 instead of $5000 it would be little enough for the capital of the territory to boast of. "It is much better to be a live dog than a dead lion."

The Antiquity of Man.

Anthropological Journal.

An interesting discovery, of much importance for geological and archæological science, has recently been made in a coal mine at Bully-Grenay, in the French department of Pas de Calais. A new gallery had been pierced, when a cavern was broken into, which discovered the fossil remains of five human beings in a fair state of preservation—a man, two women and two children composed the group. The man measured about seven feet, the women six feet, and the children four feet and rather less. In addition some fragments of arms and utensils of petrified wood and of stone, with numerous remains of mammals and fish, were brought to light. A second subterranean chamber inclosed the remains of eleven human beings of large size, and a large number of various objects, with some precious stones. The walls of the cave exhibited drawings representing men fighting with gigantic animals. Owing to the presence of carbonic anhydride a third and larger chamber, which appeared to be empty, was not searched. Five of the petrified human remains will be exhibited at the mayoralty of Lens. The remainder of the bodies which have been brought to the surface are to be conveyed to Lille, there to await a thorough examination by the experts of the Faculty des Sciences. Information has been telegraphed to the representatives of the Academie des Sciences of Paris, and to those of the British museum. If the discovery be a real one, no doubt can be entertained of the value of the find, which would on the face of it seem to show that prehistoric man is anything but a myth.

Death in a Mining Shaft.

SALT LAKE, Aug. 13.—This morning a miner named Samuel Prathers fell down the shaft of the Emma mine, at Alta, and was instantly killed. He fell a distance of 130 feet.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Eastern Oregon.

La Grande Record August 11: Twenty teams from the Short Line commenced grading on North Powder this week, and sixty more are expected by the fore part of next. Messrs. Thielsen, Mix and Kennedy left for that neighborhood on Thursday to decide on points of location. The officials say that work will be commenced in Grande Ronde as soon as the engineers have time to cross-section the line.

Union Record: S. [illegible] Center, superintendent of the Calumet Mining Company, has been in town during the week, making preparations for working the ledge and for viewing and opening a trail to the same. This great copper mine, which is doubtless the richest and most extensive ever discovered, is in the Granite range, about thirty miles east of Union, in Union county, and was discovered in 1879 by Antoine Morals, better known as Boston Raymond, a native of California. The company has secured the services of M. F. Holbrook, an old pioneer and practical mountaineer, to locate the trail, which will be via Catherine creek from Union. The company have done well in engaging Mr. Holbrook, as he is thoroughly acquainted with every hill and dale throughout that region. The work of developing the mine will be carried on energetically, the gentlemen having it in hand being thoroughly conversant with the work and satisfied as to the richness of the ore. Mr Center informs us that he daily expects eight or ten practical miners direct from Lake Superior, who will at once be put to work, and should the mine turn out as expected, at least 200 men will be employed there this fall.

Southern Oregon.

The soldiers at Fort Klamath have recently been reinforced by recruits from the east.

Quite a settlement has sprung up at each end of the long tunnel through the Siskiyous.

Josephine county is said to have but one church. That was erected many years ago by Catholics.

Sickness has abated at Phoenix, but is increasing in the neighborhood of Brownsborough. Diphtheria is more prevalent than any other disease, though the public health is comparatively good.

Peaches and plums are abundant in some portions of Jackson county, and are being sold at high prices. Ashland and Eden precincts have a good fruit crop, much of which is being disposed of at the Siskiyous. The demand is great everywhere.

Washington Territory.

The soda springs, 20 miles west of Yakima City, are attracting a large number of visitors.

The towns of Whatcom, Bellingham, Sehome and Fairhaven, are to be incorporated under the name of Whatcom.

A fine brick hotel, three stories high, to contain 100 rooms, is soon to be built at Port Townsend, at a cost of $50,000.

The citizens of Whatcom are trying to induce an association to furnish and prepare much needed cemetery grounds.

Whatcom county commissioners have appropriated $1000 to aid in building the draw bridge over Sullivan's slough, near La Conner.

About fifty Hydah Indians from British Columbia are camped on the bay at New Whatcom. They will spend the fall berry-picking and hunting.

The Port Ludlow mill, after lying idle for several years, will commence running about September 1, and will furnish employment for about eighty men.

Dayton, W. T., has expended within the past three years $10,000 in public school buildings and grounds. School will commence there September 9, with seven teachers in charge.

A man named O[illegible]man had his right clavicle and three ribs broken by the overturning of a wagon. He bled internally and was taken to Huntsville for treatment, but will doubtless die.

Chehalis Vidette: A large mill on Shaffer's island, near Peterson's point is now a certainty, and it is reported that one will also be built just across the bay from the island, on Payne's point.

Yakima Record: Judge Navarre and Colonel Prosser returned from the survey of the proposed irrigating ditch to run from the Selah canyon to the Lone Tree flats. The project was found to be feasible.

Benn & Gibson's cannery, below Cosmopolis, is now nearly ready for business, which will begin with the run of salmon to set in about the first of next month. Seven to [illegible] boats and two traps will be used.

The loggers on the Skagit have been putting in more logs this summer than ever before. Gage employs twenty-five men, and puts in from 25,000 to 40,000 feet of logs per day with his steam engine. He will soon replace the fir rails now used on the track with maple.

The Waitsburg school district contains 240 children of school age, girls predominating to the number of thirty-six; of children under four years old there are in the district seventy-one, of whom thirty-seven are boys. The gain in the juvenile population during the past year has been twenty-seven boys and six girls.

The following teachers will be employed in the Tacoma schools: [illegible] D. Robb, principal; Mrs G. J. R. Greer, Miss L. M. Cramer, Mrs. S. G. S. Davis, Mrs. Carrie V. Rice, Misses Wickersham, Sadie Fairfield and Emma [illegible], assistants. A lady residing at Albany, Oregon, has a conditional appointment as vice principal.

A party of 75 Chinese laborers arrived at Tacoma from Portland on last Thursday evening and were transferred to the steamer Emma Hayward for transportation to Seattle, where they will be engaged in cutting the canal connecting lakes Union and Washington. A larger party are on their way and will probably reach Tacoma this week.

On Wednesday of last week, while a train was passing over a trestle near Ellisport, on the Northern Pacific, James Bruce, a fireman, fell from his engine a distance of forty-five feet to the ground, breaking his left leg above the knee. He was immediately taken to the Northern Pacific hospital at Spokane Falls, where he is now under treatment.

A Walla Walla Union correspondent writes from Fort Colville the 10th inst: General Sherman and party left the west bank of the Columbia river, opposite old Fort Colville, yesterday morning at 6 o'clock. It is understood they will travel all the way to Fort Hope on riding animals. The general and party were in the best of health and spirits and expressed themselves as well pleased with the country and their trip.

Tacoma Ledger: A special from Seattle informs us that Harry, the ten year old son of Mr. D. S. Crockett, met his death under the following painful circumstances. It appears that Mr. Crockett is the foreman at Moore, Hall & Paulsen's furniture factory, and his son went there last Saturday. At noon Saturday as Harry was attempting to adjust a belt over the pulley, his hand became entangled in the belt and he was drawn over the shaft, which was making 140 revolutions per minute, and the unfortunate boy was literally torn to pieces. His head, feet and arms were torn from the trunk, and death resulted instantaneously.

A VOICE FROM THE PRESS.

I take this opportunity to bear testimony to the efficacy of your "Hop Bitters." Expecting to find them nauseous and bitter and composed of bad whisky, we were agreeably surprised at their mild taste, just like a cup of tea. A Mrs. Cresswell and a Mrs. Connor, friends, have likewise tried, and pronounce them the best medicine they have ever taken for building up strength and toning up the system. I was troubled with costiveness, headache and want of appetite. My ailments are now all gone. I have a yearly contract with a doctor to look after the health of myself and family, but I need him not now. S. GILLILAND,
July 25, 1881. "People's Advocate," Pittsburg, Pa.

The strike at the Woonsocket Company's mill, Providence, R. I., has ended, the weavers returning to work. They wanted 50 cents a cut, and their demands were granted. This is an advance of 12 cents per cut.

"My skin, which has been covered with scaly sores, has become clean, smooth and soft as a lady's. My hands were covered with little dry scabs. They have disappeared and I'm better than I have been for twenty years, using Dr. Benson's Skin Cure.—A. K. Noble, Selma, N. C., July 3, 1882.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY August 13.

The new calendar week opens with no better prospect than did last. As before mentioned, harvesting operations keep general trade backward.

Railway stocks to-day are off from one to six figures on the New York boards. Transcontinental and Oregon stocks are showing the most marked decline. Doubtless a still lower point will be reached before a reaction will set in. Transcontinental excites the most interest with us owing to the quantity held here. Western Union appears to be the leader of the break.

Freights are in no business, nor can much of anything be done until the wheat trade opens. The Grisedale was reported as under charter last week, and to-day the report is confirmed by her agents, who withhold particulars, further than she is taken for Liverpool direct. As she was offered this afternoon, it would appear that a recharter would be acceptable to some one. The Grisedale was the only disengaged iron in the river.

Wheat in no export business. Some common is jobbed out in small lots at $1 60 but shippers and millers are idle. Nor can business open until receipts increase and harvest is well ended. At Walla Walla 60 cents per bushel is offered, with but small lots being secured. Foreign markets to-day are firm, at slightly improved prices. It is thought that the present advance is not a healthy one, and that no good market can be looked for this month.

Flour and oats show no local changes.

Wool is in improved tone at the east, but values show no change. This is brought about by the woolen goods influence mentioned last week. The local market shows some little supply, and choice grades would doubtless bring 20 cents.

Chickens sell at $4 for spring, and $7 for old. Eggs bringing 27½ cents to-day.

Receipts past forty-eight hours have been 408 bbls flour, 403 ctls oats, 20 ctls millstuff, 97,810 lbs wool, 1039 lbs hides, 47 bxs eggs, 69 bxs fruit, 22 bxs butter, 190 bbls lime. Also 5098 ctls wheat, 103 bbls flour, 240 lbs wool, 2150 lbs hides, 5 bxs eggs from the eastern section.

The Columbia took out 105 sks (11,331 lbs) eastern Oregon wool, 92 sks (16,541 lbs) valley wool, 110 sheep skins, 18 dry 60 green hides, 181 flannels, 1 cs 2 bls blankets, 1 cs shawls, 5 cs cassimeres, 11 bbls ore, 4 rls leather, 3 kits salmon, 6,000 feet ash, 8520 ft maple, 119,160 lbs old railway iron, $5889 treasure.

SHIPPING MATTERS.

The Columbia sailed at 5:05 A. M. with 195 tons freight.

The steamship Great Eastern is soon to be employed. A company has been formed to purchase her who will put her into the coal trade between the Firth of Forth and the Thames. It is intended to carry 20,000 tons sacked coal each trip. The steamer has been kept in excellent repair and is now in good condition for business.

The State of California arrived at San Francisco to-day.

When baby has pains at dead of night,
Mother is in a fright—father is a plight:
When worms do bite, baby must cry;
If fever sets in, baby may die.
If croupy pains kill Leonora,
In that house there's no Castoria;
For mothers learn without delay,
Castoria cures by night and day.

A Newspaper Correspondent Assaulted.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—N. W. Fitzgerald, a member of a firm of pension claim agents which recently obtained considerable notoriety on account of sundry peculiar transactions [illegible], went into the office of the Commercial this afternoon and assaulted General Boynton, correspondent of that paper, while he was sitting [illegible]. The assault was brief, however, and his departure rather undignified; in fact, so hasty that he quite forgot to take his hat and spectacles with him.

A Veteran Newspaper Man.

OMAHA, Aug. 14.—Among the passengers to-day for San Francisco was Moncure D. Conway, the veteran American newspaper correspondent, as well as author, who is on a trip around the world. He has resided for twenty years in London. He is now devoting his time to a work on physiology, and will spend some time in India in studying the language of that country. He will also visit Australia and lecture on physiology. He is well acquainted with Emil [illegible], who, he says, is a great favorite in English literature circles.

The Anti-Music Party in Session.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 14.—The national convention of the anti-music party assembled this morning. Two hundred ministers and elders were in attendance.

GOVERNMENT INVESTIGATION.

President Telegraphers Testify Before the Senate Committee on Labor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The United States senatorial committee on labor and education reassembled to-day. J. McClelland, of the Brotherhood of Telegraphers, resumed his testimony. He said the estimated cost of the telegraph line for 20,000 miles would be $172,000; telegraph operators were generally young men and lived in boarding-houses; they naturally came from the better class of society. The morals of operators, as a class, had greatly improved within the last ten years, and this was one result of the organization which had been effected. Most of them were single, but some were married. Witness thought $60 was a reasonable estimate for food and lodging for a month for a single man. Only one in a hundred ever saved any money. The highest-paid operators did not receive enough to enable them to lay by anything for their support in old age. In 1870 the Western Union company required every man coming into its employ, to take an oath that he would never connect himself with a trade or labor organization. This was called the iron clad oath, and was administered to every person who took part in the strike of 1870. After the existence of the telegraph brotherhood was made known recently the Western Union superintendent issued a circular, which was sent to every employe of the company, forbidding him to connect himself with any organization under penalty of dismissal. A day operator worked from 8 o'clock in the morning to 6 o'clock at night, and had but two or three hours to devote to amusements. Night operators had more time at their disposal. No such thing as a vacation was known in the telegraph business.

WHEATSTONE OPERATORS.

Ostily, a telegraph operator of twenty years experience, has charge of the Wheatstone instruments in the Western Union office. He had been an operator in that system for ten years in Scotland. He came here about a year ago. The Western Union company gave him $— a month, it retaining to him the Wheatstone instruments should arrive. [illegible] operators would be paid as much as first-class Morse operators. On the 20th of last February it was announced that the Wheatstone system would be put in operation, and Wheatstone operators were told that their salaries would be $— a month. Operators on the other side were better paid, and they had a three weeks' vacation each year with full pay, and during sickness received half pay. After being a certain number of years in service, and their receiving [illegible], operators receive a pension for life—a pension of full pay—when he becomes superannuated.

OTHER WITNESSES.

Tallavall, an operator employed by the associated press, testified that the testimony of previous witnesses [illegible].

W. H. Orr, of Philadelphia, a member of the Brotherhood of Telegraphers, said the salaries paid operators in Philadelphia ranged from $30 to $90 per month. One of the objects of the Brotherhood was to establish a company on a co-operative system by which operators should own their lines, and thus be enabled to protect themselves against their employers. Evidence of the hostility of the Western Union company towards its employes was the systematic policy of reducing the salaries of its operators during the past ten years. Witness also testified to the practice of the Western Union in blacklisting men found [illegible] joining a union or association of operators.

Eugene J. O'Connor of Boston, gave statistics of the growth of the Western Union Company since 1866.

EDUCATIONAL CONVENTION

General Eaton's Remarks on School Policy—The Purpose of the Assembly.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., Aug. 14.—At the educational convention to-day a number of addresses were made. General Eaton, United States commissioner of education, in the course of his address said: The demands of war and the profit of peace have been made, for the sake of humanity, the value of education in its several phases in human life. Prussia and these [illegible] made this discovery. When the educated [illegible] the French army [illegible] the defeat of the [illegible]. The republic has learned the lesson. [illegible] for a dozen years past has not only [illegible] but has liberally expended [illegible] for schools.

Dr. Hartsell defined the purpose of the assembly. He said there was an educational crisis in the [illegible]. "We must have more education and it must be of the right quality. This assembly," he said, "is a platform in America from which the educational forces of all sections and creeds [illegible] in educational work. [illegible] Other organizations [illegible] the methods of government or questions of [illegible]. This assembly proposes to consult as to methods that would check the tendency to take [illegible] out of the schools."

Gould Scheming to Oust Villard—Stocks Still Falling.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—A prominent stock broker, speaking of the break in Wall street, said the trouble can be traced directly to Jay Gould, who is endeavoring to obtain control of Villard's stocks, consisting of Oregon and Transcontinental, Northern Pacific, and O. R. & N. Co. These stocks are said to represent an interest valued at $350,000,000. Northern Pacific and New York and St. Paul stocks have not been raised so as to affect their position. Northern, Lake Shore, Union Pacific, and a few others, have been run into, caused, it is said, by orders from the London market.

At the office of Fisk & Hatch it was said that low prices may have attracted orders from London. During the day Western Union has fallen about six points; Northern Pacific has fallen about 10 per cent, and, in fact, shrinkage is noticeable in all real dividend paying stocks.

It is rumored that Gould has been selling Oregon and Transcontinental from 75 down, and the present break is due to him, leaving the bears a sharp pressure against the market.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The excitement which prevailed in Wall street on Saturday reached fever heat to-day. The intervening Sunday gave people time to consider the situation carefully, and see how grave it really is. The great fall in stocks is, according to the opinions of the most conservative men here, not really at an end. Stocks have been bolstered up to an absurd degree, and until the present time only the small fry have been much hurt. The weakest spot, perhaps, in the whole market, after the Gould groups are eliminated, are the Northern Pacific and Oregon and Transcontinental, though every possible struggle has been made to keep them up. Henry Clews was asked as to the special meaning of the drop in Villard stocks, there being various rumors of trouble with some of the holders. He said: "I think the great trouble with the Northern Pacific and the Oregon and Transcontinental is that a part of the country has been growing too fast. It means that they have 3000 miles of road in a very scanty population, as against 6000 miles in New York state with a population of 5,000,000."

WESTERN UNION BREAKS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—In Wall street there were signs of returning confidence in stock at one time this afternoon, but shortly after 2 o'clock there was a savage attack on Western Union stock, it breaking four points, to 72½. The decline was due to "stop orders." Missouri Pacific also broke to 93, and other active stocks declined in sympathy. Towards the close Western Union rallied to 74½, and a firmer tone characterized the whole market. In final sales, however, Western Union ran off 74, and the general list lost a part of the improvement.

FAILURE OF G. W. BALLOU & CO.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—One of the sensations of the day was the failure of G. W. Ballou & Co. of this city and Boston. The failure is understood to have been caused by the inability of customers to make good their margins, and the fact that the firm has had considerable money tied up in the Cincinnati and St. Louis narrow gauge railroad, which recently went into a receiver's hands. About 10,000 shares of various stocks were closed out under rule for their account, including Oregon and Transcontinental, New York Central, Denver and Rio Grande, Missouri Pacific, Jersey Central, and Pacific and Lake Shore. There were reports on the street that leading operators had purchased large blocks of stock at private sale, at the office of Geo. Wm. Ballou. It is said they have no statements to make. They expect to resume in a short time. Up to the present hour deliveries are promptly in good supply at four on accepted collaterals. The share market is firm and less active. About 17,000 shares of stock have been closed out under rule for the account of G. W. Ballou.

The firm is composed of Wm. Bingham, board member; David H. Dowling, G. W. Ballou and Allen B. Weeks. No definite particulars could be obtained. The house did a large and extensive business, and its customers are principally bank presidents throughout the country, Boston capitalists and New England estates. A member of the firm said the trouble was merely temporary and the principal stocks carried by the firm were in Ontario and Western, Missouri Pacific and Western Union. He roughly estimated the liabilities to amount to between $400,000 and $500,000. Under the stock exchange rules relating to failures all of the stocks carried by the firm were sold at the exchange, and the price was not materially affected, but there was no end to rumors and excitement. It is said the failure will cripple several other large houses on the street.

THE CAUSE OF BALLOU'S FAILURE.

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—A prominent banker of this city said that Ballou's suspension was occasioned by the refusal of banks further to certify the firm's checks and that the embarrassment was possibly only a temporary one. The firm had been a large holder of San Pedro, Toledo, Cincinnati and St. Louis and Mutual Union stock; and suspension was due, in a large degree, to the decline in these shares.

THE GREAT STRIKE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The United States senatorial sub-committee heard John McClellan, member of the brotherhood to-day. All the gold and stock lines were cut this morning.

DORSEY'S STATEMENT.

He Makes Thirteen Charges of Corruption and Trickery Against Garfield.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The Sun prints a long interview with ex-Senator Dorsey, which is summarized as follows: Dorsey asserts, first, that Sherman was betrayed at Chicago; that the pretended surprise of Garfield's nomination was a sham, and that it was the result of a prearranged plan; second, that jealousy and ambition appeared at the very beginning of the canvass and showed themselves in the organization of the national committee; third, that it was at the earnest request of Garfield, Gov. Foster and Gen. Arthur that he (Dorsey) accepted the place of secretary of the national committee; fourth, that the rich bankers of New York were so dissatisfied and distrustful that they refused to contribute a cent until a so-called organization known as the finance committee, composed of those bankers, was formed; fifth, he is insured that Garfield, Arthur and all the republican leaders relied upon money to win the battle, and admits that a very large sum was raised and disbursed by those bankers; it was purely a money campaign; sixth, he asserts positively that Garfield bought the New York stalwarts' support by a positive promise to appoint Levi P. Morton secretary of the treasury; seventh, [illegible] the pockets of New York [illegible] a promise of [illegible] and the [illegible] with great [illegible] that a bargain was made between Garfield's representatives and Jay Gould and C. P. Huntington, by which Garfield promised to secure the appointment of Stanley Matthews as associate justice of the supreme court, and the two capitalists promised $100,000 to the republican campaign fund; that part of this money was paid, was brought to him in Indiana by C. C. Plack, and that he caused more than half of it to be sent to Ohio to be used by Governor Foster in the campaign there; ninth, he asserts that more than $400,000 was taken to Indiana by prominent New York bankers whose names he gives, and that this was used there to carry the day; tenth, he asserts that Garfield was most eager to have as much money raised as possible—so eager that he made the blunder of writing the Hubbell letter against his (Dorsey's) advice; eleventh, he asserts that the vast fund which was raised, between one and two million dollars, was a corruption fund; twelfth, he tells the story of a curious intrigue which led to the putting of James and MacVeagh in Garfield's cabinet, and asserts that it was Garfield's [illegible]; thirteenth, he asserts that Garfield was bulldozed by Blaine into appointing Robertson collector of the port of New York without first having notified the New York senators that such was his intention, and that this bulldozing took the shape of a threat to publish the details of the Stanley Matthews scandal unless Robertson's appointment was made.

THE APACHES AGAIN.

Colonel Bandola of the Mexican Army Shot from Ambush.

TOMBSTONE, A. T., Aug. 10.—W. C. Green arrived last evening from Bacoachi, Sonora. He brings the startling intelligence that Colonel Bandola of the 22d Mexican regulars, commanding the forces operating against the Apaches, was killed on the 3d inst. by the Apaches. The news was first brought to Oposura by a party of six Mexicans who came from Oposura. The news was confirmed by the Mexican custom house officers at San Pedro, who claim to have received particulars direct. It seems that about August 1st a band of thirty Apaches made an attack upon Oposura and killed four men. Col. Bandola, who was at Nacosari with sixty men of his regiment, upon receipt of the information, started immediately for the scene of the murder. In going through a canyon Colonel Bandola, who is represented to have been a bold, fearless man, was riding some distance ahead of his command in company with two aids, when they were fired upon from an ambush, at the colonel fell, two bullets piercing his breast and killing him almost instantly. His companions were also mortally wounded. The troops came up but the savages had disappeared. The next day three Mexicans were killed in the same neighborhood, and on the following day twenty-three horses were stolen from a band which George Woodward and Charley Wood were bringing up to stock their ranch on the line with. One of the boys shot and killed an Indian. This information is furnished the Epitaph by a trustworthy man, and is believed to be thoroughly reliable. The Apaches were moving south in the direction of the Mazatal mountains.

STRASBURG, Aug. 14.—Antone has written General Von Manteuffel with regard to a newspaper publication of which Antone had been forbidden that he (Antone) will maintain his paper in Alsace Lorraine in the face of all Germany. "Nothing is eternal," he writes, and he hopes General Von Manteuffel may live to see a reign of right over might.

SPAIN.

THE KING AND THE RECENT INSURRECTION.

MADRID, Aug. 14.—The review of the Madrid garrison to-day passed without any unusual incident, and the troops saluted the king as they defiled past. The King will shortly visit Barcelona, Saragossa and Valencia and other towns, and will review garrisons at those places. A colonel and ninety unarmed men have entered France at Port Vendres. It is supposed they are fugitives from Leo de Urgel. Many fugitives, soldiers and corporals from Badajos, presented themselves to the Spanish consul at Elvas, Portugal, to-day and asked pardon, stating they had been deceived.

MEXICO.

THE MUTINY IN SONORA.

HERMOSILLO, Aug. 13.—To-day's reports from Ures state that a number of soldiers have escaped. A government official says there are only fifty soldiers at Ures. General Topete, who left for the scene of mutiny, has not been heard from. Some thought the mutiny was the work of the ex-Governor Greta, but his friends here state that such is not the case, and that the days of revolutions in Sonora are over.

RICH NUGGETS FROM THE GOLD FIELDS

GUAYMAS, Aug. 12.—A five-pound gold nugget was brought from the gold fields yesterday, and another weighing two and three-quarter pounds. Reports say provisions are very scarce and the water is running low. Works for boring an artesian well will be established here by California parties. No mail has been received from the United States for the last three days owing to a washout on the Sonora railroad. The heat is 107 deg. in the shade. There is no rain here yet, but plenty in the back country.

RITUALISTIC VIEWS EXAMINED.

EAST PORTLAND, Aug. 13.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In your issue of August 11 I found a letter entitled "A Word from a Ritualist," and signed, "A Catholic Layman" wherein the writer says: "The present movement in the Episcopal church, in which figure largely altars, altar lights, genuflections and crossings, is a thoughtful, devout, determined and persistent attempt to restore the church to its original deposit of Catholic faith and accompanying Catholic practice." And after bewailing the "disintegration and sheer infidelity" which threaten to destroy the church, he adds: "The only breakwater against the incoming flood is the rock of the ancient Catholic verities, once delivered to the saints."

Now, sir, the sixth article of religion of the Protestant Episcopal church of America, reads as follows: "Holy scripture containeth all things necessary to salvation, so that whatsoever is not read therein nor may be proved thereby, is not to be required of any man, that it should be believed as an article of the faith or be thought requisite or necessary to salvation." Now, I should like "A Catholic Layman" to give me chapter and verse, or a "Thus saith the Lord," for the "altars, altar lights, genuflections and crossings, etc.," that he seems to think are so essential to a right worship of God. Will he please cite me to an instance when Christ or his apostles used them? It seems to me there was not much ritualism nor parade nor paraphernalia about the sermon on the mount nor St. Paul's sermons on Mars' hill.

The writer further says: "The truth is that, humanly speaking, there is no reason in the Christian religion." If by "Christian religion" we are to understand "altars and altar lights" and tawdry externals I heartily agree with him, but if he means that sublime system of religion taught in the Old and New Testaments I most emphatically disagree with him. God himself invites man to an exercise of his reason in judging the equity and justice of his claims upon him. In Isaiah, i, 18, he says: "Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord." St. Paul knew nothing of this unreasonable Christianity for we find Acts, xvii, 2: "And he reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath and persuaded the Jews and the Greeks." A pretty pass we have come to, indeed, if the source of all reason has provided us a system of religion, and in its acceptance asks us to cast aside or ignore one of the highest and noblest faculties we possess. But such is not the case.

The truth is, Christianity presented in its primitive simple form commends itself to the unbiased, unprejudiced reason of thinking men everywhere. It is only when it is disguised and disfigured with senseless trappings more fit for the theatre or the circus, that men turn from it with disappointment and disgust. [illegible] as well try to satisfy men's hunger with froth, as to satisfy their spiritual wants with such [illegible]. People come to church for bread. God forbid we should give them a stone. "A Catholic layman" expresses a hope that a preacher of the ritualistic religion may soon be found in Oregon. I hope that his hope may never be gratified. I would rather see Luther, Knox or Wesley, with the courage of their convictions, should arise up in our midst than all the ritualistic preachers the world has ever known.

WHEN SHOULD TIMBER BEST BE CUT?

PORTLAND, Aug. 14.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

A few months since, there was published in your paper an article upon the proper time for cutting of timber for various uses; that there was a proper time for cutting it when at such a time the wood was more durable and of more value. This is a very important item, and if such is the case it ought to be generally known and understood. I would therefore ask the writer of the former article, or any one who is acquainted or has had some experience in the use of wood for various purposes to give his opinion through the columns of your paper, stating the proper time when timber should be cut, in order to make it more durable; also, give his reasons why it is more durable if cut at such a time; also, the result of his observation or of any experiments which he may have tried confirming the fact.

On the whole it is a good one, a consummation that can be celebrated because it marks progress in the right direction. This is a new and reassuring fact in the politics of a state which has been notorious for its subserviency to the "machine."

A NEW INDIAN POLICY.

The Secret of the President's Trip to the Yellowstone—A Grand Powwow.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The Tribune's Fort Washakie special of August 8th says: The political object of the presidential trip and the character of the peculiar composition of the party came out to-day. Every effort has been made to have the public believe that this trip was a purely recreative one, with no underlying motives. General Sheridan has exercised his power not only to keep the press in ignorance, but, in order to do so more effectually, has summarily threatened and arrested citizens of the United States on the Shoshone reservation in order that there might be no witnesses to the extraordinary transactions of to-day. During all the time he has been in charge of the department of the Missouri, Sheridan has worked to secure the transfer of the Indians from the interior to the war department. In his every report he has strongly urged the impossibility of punishment so long as the Indians could make murderous raids from their reservations and escape the United States troops by returning thereon. He has shown how powerless the civil courts are to obtain either testimony to convict the guilty parties or even to discover them. He has held that only the absolute powers of the army to arrest the offenders on their reservation, to demand the prompt delivery of criminals and to mete out severest punishment will ever put an effectual end to Indian warfare. So far secretaries of the interior have been successfully upheld by the church in preventing the consummation of his schemes. At last he hit upon a new plan to attain his ends. He said he proposed to keep the matter a secret until it had been accomplished, but the Tribune is able to present to the country on the morning after its first discussion with the Indians, in spite of all the rigid precautions taken to prevent it.

A GRAND POWWOW.

All the Indians on the Shoshone reservation, now 2000 in number, were convened in grand council this morning to hear what message the "Great Father" had for them. The "Great Father," by the way, after a good night's rest and his morning toddy, was in excellent humor. Next to him sat the great chief of the Snakes, Washakie, and near by was Black Coat of the Arapahoes. The secretary of war reclined on a cushion from an ambulance, a silent but interested spectator. Gen. Sheridan flitted about as one thoroughly accustomed to such scenes. Long before the time of convening the dusky horde peered curiously at the powerful visitor, the squaws making many gestures of approbation of his stalwart form. When all was ready Chief Washakie lit the pipe of peace and handed it to the president. The latter drew a short whiff and passed the pipe over to Chief Black Coat. After the leaders had smoked to each other's eternal welfare Washakie spoke. He assured the "Great Father" of his perpetual friendship, of his long-buried hatchet and of the industry of his tribe. He then extended to his pale face visitors the hospitality of the reservation, with an abundance of fish and game.

EXPRESSIONS OF FRIENDSHIP.

Both Washakie and Black Coat made pertinent replies. They thanked the president for honoring them with a visit, avowed their purpose of living at peace with the white man and of adopting as rapidly as practicable their customs and manner of life. The Arapahoes' interpreter found no little difficulty in making himself understood. His efforts were greatly aided by Captain Clark of General Sheridan's staff, who has thoroughly mastered the beautiful, expressive sign language, which is the entire communication of the two tribes in their intercourse with the whites, and fully supplies the place of speech. Sharp Nose then brought forward an Indian pony. Placing the bridle in the hands of the president, he presented the handsome animal for the use of his daughter. Gifts of moccasins and leggings were presented also to the members of the president's party. Then followed a war dance, in which twenty young Shoshone braves took part. Some of the dancers were nearly naked, their aces painted in colors. Others were gayly dressed in flashy colored costumes, no two of which were alike. Some were ornamented with birds' feathers, and every sort of Indian ornament. The dance afforded much entertainment.

SHERIDAN'S SCHEME EXPLAINED.

The startling Indian policy of General Sheridan was then presented to the tribes. He proposed to do away with all reservations, agencies and agents. In place of the lands thus taken the government would issue bonds bearing interest the same as any other government bonds. These bonds would be issued in payment for all property lost and the interest paid semi-annually. Under this act the Indians would be obliged to take up homesteads and live on them, out of the bonds and the produce of their farms thus secured. Interest on the bonds would be payable at certain convenient forts by United States officials. In the same way the army is paid. This would effectually release the Indians from the control of the interior department and place them absolutely at the mercy of the department of war. There would be no agencies, but citizens would be protected by the existing lines of forts. General Sheridan claims that nearly all the Indian troubles of the past years have arisen through the corruption of Indian agents. Under his method the Indians would be held responsible as citizens and would be liable to both civil and military law in the district in which they reside. He claimed that the government would be benefited by the issuance of the bonds, and that the Indians would secure all that they do under the present system, and, in fact, the latter would receive more than they do now, as so much is absorbed in paying through different banks.

ADVOCATES OF THE NEW POLICY.

This policy has never been published before, but has been under discussion for some time by several prominent interested parties. The only member in the cabinet who had been taken into the discussion is Secretary Lincoln. The object in leaving out Secretary Teller is obvious. General Crook was recently taken into the council and expressed his warm approval of the plan. Secretary Lincoln is in hearty sympathy with the affair and President Arthur, though apparently non-committal, will do all in his power to push it. Two hundred thousand Indians now occupy 100,000 square miles of our territory. If the government appraises that land at an average of 50 cents per acre it will be necessary to issue only $64,000,000 in bonds, the interest on which, at 4 per cent, would be $2,560,000 annually. The attitude of the cabinet toward the transfer of the Indians to the war department is obvious. It will be remembered that when Crook returned from his last campaign he asked Teller's permission to place the Apaches on the San Carlos reservation under military control. The latter absolutely refused. Crook went to Washington, and, after a council with the president, Secretary Lincoln and General Sheridan, was ordered to put the Indians on the reservation under military control in spite of Teller's protest. The new policy will be presented to all the Indian tribes before congress convenes.

Pilgrim Knights Gathering.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—The streets are beginning to show an increase in population, and knights are now arriving in numbers. The headquarters of the triennial committee on Montgomery street have been enlarged, to make room for visitors seeking information. Chief of Police Crowley has detailed officers in citizens' dress to take such care of visiting knights as it is possible to bestow. It has been decided that knights can wear their swords at religious ceremonies on Sunday next. The rumor that the Hawaiian band is infected with leprosy is again denied. Several prominent knights pronounce the report as a cruel falsehood. Five hundred and fifty knights have registered their names at the triennial headquarters, representing about one-fourth of the visitors already arrived. Work at the pavilion for the great ball next Thursday is being rapidly pushed forward.

Freight for the Northwest.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—Special.—The freight movements for the past week show a large increase in sailing cargoes at fair rates especially for Seattle and Tacoma. The bulk of these shipments consist of hardware, stores and general groceries, and are wholly confined to articles of local manufacture. The schooner Buena Vista, which sails for Seattle on Saturday, and which commenced receiving freight this morning, has already assurances of full freight, and will be followed by the ship City of Brooklyn. The steamer freights continue active, with a falling off in eastern imports. The laying up of the Queen of the Pacific has necessitated considerable night work, over with the substitution of the Victoria. The State of California, sailing to-morrow, will have a good freight list.

Pacific Coast Exportations.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The revival in the exportation of lumber to foreign ports continues, with occasional new charters for new points. In Australia especially large commercial ports have developed an important trade, which very recently has extended to smaller coast towns. The schooner Excelsior, now loading for one of the latter, is to be followed by the barken tine John Smith, which has been chartered to load lumber at Port Blakely for Townsville, on Cleveland bay, a small town of about 2000 inhabitants. The Mexican trade is slightly off, though an experimental shipment of coal goes out next week. Shingles are being shipped to New York and other Atlantic ports in large quantities, with occasional shipments to Central America. The question of shipping Oregon fir to the east, to be used for car building, is still being considered.

Will Not Sail for a Cargo of Coolies.

[Special.]—The telegram published in a Portland paper relative to the sailing of the British steamer Wellington from Hongkong, with the object of bringing over coolies for the mine at Wellington, B. C., is made out of whole cloth. Since the commencement of the strike at the collieries the steamer has been lying at the Pacific street wharf, preparatory to going into the stream until the trouble at the mine will be at an end. According to a party in the employ of her owner, the statement that she was in berth for Hongkong is nothing more than a bluff to influence the action of the miners. The stock of the above coal is exceedingly reduced; so that but for the fact that the steamer Barnard Castle is due to-day the supply would be exhausted in a very short time.

Civil Service Applicants.

Civil service applicants to the number of forty-seven, including one lady, appeared to-day before Judge Thoman, United States civil service commissioner, and his associates. Three sheets of questions were presented, most of the questions being ordinary, common school ones. Some of the applicants finished their sheets in two hours, others required five hours for being ready with answers. The present is the lower grade examination, the higher grade being held at the state department, Washington. Those answering 65 per cent. are eligible to appointment.

The Telegraphers' Brotherhood.

The Brotherhood of striking operators continue to hold meetings. They express themselves still confident, although disappointed at the Grand Opera house benefit not netting as large a sum as was supposed, the amount realized being less than $2000. It is reported this evening that several striking operators at eastern points have signified their intention of coming to California and have offered their services to the company. Opinions expressed among the telegraphers of this city are to the effect that the position of the strikers is becoming each day weaker.

A THWARTED SCHEME.

An Eastern Confidence Man Endeavors to Fleece San Francisco Merchants

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—About three weeks ago a circular was issued by a party signing himself J. S. F. Lewis, calling attention to certain coal deposits in the vicinity of Seattle, which were stated to be in the hands of capitalists for final transfer and they were to be worked on the joint stock principle. Those desirous of investing were invited to correspond with the above individual by addressing their correspondence to the postoffice here. The absence of an office or even a letter box to which the correspondence was to be addressed gave rise to suspicion that the aforesaid Lewis was doing business in a somewhat delicate manner. A decoy letter was mailed by a gentleman requesting Lewis to meet the author at the Merchants' Exchange at a certain hour for the purpose of gaining information about the extent and exact location of the alleged coal deposits represented or owned by him. Punctually at the appointed hour the parties met, he finding an OREGONIAN correspondent.

LEWIS MAKES A GLOWING STATEMENT.

Lewis, who claimed to be a resident of New York, but very recently of Seattle, gave a glowing description of the country, and assuring his auditor that the location represented by him had millions in it, produced a letter from another party, who, he said, was editor of the Seattle Bulletin. When the gentleman who had made the appointment inquired if he was not mistaken about the name of the newspaper he referred to, he answered quickly, "Oh, no, I quite frequently write for it; in fact, I write for most all of the northern papers, off and on, of course." Resuming the thread of his discourse, Lewis told a number of other impossible stories, and when asked for references grew quite indignant, and started to go. Returning, he more coolly added that his knowledge of the country was extremely limited, and he was merely advertising certain properties owned by a friend, and that he would leave for the east on the following day. It appears that Lewis has made several attempts to induce merchants to consider his proposition, without success.

CONCERNING WHEAT

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In your editorial of this morning on the wheat harvest, you assume a few propositions, which if possible of attainment, would be very gratifying to all concerned, but as they are only "father to the thought," I wish to say that from a very extensive examination of the wheat of a great portion of eastern Oregon and Washington Territory it is very far from equaling the average of the splendid wheat year of 1881. When you consider that the country east of the Cascades has been a hundred days without rain during the critical formative period for grain, in a naturally dry country, it is not to be expected but this long season of drouth would have its effect in pinching a great deal of wheat in peculiarly exposed points and late sown. There is scarcely any grain from east of the Cascades but might be plumper, and while the quality averages fair, it does not in commercial valuation by a 6d per quarter, average to that of 1881. You also say that sanguine now on the way, it is hoped, will almost extinguish the difference between the product of the Willamette valley and that of eastern Oregon and Washington.

So long as one section raises absolutely white wheat and the other the peculiar yellow wheat, such an extinguishment is impossible. It is in the genesis of the wheat that to-day's quotation of valley is 48s. 6d. and Walla Walla 46s. 6d.—a difference of $2 per ton; or 6 cents per bushel; and nothing short of such a [illegible] can remove it.

I do not say this of Walla Walla wheat to decry it at all; but being engaged in wheat buying in Eastern Oregon and Washington, what can a party do the ground say to such an authority as THE OREGONIAN? Jove from high Olympus is not higher in regard among the lesser gods than THE OREGONIAN is to the masses of the interior; and whatever it says editorially is regarded as the fiat of the omnipotent. But what you have stated regarding the quality of wheat as compared with 1881, as well as the remarks as to comparative value needs revision; and I take the liberty of constituting myself an "economical" one, all to say how much that you have stated is not inspired.

We had no comfort with him, it was as much as we could do to take care of him, and he suffered so. We began to treat him when he was 18 months old, giving him at first ten drops of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT at a time, bathing in warm water and CUTICURA SOAP, and applying CUTICURA carefully to the entire body. He is now 2½ years old and perfectly well. We have not written before because we thought it might appear again; but it has not, and we are very thankful.

WEDNESDAY MORNING AUG 15, 1883.

THESE DEGENERATE DAYS

It is a common notion that political life is now much more corrupt than in earlier times. Many encomiums are bestowed upon political life as it was "in the purer and better days of the republic," when rings, lobbyists, peculators, jobs and jobbers were not. To large numbers the thought never occurs that this is a picture of the imagination. Corrupt as political life now is, it is actually purer than it was in those "better days." True there are more opportunities for wrong-doing now, but there is also more watchfulness. Upon every phase and movement of political and official life a fierce light now beats and beats incessantly. Nothing can hope to escape it. Of this there are two consequences. First, wrong-doing is diminished, and second, all or nearly all the wrong doing that exists or occurs becomes known. No malfeasance, misfeasance or nonfeasance can hope to escape exposure and denunciation.

When it is noted that around every legislative body there is a crowd of lobbyists the remark is often made that in those better days it was not so. Perhaps it is well to feel that there was a time when legislation was free from undue influence and corrupt solicitation, since it may keep before the mind an ideal good which there should always be an effort to approach, but, in fact, the notion that representative or parliamentary government, since its development as the sovereign power has ever been free from it, is a delusion which any inquiry into history will dispel. Not to go to British parliamentary history for proofs and illustrations we may find more than enough to establish the point in the early history of our own congress in those self same purer and better days of the republic. Upon the very foundation of our government and even during the administration of the father of his country, undue influences were brought to bear on members of congress and members of the administration and if the scandals pertaining thereto did not produce the stir throughout the country that more recent scandals have done, it was chiefly because few people in those days could find such things out. Shortly after the commencement of the present century a senator from Ohio was expelled for corrupt practices which seem to have been proven against him and at more or less frequent intervals ever since, congress, the capital and the country have been startled by allegations, and often by proofs, of corruption against prominent officials. Many of the most widely known men of the time, if tradition speaks truly, were in the pay of the English tariff lobby in 1824 and the succeeding years. Many readers of the present day will still remember the great "Gardner frauds" in connection with claims growing out of the Mexican war, and the seemingly substantiated statements that a secretary of the treasury had profited by the swindle. This Gardner scheme had a prodigious lobby behind it. Again about thirty years ago there was a most powerful lobby in the interest of the Collins steamship line. Its operations, if repeated now would be deemed most scandalous and disgraceful to the whole nation. A great steamship gorgeously fitted up, and said to have cost upward of $1,000,000, was sent to Washington and for two days a most lavish entertainment was furnished to members of congress, members of the cabinet and influential politicians. Even the president himself was present. These incidents though many others might be collected will serve to show that corruption about the capital is not a practice exclusively of these later and supposed degenerate days.

Again as to social and official scandals which often run together and are parts of an offensive and nasty whole, where in these later times has there been anything comparable to the affair of Mrs Eaton in Jackson's day? Margaret O'Neill was the pretty daughter of a tavern-keeper in Georgetown. At an early age she married a man named Timberlake, a purser in the navy. After a few years he died. It was believed by suicide. Stories derogatory to his wife's good name were reported to have been the provocation of the rash act. After a little time she married Mr. or Eaton of Tennessee, a close friend of Gen. Jackson. Eaton was soon afterwards elected senator from Tennessee, and a few weeks later by reason of Jackson's clannish friendship, to which the same quality in Gen Grant bears a remarkable resemblance, Eaton was made secretary of war. But the ladies of the cabinet refused to call on Mrs Eaton. President Jackson took the matter up in her behalf, resolved to force her social recognition. The cabinet was divided into two opposing factions and the line of division stretched down, as a recent review of her life states it, through both houses of congress and extended throughout the entire country. On one side there was every effort to despite Mrs Eaton, and on the other [illegible] was a "game" almost or quite without parallel among all the social position contests and scandals that have ever occurred. It broke up the cabinet, as Gen. Jackson actually made recognition of Mrs. Eaton's highest social position a test of [illegible] office and of favor with the administration. Mr Van Buren, most smooth and politic of men, by the address and success with which he promoted the president's wishes in this matter, earned the lasting gratitude and support, and to this circumstance Van Buren actually owed his elevation to the presidency as the next successor to Jackson. It would be impossible now to re-enact at Washington a social drama like this, with its absurdities and scandals. The land would ring with it, and the actors in it for decency, if not for shame, would be forced to hide their heads. The history of the affair is an incident among many others which shows that the proprieties of public life at the national capital were not so fully regarded in former times as most critics of the present day are accustomed to represent. The comparison on the whole is in favor of the later administrations.

The vigilance and activity of the press now keep before the public mind a record which creates the impression that political and official life is exceptionally corrupt in these days. The difference is that there is publicity now where formerly it was wanting. Every newspaper keeps its agents upon the watch with instructions to report everything fully by telegraph. Formerly it did not occur to the public that jobbers and lobbyists were at work, but now the public every day is furnished with the names of these "operators" and with detailed accounts of the schemes they have in hand. The old observation that there were heroes before Agamemnon but that their names have perished because there was no poet before Homer may be modified to meet this case. There were jobbers, lobbyists, peculators and the whole modern gang of contrivers and corruptionists, long ago, but it is only within comparatively recent times that means have existed for spreading before the whole people everything attempted, said or done every day.

The suggestion with reference to the pioneer's excursion made by Mr. S. C. Adams in a communication which we print to-day is a practical one. It seems to us that Mr Adams' idea would operate to the advantage of both the railroad company and the pioneers. However as the offer of a special rate to pioneers is purely complimentary, it seems a little greedy to insist upon terms, which we do not understand Mr. Adams to do. It is to be hoped, however, that Mr Villard will make some modification of his offer which will suit the convenience of the pioneers who cannot avail themselves of his generosity at this time.

In California there are 222,840 school children. Of these 68,061 are in San Francisco. The amount of school fund distributed this year is $569,960.

THE EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS

Many school districts throughout the country are engaging teachers for the coming year or for the fall term, and there is an the part of applicants great anxiety with reference to the examination for certificates. Our system of examining teachers is fundamentally wrong. An applicant is given a list of questions to be answered without the opportunity of investigation, and if he fails on a specified low per cent of the list the right to teach in the state schools is denied. As a rule, the questions are technical ones, upon which even thorough scholars and experienced teachers may trip while there is no examination with reference to the broad qualifications which may be of greater importance in a teacher than an off hand knowledge of formulas. In fact, an off hand knowledge of rules is not one of the important qualifications for successful teaching. The teacher with books always before him does not need an exact knowledge of rules, but rather thorough understanding of general principles with tact for explaining them clearly. The text-books supply the technicalities. Just as a mother may be able to teach her child very clearly that it is wrong to lie without herself knowing the chapter and verse or even the exact words of the express command, so an instructor may be able to teach clearly the various school branches without that ready and minute knowledge which will enable him to secure a high grade certificate. Our system seems to be designed to find out what the applicant does not rather than what he does, know. In this effort, apparently the questions which applicants must answer are kept profoundly secret. The gauntlet must be run blindfolded. This sort of examination often lets in the glib "smart Aleck" and rejects the scholar. In its stead we should have an examination devoted to general principles and the applicant should be allowed to know in advance just what is required of him. The general intelligence and tact or their lack, contained in his answers should have weight in determining his qualifications. This system would require better examiners than are usually employed, but fortunately such are easily available.

CLATSOP PLAIN

The first agricultural settlement in Oregon, we believe, was on Clatsop Plains, just south of the entrance to the Columbia river. From the pioneer town of Astoria a few settlers found their way to the stretch of rolling prairie by the ocean, and from that time till now it has been the seat of a fairly prosperous agricultural industry. Clatsop Plain is about twenty miles long, north and south, and varies in width from one to two miles. Its soil is a light loam and sand, easily cultivated and highly productive. Its climate is the ordinary climate of western Oregon in winter, with a constant moisture in summer, which keeps its pastures always green. Everywhere it is well watered and timber in abundance borders the eastern margin. The chief industry of Clatsop Plain is that of butter and cheese manufacture. In no locality in the world are the conditions for dairying more fortunate than here. An unfailing verdure, a cool and equable climate, rich native grasses, abundance of pure fresh water, nearness to market, all the conditions are here in perfection and all made highly valuable by constant demand and high prices for dairy products. But with all these advantages, Clatsop Plain is only fairly prosperous. It could easily support fifty cows for every one which now grazes upon it. Satisfied with well enough the people live along in a quiet way and allow the finest opportunities to pass unimproved. An infusion of enterprise into the strip by the sea would make it one of the richest localities in Oregon.

Dorsey makes a further pretended revelation trying to stain the name of Garfield with dishonor. It really makes little difference what a thief inspired by malignity and seeking revenge may say. From Dorsey's own statement it is to be inferred that he was an active and trusted agent in all the iniquities he now professes to reveal. Even if his story were true to the letter, he would be about as estimable a person as Carey the Irish informer or Owensby of Dayton W T. The main part of his story in so far as it relates to Garfield, is the accusation that Stanley Matthews was appointed to the supreme bench in pursuance of a corrupt bargain—a story that no one could possibly accept as true. Think of any candidate for the presidency compromising himself by such a bargain! The supposition is simply impossible. As for money for the campaign doubtless a good deal was raised. Both parties do as much of that sort of thing as they can. No doubt the Democrats had more of it in 1876 when Tilden was their candidate than in 1880 when Hancock was their candidate. They are now talking of taking Tilden again chiefly for the reason that he could put money into the contest. Nothing could be more reprehensible than the conduct of both parties in this particular, but probably it will ever be useless to protest against it. Certainly no one expects that either party in the coming Presidential contest will let any chance slip of getting all the money it can and putting it where it will do the most good. Ideal simplicity and purity unfortunately are not the controlling forces of our politics. Were they so and had they been the scheme of buying a Republican elector in Oregon in 1876 would not have been attempted. Dorsey would not have been in Indiana in 1880 with a corruption fund and Hoadly would not have expended $60,000 to get his nomination in Ohio a few weeks ago.

Arrangements are now nearly complete for beginning the work of sluicing out St. Helens bar. The collier Walla Walla which has been unloading here for several days, is expected to go down to-morrow and operations will begin as soon as anchors, etc., can be placed. The width of the bar is 1200 feet and it is proposed to swash a channel twenty feet deep at low water, 200 feet wide at the upper end and 150 feet wide at the lower end. For this work the government will pay $2500 and the board of trade $1500. The cost of the work will be about double this amount and it will be sustained by the O R & N Co. Before the arrival of the Northern Pacific party the difficulties of the St. Helens bar will have been overcome.

In accepting the grand marshalship of the demonstration to be made here upon the completion of the Northern Pacific, Gen Morrow has taken a great burden upon himself. This our people ought to appreciate. He can have no possible personal interest in the affair outside of its legitimate purposes, and accepts it rely as a compliment to the citizens of Portland. There should be perfect willingness to respond to his demands. All societies and all branches of industry should turn out without waiting to be urged. The demonstration ought to be the most imposing and the most representative which the northwest has ever seen.

The Philadelphia Times characterizes McDonald's presidential prospects as a "lost presidential boom." McDonald spent the best part of last winter in Washington developing his "boom." He refused to talk to newspaper men, but succeeded in "setting up" in his interest a good many leading democrats principally free traders. But a few prods from the "old ticket" lance have let the air out of the McDonald bubble and it has gone where the woodbine twineth. Only old Sammy will have no setting up behind his back whether he wants a place for himself or for some one else.

The earnings of the Northern Pacific during the month of June last were $464 for each mile of completed road. Compared with the earnings of such roads as the Illinois Central—$676—and of the Chicago Milwaukee and St Paul—$447—the showing is quite remarkable. The Pennsylvania earned $2018 per mile and the Philadelphia & Reading $1802. In the southern states there are few roads whose earnings were over $500 for the month.

Congressman Blackburn of Kentucky, he of the sanguinary type of statesmen, has a great programme laid out for the next Congress. He will insist on cutting down the tariff one-half, abolishing the internal revenue system entirely and reducing public expenditures to the lowest possible ebb. He also wants $25,000,000 for improving the public schools of the South and full appropriation for the Mississippi river.

The decline in the Villard stocks is a jobbing scheme, of course and Gould is at the bottom of it. There can be no possible business reason for the decline. The earning capacity of the Northern Pacific already very great is about to be greatly increased by the completion of the line, while its "backing" of lands soon to be fully earned, is becoming more valuable each month.

William E. Gladstone, during the war for the Union invested £20,000 in confederate bonds. Mr Gladstone has always figured as a friend of the Union, but he couldn't have prayed very hard for northern success after he got those bonds.

It is not probable that Dorsey's amended fabrication will obtain more credit than his original ones.

THE PIONEERS' EXCURSION

To the Editor of The Oregonian

In taking up the Northern Pacific railroad in its then paralyzed condition and prosecuting that gigantic enterprise to successful completion, Mr Villard has exhibited the ability of generalship, far more worthy of praise and honor than that of the celebrated and bloody warriors of history. Instead of carrying desolation and ruin and death in all paths as the latter did he has opened up a national artery of commerce of industry and of wealth. The benefits and blessings of this great enterprise will redound to the pioneers of Oregon, and to their children after them as much as to the constructors, or those of this great and expensive work. The pioneer world was fully equal to that of those who crossed the plains with mules or oxen to find a new home and better their condition in the wilds of Oregon. And pioneers in their respective departments they stand upon an equal footing. The obligations of the one are balanced by the obligations of the other. Neither party should assume the position of stranger to the other. But, as I understand it, Mr Villard desires to extend an honorable favor to the early pioneers of Oregon.

The pioneers do not supplicate a privilege as mendicants but the great general of this grand work desires (or is willing) to recognize the toil and sacrifice of the first settlers, by extending to them a special privilege which would be creditable to the one and gratefully acceptable to the other. A free ride over the great road, or at reduced rates would be a very natural way of extending such favor. But a favor surrounded with embarrassing or annoying conditions, is no favor, and is unacceptable to me. I would much rather not go at all than be compelled to go on a visit when I am not ready, or have no desire at that time to go. That both of these necessary conditions to a desirable visit to the states will happen simultaneously and at any one date with the pioneers of Oregon is absolutely impossible. With a very small per cent of such excursionists these conditions will be favorable, and they will enjoy the trip, but with the majority, and who will go to get the benefit of the reduction, albeit they were then not quite ready nor very anxious, the trip will be a disappointment and a source of regret. But both of these classes will not represent a tithe of the old pioneers in Oregon whose circumstances will not permit them to enter in though, of going east at any designated time and though just as deserving of a complimentary notice and favor their claims and opportunity is forever barred.

This leads me to say that, while I have no desire to dictate or complain in the least, I cannot but think that if Mr Villard had been pleased and desired to extend a complimentary recognition to the work of the pioneer of Oregon that something like the following would have been highly creditable to him and not more expensive to him and far more satisfactory to the pioneers. Let him select such year as he pleased (say 1850) prior to which the initial grants should be regarded as pioneers, or let him accept those as pioneers that the association has accepted as such and then let him announce that all such persons as wish should present a certificate of identity of the Pioneers Association could obtain a return ticket and from St Paul (or other point) at one quarter, one-third or two-thirds fare at he might designate at any time before death. This would have required no extra train and as his trains will be running continuously it would have involved no extra expense to the company whatever. Each pioneer could go by immigrant or by first class train, according to his means and could go when he was ready and at the option which would give to the trip all its pleasure and all its satisfaction.

This proposition is so fair and honorable to the parties and so relieved from stifling and red tape restrictions that argument is useless. On these terms enough of pioneers would go at one time before their death the will go at the full rates or on the [illegible] excursion to more than take up the lost the company by the reduction in fare. And they would give one twelfth of fares so that no extra cost or extra expense to the company would be required. While hundreds will myself or complete the present intended free or preferring to pay all fare at such time as we may want it and can enjoy it. I trust to the possibilities of future excursions every true pioneer of Oregon will ever hold the name and greatness of Henry Villard in most kindly and grateful remembrance.

[illegible] THE RIGHT OF WAY.—The default entered against the defendants by the county clerk in the [illegible] of the Northern Pacific Terminal Company vs. [illegible]smith & Lowenberg in the state circuit court, [illegible] yesterday ordered set aside by Judge Stearns [illegible] court. The motion of the plaintiff to strike the demurrer from the files was overruled, and [illegible] overruled the demurrer itself and [illegible] to the defendants to file an answer. The [illegible] then moved to strike out this answer, [illegible] that was also denied. Another motion, to [illegible] was allowed [illegible] the case came up for trial, Judge Stearns [illegible] the plaintiff and Henry [illegible] attorney for the defendants. A jury was empaneled as follows: John W. Scott, W. K. Watson, C. Gentleman, [illegible] W. T. Brewer, J. I. Fisk, John Eppinger, Thomas Gordon, [illegible] Sullivan, A. M. [illegible], [illegible] Kennedy, James Short. The trial of the case occupied the greater portion of the afternoon, but [illegible] given to the jury before adjournment, and after [illegible] minutes' deliberation, they returned the following verdict: "We, the jury in the above-entitled [illegible], and the issues therein in favor of the plaintiff, [illegible] that the plaintiff is entitled to have and appropriate the land in the complaint described for [illegible] purposes of its railroad and for the [illegible] security and convenient operation thereof [illegible] damages and [illegible] [illegible] by the defendants at $500." This is [illegible] what the plaintiff [illegible] [illegible] and the same awarded to the defendants [illegible] is just what the company offered to pay [illegible] It safe to say that the matter will not rest here, [illegible] because the amount of damages given is [illegible] to the defendants, but also because [illegible] the conflict of authority between the state circuit [illegible] and the United States circuit court, as heretofore mentioned in these columns, Judge Deady of [illegible] United States court, still adheres to his declaration that any judgment given by the state court will [illegible] and the defendants will get out an injunction as soon as the company attempts to take possession of the land.

[illegible] OF THE CITY.—Instead of the present [illegible] of the city whisky case being that Judge [illegible] has a motion for a new trial under advisement [illegible] motion has been refused and the delay in [illegible] the ordinance is because the city attorney [illegible] has neglected to ask for a judgment [illegible] the verdict rendered in the city's favor. [illegible] is not a man who cares much what is said [illegible] him in the newspapers, but yesterday he fel[illegible] [illegible] at THE OREGONIAN for having said [illegible] he had the motion for a new trial in the liquor [illegible] under advisement. [illegible] [illegible] and that the defendant [illegible] signed [illegible] in the hands of the county clerk [illegible] [illegible] intention of carrying the case to the supreme [illegible] The reporter who was responsible for the [illegible] mentioned above defended himself by the [illegible] that the last entry upon the court record [illegible] the case had been taken under advisement. [illegible] of the record showed that the reporter [illegible] right and that through a slight error the entry [illegible] of the judge had not been entered [illegible] on the part of the city attorney, who should furnish this entry to the clerk [illegible] a judgment. Until this is done [illegible] The entering of a judgment would compel the defendant to give notice of an appeal since an [illegible] to his bonds sufficient to cover the fine and al[illegible] [illegible] political influence already seems sure [illegible] to make the liquor law almost a dead letter.

SPORTING FISHING EXCURSION.—Messrs. Lucie[illegible] [illegible] of St. Louis, N. W. Funkhouser, Leo[illegible] [illegible] of San Francisco, R. E. Bybee and his [illegible] who left here some days since on [illegible] a jaunt to Tillamook county, returned yesterday morning. They report having enjoyed splendid fishing and a very fine trip. They captured [illegible] and brought home a fine lot which [illegible] distributed among the friends of the party, and [illegible] plump, well-fed fish are seldom seen. The party [illegible] visited Trask river, and then climbed [illegible] high mountain and cast their flies in the Wi[illegible] river. Master Bybee, who is only [illegible] years old, [illegible] himself a chip of the old block by distancing his companions in the trip over the mountain [illegible] [illegible] the trout a few pointers. In regard [illegible] in the Trask they must concur Justice B[illegible] [illegible] he says the "Royal Professor," and "Queen of the Waters" are the best flies for day time, and a [illegible] "Coachman" for the evening. Parties [illegible] to visit a stream, must provide themselves with large hooks and stout tackle. Mr. Lucas, [illegible] with his son, came all the way from St. Louis to enjoy the sport of trout fishing, is more than satisfied with his success. Bybee bears testimony to his prowess as a fisherman, his endurance as a traveler [illegible] his uncomplaining manner of bearing the toils [illegible] privations of camping out—in the words of the [illegible] justice, "he is a thoro ghbred." In the near [illegible] we may expect many eastern sportsmen to [illegible] our state and enjoy the splendid trout fishing [illegible] numerous streams afford.

INJURED IN A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.—One of J. I. [illegible] Montgomery's teams, employed in hauling dirt to [illegible] the incline at Ainsworth's dock, ran away in the [illegible] and the driver, George Emery, the same [illegible] who accidentally shot a young lady at a pic[illegible] some weeks since, was seriously injured. The [illegible] started to run down near the dock and [illegible] up in front of the Occidental, by which time they were running very fast. Emery, in his endeavors to stop the horses, had been thrown down upon the doubletree. The team turned up F street, wheeling the [illegible] and the wheel striking the curb [illegible] [illegible] The horses [illegible] the lamp post on the [illegible] [illegible] struck Emery on the side of the head, [illegible] him fearfully and almost entirely [illegible] [illegible] on the breast and side. [illegible] wagon [illegible] [illegible] in the harness. Emery was picked up and conveyed [illegible] [illegible] It was supposed by all who saw the [illegible] [illegible] Dr. Weeks, who was called to attend the injured [illegible] [illegible] and to his room, where the injured man was [illegible] bled freely and every precaution upon his [illegible] side [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a robust fellow it is to be hoped [illegible] permanent injury from the accident.

[illegible] BEADY FOR BUSINESS.—The steamer [illegible] Walla, went down the river last night to commence the work of cutting a channel through the [illegible] bar. She was soon passed by the government snag boat Corvallis, which will be used in [illegible] and shifting the anchors by which the steamer will be moored. She has on board two anchors belonging to the Coloma, two from Astoria and two belonging to the company and formerly used to [illegible] a (?) boat at Wallula. The lightest of these ponderous mud-hooks weighs 2000 pounds, and [illegible] will be made fast to them, two on [illegible] side, by nine inch hawsers. The greater part of [illegible] will probably be consumed in getting the [illegible] in position and everything ready for work [illegible] will commence to-morrow. With the experience of last year and the greater facilities afforded by having the steam using power to move the anchors, the work of cutting the channel should make rapid progress. The channel will be cut a little closer in [illegible] than it was last year and the direction will be more in a line with the current of the river, which will cause the cut more easily kept clear. After [illegible] it is to be hoped that we shall hear no more of steamers or ships being stuck at St. Helens bar during this season.

DAMAGES [illegible] [illegible].—Harry Lorraine, [illegible] yesterday's OREGONIAN, called at this [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible], that he [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] traveling under [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] who called the evening before [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the loss of his friend. The [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a policeman [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a complaint [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible].—Last night Tong [illegible] [illegible] the following statement [illegible] of Peter Grant, a lad [illegible] who was arrested Monday [illegible] obtaining money under false pretenses: [illegible] Peter's mother, who is a [illegible] but de[illegible] [illegible] from time to time [illegible] [illegible] rent [illegible] [illegible] of the household have frequently been paid by Mr. Kaurin, and day before yesterday young Peter came to him with a note purporting to have been written by his mother, asking for [illegible] which to pay her rent. The money was unhesitatingly given him. Monday, however, [illegible] again approached the capitalist with a similar note. This time the request was made for $[illegible] [illegible] raised the suspicions of the giver, and on inquiring into the matter it was learned that the mother had authorized neither of the requests. The boy was forthwith arrested. He gave evidence of sincere contrition for misdeeds, and as he has heretofore borne a good reputation, he will probably be allowed to escape the extreme penalty of the law.

[illegible]'S LATEST WORK.—The painting of a [illegible] scene on the Columbia, lately placed on exhibition by J. E. Stuart, has been purchased by Archbishop W. W. Williams. It is generally conceded that the picture is one of Stuart's best efforts. It represents a view of the Columbia near the mouth of the [illegible], about [illegible] below The Dalles. In the foreground is a beach of gray sand with an encampment of Indians engaged in drying salmon. On each side of the river rises high, rocky bluffs, while down through the deep canyon pour the rays of the setting sun, bathing the river and the distant mountains in their effulgence, while two rocks cast purplish twilight shadows along the shores. The coloring is beautiful and [illegible] people not accustomed to the sunset effects of this region would be deemed [illegible] but the contrary is the truth, and the [illegible] is that no brush can do justice to the coloring of a sunset on the Columbia.

MILL TO BE REFURNISHED.—The roller process of manufacturing flour appears to be growing in favor in this section. The mill property and house, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], a flouring and sawmill and a splendid water power, has lately been purchased by [illegible] [illegible], formerly of Salem, who will have the roller machinery put in the flour mill with a capacity of 200 [illegible] per day, which will be increased as soon as [illegible] necessary. The price paid by Mr. Hurst was [illegible], which is considered very cheap.

SO CHINOOK SALMON.—It is said that many persons are still asking for salmon along the lower Columbia, and are getting their catch. A fish dealer of this city contracted for a supply of steelhead salmon from one of these fishermen, but when the first lot came they were found to be mostly chinook salmon. Word was at once sent to forward no more, as the dealer did not care to take chances on violating the law. It does seem as if the citizens of Portland might be allowed to have salmon as long as they are in the river and in good condition, but if this were allowed there would be no end to the fishing season. One fish dealer who undertook to furnish chinook salmon last spring before the season opened was arrested, but nothing has ever been heard of his being convicted. Fish from the Sound are beginning to come into market, and with these and the omnipresent "sea bass" we will have to try and worry through.

SAMSON OF MODERN TIMES.—George Dorris, a well known printer and newspaper man, now residing at Sellwood, undertook to pull down a shed yesterday. As a preliminary, he went inside and knocked out a post. The building, evidently thinking that a Sampson had come to town, came down in a heap, burying George under a promiscuous pile of posts, planks and shingles. As he was stooping when he knocked the post away, he was "pounded in the back," flattened out thinner than a flapjack, and had his arms skinned and his shins barked, and no more wind left in him than a damaged accordeon. The "citizens residing in the vicinity" collected and extracted George, procured a bellows and blew the breath into his nostrils again, and he lived, moved and walked off. The next time he knocks down a shed he will do it from the outside.

GREAT EXPENSE TO THE COUNTY.—The Water Company's bill for the Willamette liquid, used at the county court house during the past month, was for 49,000 gallons, and when presented created quite a consternation among the officials. There was running to and fro and "hurrying in hot haste," and much inquiring as to which office it could be that had used such a terrible amount of water. Except for drinking purposes the jail was the only place where any water was used at all and none of the prisoners were noted for taking a bath oftener than every other day. When Jailor Doherty was asked about the matter he declared that he was not a Hardshell Baptist and couldn't possibly have used that amount. A plumber will be called in before another month passes away and see if a leak does not exist somewhere about the building.

DIVORCE CASES.—Seneca Smith, to whom was referred the divorce suit of John Maliff against Jennie Maliff for the taking of testimony, etc., has made his report to the state circuit court, and a decree has been granted based upon said report. The case of A. H. Garrigan vs. M. E. Garrigan, in which Bellinger & Gearin are attorneys for the plaintiff, the husband, and C. H. Hewitt is attorney for the wife, has by agreement of both parties been referred to W. W. Thayer to take testimony and report the findings of facts and the conclusions of law. V. H. Strode has been appointed referee in the divorce suit of Carrie J. Olsen against her husband, Edwin H. Olsen. Frank Knowles has been sued for a divorce by his wife, Nellie A. Knowles. The matter is now in the hands of J. C. Chapman, who, as referee, is taking testimony in the case.

INFORMATION ABOUT THE EXCURSION.—"Fifty-niner" writes again to THE OREGONIAN, asking for fullest detail relative to the proposed pioneers' excursion east, over the Northern Pacific, and criticises some of the statements in the Standard about the matter. A reporter of this paper called on Mr. A. L. Stokes, assistant Superintendent of Traffic of the Northern Pacific, for the desired information, and was told that the first condition of the excursion had not been complied with, viz.: 200 tickets had not yet been engaged by the pioneers, but there was no doubt that more than this number would be sold. The St. Paul office is now completing arrangements with lines east of St. Paul, and details will soon be submitted to Mr. Waite, chairman of the pioneers' committee.

THE SHERMAN PARTY.—Gen. W. T. Sherman and party are expected to arrive here from Victoria Thursday, the 23d inst., and they will go straight [illegible] to Vancouver. On [illegible] evening a reception will be given by Gen. [illegible] Miles, commanding this department, at his residence. A large number of invitations have been issued to Portland [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] brilliant social [illegible] [illegible] and there. On [illegible] the party will be entertained [illegible] [illegible] city, and it is likely that arrangements [illegible] [illegible] for a public demonstration, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the hero soon to [illegible] [illegible] service to his country. The party [illegible] San Francisco Monday, the 27th inst.

SATISFIED WITH THE VERDICT.—Bigham & Drumsteller, plaintiffs in the suit against the Chinese firm of On Chong Wo & Co., in which was involved several hundred dollars' worth of hogs furnished to defendants as food for Chinese laborers in their employ, yesterday announced themselves as satisfied with the verdict that had been rendered in their favor, and having accepted the amount of such judgment and their costs, the case was dismissed. The aforesaid verdict was for only one half the value of the hogs claimed to have been furnished, but rather than undergo the tediousness of a new trial it was finally decided to accept the half loaf, which was better than no bread.

BUSIEST DOCK IN THE CITY.—Ash street dock in a short time, when all the river boats land there and all the passengers from the N. P. and O. R. & N., will be the busiest and most important dock in the city. The company are making changes and improvements there commensurate with the increased importance of the place. The warehouses will be whitewashed and their roofs painted, the roadway improved with new and substantial railing and gates, and when the new building for ticket and other offices is completed, which will be about September 1, everything will be in readiness for the reception of the crowds of visitors which will pour into our city.

REMODELING A BARGE.—The barge Ark, which was purchased by the N. P. R. R. Co., to be transmogrified into a transfer boat for crossing trains over the Willamette, is at the bone yard below the city. The house has been removed bodily from her and landed. The work of cutting down the hull and preparing it for the tracks was commenced yesterday, and the craft will be ready for use by September 1. The transfer boat will be moved back and forth across the river by a steamer made fast alongside. When the bridge has been completed, if it is necessary, the house can be moved back upon the hull, the track removed and then the company have their barge again.

THE ARSON CASE.—Dr. Paul J. A. Semler was arraigned in the police court yesterday for examination on a charge of arson. Frank Drucke testified that Semler, just previous to removing from the house where the fire occurred, gathered up a lot of rags, paper and rubbish and put them in a barrel in the woodshed under the house. A short time after [illegible] smoke was discovered issuing from the building, and it was on examination found to proceed from the barrel above alluded to. Dr. Semler claims that the barrel contained some ashes, which must have set fire to the contents. The examination was continued till to-day.

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL.—In the suit now pending before the state circuit court wherein G. G. Gammans, assignee of Henry H. Ellingel, insolvent, is the plaintiff and Charles Holman, Edward Holman and J. W. Holman, partners under the firm name of Holman & Co., are the defendants, a motion for a new trial has been filed by the plaintiff, and yesterday the court being unable to hear said motion at that time, it was ordered, upon motion of Thomas N. Strong of attorneys for the plaintiff, that the hearing of said motion be continued until the next term of the court, at such time thereafter as the court can hear the same.

LUCKY FIND.—About three months ago Harry Irwin and Frank Golden left here on a prospecting tour in the Kootenai country. The latest news from them came to Conductor Barnes of the O. R. & N., in the shape of a splendid piece of quartz which assays 88 per cent. silver. Their claim lies about 200 miles north of Sand Point and near the proposed line of the railroad. The prospectors say that the lead is about eight feet wide, and they have traced it three thousand feet. Conductor Barnes says that at the earliest moment he will send material to the claim so that it can be opened and properly worked.

COLLAR-BONE BROKEN.—Minnie Healy, a fourteen-year-old daughter of William Healy fell Sunday evening from a swing and broke her collar-bone. Dr. Wm. Jones was called and set the bone, since which time she has been doing as well as could be expected, but is not yet able to be taken home, having been hurt at J. L. Gallagher's, on Eleventh and J streets.

NEW RESIDENCES.—Two neat cottages, with all the modern improvements, situated on the quarter block [illegible] Tenth and Montgomery streets, are nearly completed. They adjoin Sheriff Jordan's? handsome residence and will be occupied by Deputy Sheriff Witherell and Mrs. Captain O'Brien as soon as finished. The location is excellent and both cottages will make very comfortable little houses.

SETTLING AN ESTATE.—In the matter of the estate of William Gray, deceased, which is valued at $35,000, the administratrix, Mrs. Gray, yesterday filed in the county court her final account, and was relieved from all further duties in that regard. Upon her own application Judge Catlin appointed Mrs. Gray as the legal guardian of her minor son Frank.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady will deliver an opinion in this court this morning in the case of the United States vs. Joseph Howard.

THE SIR KNIGHTS.

HANDSOME SOUVENIR OF OREGON COMMANDERY OF THIS CITY.

Pilgrimage to San Francisco, Commencing To-Night, to Attend the Triennial Conclave—They will have the Place of Honor.

The sir knights of Oregon Commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar, of this city, have had a very handsome souvenir of the organization prepared, the like of which, it is hard y probable, any other commandery possesses. The souvenir consists of an artistic grouping of the pictures of every member of the commandery, from the date of its organization to the present time. Towne, the artist engaged in the preparation of this souvenir, has had one of the pictures placed in a very rich gold frame, and it will to-night be forwarded to San Francisco, where it will be placed in the reception room at Saratoga hall, the headquarters of Oregon Commandery, during the Triennial Conclave, after which it will be placed upon the walls of the asylum in this city, as the gift of Mr. Towne.

Oregon Commandery will be very fully represented at the forthcoming conclave, and has been assigned the post of honor in the grand parade, where, with the First U. S. Cavalry band, which accompanies it, it will attract more than a passing notice.

For the past three months the commandery has been steadily drilled by Sir Knight E. B. Willis, past eminent commander of Sacramento Commandery, who has been assiduous in his labors, and has educed proficiency in the ranks hitherto unknown. Mr. Willis is private secretary of Mr. H. B. Thielsen, assistant chief engineer of the O. R. & N. Co., a new comer in Portland but deservedly popular among those who know him.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT AND KILLED.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

FOREST GROVE, Aug. 14.

R. D. Dodson, a carpenter working on the Eagle mills, two miles west of Dilley, accidentally shot and killed himself on Sunday. The circumstances as near as can be learned, are these: At the time the fatal accident occurred, Dodson was in a room lying on a bed, resting, or simply lounging the time away. He was known to possess a mania for pistol shooting, often firing out of the window of his room at such objects as his fancy might select as targets, notwithstanding the warning that he would some day get hurt had often been given him. When the shot was fired, parties in an adjoining room took no notice of it, until about a minute had elapsed when they heard poor Dodson exclaim "Boys, I'm shot clear through," which were the last words he was known to have uttered. In a moment his friends were at his side, but all efforts to save were vain, as in a few minutes life was extinct.

An examination showed the ball entered at the upper part of the right hip, ranged upward, passing near the heart. The pistol was a Smith & Wesson self-cocker, 45-calibre. The theory is that while lying on the bed, he attempted to take the pistol from his pocket and in so doing it was discharged with the result above stated. He was a comparative stranger in the country, middle aged, and without a family.

THE LAST SPIKE.

A new publication. For the celebration of the opening of the Northern Pacific railroad Curt Von Ottenstadt & Co. are preparing a complete history of the railroads and business enterprises of the northwest, and Portland in particular, containing valuable statistics, maps and illustrations. It is written by one of our best local writers and bids fair to be a book of high interest. About 50,000 copies will be printed and well distributed throughout the entire country. Several thousand will be sent to the east to persons who take great interest in Oregon's growth. Mr. Villard will be presented with one copy handsomely bound in Morocco leather.

THE COMING CELEBRATION.

Co-operation of Citizens Promised in Raising the $20,000 to Defray Expenses.

Yesterday afternoon, pursuant to invitation, the Board of Trade rooms were crowded with representative merchants and professional men, called together for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee having in charge the celebration over the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad.

On motion of Donald Macleay Col. John McCraken was called to preside. On taking the chair Colonel McCraken said that the gentlemen present no doubt remembered how, in 1876, a meeting had been called to consider the proposition of Mr. Huntington and associates of the Central Pacific, who offered to connect Oregon by rail with California on condition that interest at 5 per cent. on $2,000,000 bonds were paid for twenty years by the state of Oregon. The proposition met with no small favor at the hands of the citizens of Portland, but the burden was thought to be too great. Still it was the sense of the meeting that they would and were willing to pay interest on $2,000,000 for twenty years. The proposition was rejected by the railroad company.

Mr. Villard has given to Portland a railroad connection infinitely more valuable than the proposed by the Central Pacific, without the cost of a single cent to any one of her citizens, and the board of trade now asks the people of Portland to contribute a sum to defray the expenses of a celebration in which this city shall show her appreciation of the great benefits already received, and of greater benefits in future.

Hon. Sol. Hirsch, chairman of the finance committee, said that the entire question of the celebration had been gone over by the various sub-committees, who ascertained that the sum required for a fitting demonstration is $20,000. It was necessary to celebrate in good style, or to abandon the matter. The sum mentioned would be small enough. On behalf of the committee, he therefore asked the indorsement of the programme prepared and published in last Sunday's papers.

Col. W. H. Effinger offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this meeting approves of and ratify the action heretofore taken and we herewith tender our active co-operation and assistance to the finance committee in raising the requisite amount of money—estimated at $20,000.

Col. McCraken said that as chairman of the committee on parade he had received suggestions from bodies representing varied interests in different parts of the state, showing eagerness to participate in the parade. He read a letter from Mr. J. B. Montgomery, who was absent from the city and had seen the announcement of this meeting. Mr. Montgomery urged that no money or trouble be spared to make the celebration a success, and enclosed a check for a handsome amount.

In answer to an inquiry, Mr. Hirsch said that subscription papers would be circulated early this week, so that the committee might know at the very earliest possible moment what sum would be at their disposal.

Mr. Garrison asked whether it would not be well to ask the city council to vote an appropriation. Mr. Hirsch answered that the charter did not grant to the city council such power.

After short discussion of unimportant business, the meeting adjourned.

LET THE CELEBRATION BE GENERAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

An event of unequaled importance to the city of Portland and surrounding country is about to take place in a few days, namely, the connection by rail of this city, and the whole northwestern coast, with our sister-hood of the east, and through them with the marts of the world.

Upon the advent of any distinguished person, or the opening of any great public enterprise, it is the custom, and properly, too, to have great public rejoicing, such as at the opening of the New York and Brooklyn bridge; but of how much greater benefit to Portland is the advent of the first through train from the great lakes, the connection of the eastern and northwestern coast, by the longest line of railway in the world, to the spanning of the East river with a bridge. Now, Mr. Editor, it surely remains in the hands of the capitalists, merchants, manufacturers, etc., of a city that boasts of being, for its population, one of the richest in the world, to honor in a manner worthy of its name the coming event; and no parsimony should be practised; but every nerve strained during the short time remaining until the last spike is driven. This is to be remembered that people will judge you by your actions, and if there is going to be a demonstration of joy on the occasion of the completion of Northern Pacific connections with the east, let it be general. Let every man, woman and child in this city and surrounding country take part, the poor as well as the rich. Expense should be a last consideration. What you spend will be spent at home and will find its way back to the source whence it came. Besides, a large amount of money will be drawn to the city from outside sources, and a hundred-fold will be the result at an early day. Do you not suppose that Mr. Villard and the gentlemen who represent this great enterprise would rejoice to see that great generous big-heartedness for which our wealthy men of Portland are noted exhibited on the celebration of the driving of the last spike? Most assuredly; and it would leave an impression indelibly fixed in their minds that would not be disadvantageous to Portland. Then get to work. Don't smother it under small committee half-bushels, but come out great, generous and noble-hearted and let us have a big time after the driving of the last spike.

A CITIZEN.

BRIEF MENTION.

The exterior of Justice Greene's court has received a new coat of paint.

Retail merchants assert that their trade this year, during the summer season, is much better than in any previous year.

Z. R. Allison, for interfering with a policeman in the discharge of his duties, was fined $10 in the police court yesterday.

It is stated by his friends that Rev. J. H. Acton will be nominated for city auditor and clerk to-night, by Mayor Chapman.

The state circuit court did not adjourn sine die yesterday, as was expected by some, but will open this morning at 9 o'clock as usual.

Nine confirmed drunkards appeared before Judge Moreland, yesterday, and paid $5 each into the city treasury for their respective misdemeanors.

The white opium fiend, George Wilson, who was arrested by Policeman Ward in a den at the corner of Sixth and Pine streets, forfeited bail of $25 yesterday.

Now that there will be no more grand jury work until the beginning of the September term of the state circuit court District Attorney Caples is talking of taking a short trip to California but has not yet decided to do so.

The work of laying the concrete foundation for the new hotel was commenced yesterday at the southeast corner of the block. The work of excavating is about completed and the construction will proceed with rapidity.

George Mitchell and J. F. Hopkins, hack drivers, engaged in a quarrel in front of the Holton house last evening, and were arrested by Special Policeman Watson. They deposited $10 bail each at the police office, and were allowed to depart.

The sale of reserved seats for Beecher's lectures on the 21st and 22d is larger than any other advance sale at New Market since F. W. Stechhan took the management. There are only a few seats left, and those desiring reserves should make early application.

The machinery of the railroad ferryboat, laid off some time since for repairs, has been thoroughly overhauled and the work of putting it up was commenced yesterday. The painters are now at work upon the boat and she will be in first-class trim and all ready for business by Sept.

All members of Oregon Commandery (those that are not going to San Francisco as well as those that are) will meet at their asylum this evening at 7 o'clock, sharp, to march to the steamer Oregon. Visiting knights are invited to accompany the commandery to the steamer in full regalia.

The police office at 1 o'clock this morning resembled an aviary from the number of soiled doves fluttering around. Capt. Bell, sailor boarding house keeper, visited a bagnio kept by the notorious Mary Hastings and purchased some liquor. When he produced some money to pay for it the amount in his hand was grabbed and only two bits offered in change. This he refused and made complaint at the police office, on which Mrs. Hastings and seven of the inmates of her house were arrested. Mrs. Hastings deposited $40 bail, the others $25 each, for their appearance in court to-day.

SUCCESSFUL BURGLARY.

Two Men Force Open the Safe in the Office of the Transcontinental Street Railway Company—They are Discovered in the Act, but Escape.

Yesterday morning, between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock, two burglars entered the office of the Transcontinental Street Railway Company, situated at their stables on B street, between Seventh and East Park. The burglars succeeded in forcing open the safe and taking therefrom $45 in coin and a quantity of car tickets. They were, however, surprised in their work by the hostler, who was awakened by the noise they made, and hastily decamped, leaving behind a sack containing $35.

John Nealy, the hostler, who sleeps over the office, says that he was awakened about 2 o'clock by an unusual disturbance among the horses in the stable, and, after listening a short time, he heard sharp clear sounds in the office beneath him, and was completely aroused and startled by the unmistakable sound of a falling tool. Rising, he dressed himself and pulling on his boots started to descend the stairs. The robbers, warned by the sound of footsteps above, and hastily gathering together their tools and booty, came out of the office. Hearing Nealy descending the stairs they called out to him to "stop where you are, or we'll shoot you down." Nealy, who was entirely unarmed, thought discretion the better part of valor, and obeyed the command. From where he stood on the stairs, he was able to discern through the darkness two forms rapidly retreating across the main floor. After they had disappeared Nealy came down, and lighting a lamp, discovered that the safe had been forced open. On the floor of the office in front of the safe lay a horse blanket which the robbers had spread there to deaden the sound of any falling pieces. Near by was a sack containing some $30 or $40 which the robbers in their haste had left.

Examination of the safe showed that the men who broke it open had done a neat job, and were evidently experienced cracksmen. The office is in the southwest corner of the stable, to which but a single door leads from the main building. This door had evidently been left unlocked and the robbers had effected their entrance to the main stable through the floor, a section of which had been removed preparatory to placing a turn-table. The safe, a small, old-fashioned one, stood opposite the door inside the office. When first seen by the hostler after the robbery, the door stood open and the money drawer in which was kept car tickets and loose change was drawn out. In the door, just above the lock, a hole had been drilled and chiseled through the iron large enough to admit a good sized bar of iron, by which the bolts of the door were evidently forced back. Traces of the iron shavings were found upon the floor just below the lock showing that a drill had been used, but none of the tools were found upon the premises. Mr. Nealy, although claiming to have surprised the burglars between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, did not give the alarm at the police station till some time after 4.

Detectives who were given charge of the case have yet obtained no clew or present whereabouts of the cracksmen. Suspicious looking characters, who asked for employment, were lounging about the place the day before, and now they are not to be found. It is thought probable that these men were the burglars.

THE COMMERCIAL FUTURE.

A San Francisco Journal's View of the Consequences of the Completion of the Northern Pacific Railroad.

San Francisco Bulletin, Aug. [illegible]

The effect which the completion of the Northern Pacific is going to have on the future of this city, is one of the problems of the hour. San Francisco has in a large sense, been the port of Oregon. To this city were conveyed the goods from New York and Europe which our sister state needed. Her export trade, mostly consisting of cereals, follows a different route—that is to say, around Cape Horn to Europe. The trade likely to be affected may be defined as a species of brokerage. The commodities destined for Oregon were deposited here on the way, and we took such toll out of them as the business would stand. But this is a sort of commerce which must attain to enormous volume to be a factor in maintaining a large city. We have all the China trade there is, coming this way. But no very large commercial benefits are derived from it. The tea and silk are transferred from the ship to the car, and leave nothing behind but the trifling expense of handling.

The invention of the sealed or bonded car has operated not only against San Francisco but all seaboard cities. Before the era of that custom house on wheels all foreign goods had to go into store at the point of importation. The new regulation became the law before any of the seaboard cities had waked up to its importance, if, indeed, they considered it at all. It was brought about by the quiet exertions of the enterprising interior cities. Though it has in a small way affected the interests of individuals in seaports—for under it every interior city can be a seaport, so to speak, in itself—we do not know that any strong objection can be urged against it. It is certainly a rule in the interests of the cheaper handling of goods. But brokerage of that character can [illegible] a town up unless it assumes colossal proportions. Liverpool may be cited as a case in point. That city is the place of the import and export of great emporium. In some respects it is unique. There is no other city that is exactly [illegible]. It handles most of the articles imported into England from, or exported to, the United States. In that way it may be said that $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 of people are [illegible]. It is also the entrepot for most of the trade of Australia, India, Africa and the Mediterranean. But with all that Liverpool has only grown a little more than a half million of people. If it had nothing else but this trade, colossal as it is, to depend on, it would not be near so populous. There are no facts accessible to show how much of its development is due to active manufactures and how much to commerce. But it may be assumed with safety that Liverpool would be a small city to-day if it did not have sugar refineries, iron and brass foundries, iron and steel forges, works for [illegible] machinery, chains, cables, anchors, rope, sails, soap, ship building and an extensive [illegible] and [illegible] manufactories.

New York does not occupy a position corresponding to that of Liverpool. It is not the sole exchange place between America and England. It has four or five rivals in the business, which at the latest computation accessible, had got away with 51 per cent. of its commerce, but New York, for all that, has more than double the population of the city named. There is enough here to show that it is not commerce exclusively that builds up cities. Commerce indicates the point where a busy mart is [illegible], but [illegible] the prime factor. It is only when [illegible] with manufactures that a great city is possible. All that we have is a prospect of losing is the brokerage in a portion of the trade of [illegible] will presently appear, only in a very restricted sense.

The trade of eastern Oregon, never very great, has long since been largely diverted from this city. That section has been obtaining much of the supplies it needs directly from the Union Pacific and its branches in the east. The goods which now come across the Central and Southern Pacific to this city and are shipped hence to Portland, will hereafter be transported mostly by the Northern Pacific. But the houses which now control that business in this city will not let it go. They will naturally establish branch houses in Oregon and import by the new line of the Northern Pacific. But no diminution in the articles which we produce, and which Oregon needs, will take place. Oregon will not import California goods by way of the Horn and Northern Pacific. It is not possible, at the moment to separate our actual trade with Oregon from that in which we occupy the position of intermediaries. But the former is no doubt large and is bound to grow.

Oregon will not import anything from New York or the east which she can find better and cheaper in San Francisco, Northern Pacific or no Northern Pacific. To retain all the commerce of Oregon we have to compete successfully with the more distant cities of the east, which does not appear to be difficult or impossible. The corresponding advantages are a branch of the subject, however, which has not been much considered. The new railroads—the Northern Pacific and the Canadian Pacific—are going to build up large and prosperous communities in the north. Many of these communities will draw from us a large part of their supplies. For generations they will have to devote themselves exclusively to agriculture and cattle raising. They will have to send here for wines, brandies, beer, woolen cottons—when we get started—agricultural implements, pottery, glass, paint, oil, wagons, harness, nails, and hundreds of other articles. The communities in the [illegible] to the east will draw from Canada and the United States. But even they will have to import from us, even if the goods have to go around the Horn, for some California products are numbered among the necessities of life.

Instead of taking a narrow view of this subject, we are disposed to believe that when the railroad to Oregon is completed, San Francisco will become in a larger sense, the port for the whole northwest. There are good seaports, it is true, in Oregon and Washington, but they are not in positions to be large distributors of merchandise. Relying on the adjacent ports San Francisco does not occupy, in the matter of foreign goods a position, with reference to the vast region under consideration, much inferior to that of New York, or any of the Atlantic cities. We suspect, also, that railroads bear a much more subordinate relation toward large cities than is generally supposed. Since this era [illegible] no railroad has injured any large city previously established. On the contrary, railroads have contributed amazingly to their growth.

London is instanced [illegible] is only a very restricted railroad sense a competing point. But London has grown more rapidly since railroads were invented than before. The same is to be said of Paris, which is located also on a river far from the sea, and is not a competing point at all. Railroads are for the people and not the people for the railroads. The railroads may destroy intermediate stations. The points where they concentrate naturally grow into centers of population. But as a rule they must come to places where the people are gathered in large numbers. If no railroad was to reach us, San Francisco could still import all that she wanted from all parts of the world. The [illegible] would be longer [illegible] in the business [illegible] war upon the whole railroad system of the country. She cannot [illegible] be passed by. We are satisfied that the more railroads there are the more steadily we shall grow. San Francisco will remain forever the [illegible] mistress of one thousand miles of sea coast on the Pacific, and the port or entrepot of the great northwest as distinguished from the northeast.

Through the Niagara Whirlpool.

New York National Gazette.

The interest awakened in matters pertaining to the whirlpool at Niagara Falls, by the recent death of Capt. Webb, induces us to publish a short sketch of the memorable trip of the Maid of the Mist, in which were the only persons who ever went through the whirlpool rapids and the whirlpool itself and came out alive. The boat which made this trip was built in 1854. For a time she took passengers from both the American and the Canadian shore, and ran up very close to the foot of the falls. Owing to [illegible] which confined her to the Canadian shore [illegible] passengers, she became unprofitable. Her owner, [illegible] wishing to leave the place, determined to sell her, and he [illegible] he would deliver her at Niagara, opposite the fort. This he decided to do [illegible] with Joel R. Robinson, who acted as captain and pilot on her trips under the falls. Mr. Robinson consented to act as pilot for the fearful voyage, and the engineer, Mr. Jones, agreed to go with him. A machinist, Mr. McIntyre, volunteered to share the risk with them. The boat was put in complete trim, all superfluous articles being removed from the deck and hold. Notice was given of the time of starting, and a large crowd assembled to see the fearful plunge, no one expecting to see either boat or crew again after they should leave the dock, which was just above the railway suspension bridge.

About 3 o'clock in the afternoon of June 15, 1861, the engineer took his place in the hold, and knowing that their fitting trip would be short at the longest, set his steam valve at the proper gauge, and waited the [illegible] signal, that would start them on their flying voyage. Robinson took his place at the wheel and gave the starting signal. With a shriek from her whistle and a white puff from her escape pipe, the boat ran up the eddy, or a short distance clear the smooth water and shot like an arrow into the rapid under the bridge. She took the outside curve of the rapid, and when a third of the way down it a jet of water struck against her rudder, a column dashed up under her starboard side, heeled her over, carried away her smokestack, started her overhang on that side, threw Robinson on his back, and threw McIntyre against the starboard wheelhouse with such force as to break it through. Every looker-on breathed freer as she emerged, shook her wounded sides, and into the whirlpool and for a moment rode [illegible] on an even keel. Robinson rose at once, seized the helm, set her to the right of the large pot in the pool, then turned her directly through the neck of it. Thence, after receiving another drenching from the waves, she dashed on, without further accident, to the quiet bosom of the river below Lewiston. The boat was 72 feet long, with 17 feet breadth of beam, 8 feet depth of hold, and carried an engine of 100-horse power.

Finances of France.

Springfield Republican.

France, whose financial sagacity there has been absurd boasting, has at length got to the end of her rope of perpetual borrowing and no paying. The country which borrowed the millions with which to pay Germany so easily, has been borrowing ever since, and now can borrow no longer. The debt of France is [illegible] million dollars, or 1½ times that of Great Britain and [illegible] times that of America. Every Frenchman owes [illegible] francs, every Englishman $78 and every American $63. The French government has required of late years substantially [illegible] every year to meet its current expenses and interest. Even then there was an accumulation of floating debt so large that the public refused to [illegible] to subscribe for the rentes. Now, it makes no difference how many troops and war ships a power may [illegible] it is in no condition to take an aggressive attitude when its own balance throws back its bonds in its face. France is really to-day therefore [illegible] crippled. The effect is, beyond the debt and [illegible] the rate of [illegible] has not [illegible] far enough to relieve the [illegible], but something has got to be done.

The Cincinnati Commercial [illegible] statistics of the operation of the Scott law in Ohio in seventy of the eighty-eight counties of the state, [illegible] saloons [illegible] have [illegible] and paid the $200 tax.

[illegible] My skin, which has been covered with scaly sores, has become clean, smooth and soft as a lady's. My hands were covered with little dry scabs. They have disappeared and I'm better than I have been for twenty years, using Dr. Benson's Skin Cure.—M. Noble, Selma, N. C., July 9, 1882.

INTERESTING RACES OVER EASTERN TRACKS.

A Statement by Dukes—A Very Romantic Wedding—Important Newspaper Change—Irish Conspirators—Etc.

American vs. English Newspapers.

New York, Aug. 10.—During Uncle Rufus Hatch's picnic yesterday, Savage of the London Daily Telegraph said: "I do not think interviewing will ever become common in England, because we are too much afraid of touching private affairs. For instance, did the Telegraph want to publish Gladstone's opinions, this would be done by interviewing Gladstone, and the Telegraph would then state that Gladstone would do so and so, and, if Gladstone did not want to do so he would not do so, and would be bound by no newspaper promises. The American papers surpass the London papers in matters of local news. We must publish parliamentary speeches, long reports, etc., and have but little room for local news. The editorial forms public opinion in London. The Telegraph first advocated Beaconsfield's eastern policy, a policy which Mr. Gladstone has followed. The English people are changing every day and drawing towards republican ideas, if not towards republicanism. About newspapers, I can say the Telegraph's daily circulation is between 240,000 and 260,000. It circulated once 300,000 copies. The Telegraph is stereotyped in nineteen minutes; an American paper, you know, is about half an hour. I can't say whether long or short editorials are more effective. We use long ones."

A Very Romantic Wedding.

New York, Aug. 9.—Speaking of the marriage of Mrs. Fargo, widow of the president of the American Express Company, to F. Fargo last evening, the Tribune's Buffalo correspondent says: The marriage is exceedingly romantic. Mrs. Fargo's friends have tried every means in their power to prevent the marriage taking place. About six weeks ago an authorized public denial of the existence of the engagement was given. It is now believed that this was done for the purpose of avoiding opposition. The gentleman continued his attentions, however, and disproved the published statement. [illegible] it was reported that the wedding would take place in September and its occurrence last evening will be a surprise to those who have been trying to prevent it. A few invitations were quietly delivered about the city in the afternoon, but before night the matter was in everybody's mouth. The married people are [illegible] years old. The bride and family are very aristocratic in their tendencies, while of late years Frank Fargo has been a newspaper writer of small means and not of brilliant social standing.

A Statement by Dukes.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—A special from Pittsburg says: N. L. Dukes of Uniontown, Pa., who ruined Captain Nutt's daughter and afterwards killed Nutt, and was in turn killed by Nutt's son after a trial which resulted in Dukes' acquittal, left a lengthy statement which has just been brought to light. After minutely detailing the circumstances of the killing, in which he claims that Nutt was the aggressor, he goes on to say that when he wrote the first letters to Nutt, charging Miss Nutt with loose actions, he committed an appalling blunder, so patent that he thinks he must have been out of his senses. He professes the utmost respect for Nutt and sorrow for the deed, and wishes that he might exchange places with the dead. He denies ruining the daughter, and says the killing of the father was part of a deep-laid scheme, and says they were part of a chain of circumstances for which he is not wholly responsible.

Important Newspaper Change.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—The Tribune's Montreal special says: An important change, affecting a leading American newspaper, occurred here to-day. James William Hinkley of New York was elected managing director of the Graphic Company. Mr. Hinkley is the same gentleman who lately purchased the Poughkeepsie Press and Poughkeepsie Telegraph respectively, the oldest daily and weekly newspapers in Dutchess county New York. Mr. Hinkley is a pronounced democrat, a member of the Manhattan club and chairman of the democratic executive committee of Dutchess county. What bearing this will have on the course of the Daily Graphic remains to be seen, but it is said that he intends to continue the paper in its independent course. Heretofore a majority of the $75,000 of the stock of the Graphic Company has been held here, it being originally promoted by a Canadian company.

Family Troubles.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Miriam S. Earl of Valparaiso, Ind., divorced wife of John S. Earl of Chicago, and her two children, bring suit against the husband and father, alleging that in 1876 Earl was appointed trustee of the estate of his father, George Earl of Philadelphia, valued at $1,000,000, including $300,000 in the hands of the Pennsylvania railroad, to be employed in paying annuities to complainants; that he procured a fraudulent divorce fifteen years ago and married again; that a suit is now pending to set the divorce aside, and that when the children took up their mother's cause he converted the securities, which paid 9 per cent., into government three-per cents. They ask his removal as trustee and for an accounting.

California Wines.

New York, Aug. 10.—Bonfort's Wine Circular says: California wines may be said to be moving toward an acknowledged and permanent position in commerce. Their progress in this direction has been and is still retarded by what seems by the wine merchants of the world to be a determination on the part of producers and dealers in California not to see the faults of their wines. We publish, with unusual pleasure, extracts from the recent address of Arpad Haraszthy before the Los Angeles convention. It may be published in pamphlet form for the benefit of the wine trade.

Irish Nationalists in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—The Times this morning publishes an article in which it is asserted that secret agents of the Canadian government have been seen in this city for some time shadowing prominent Irish nationalists, and that they have positive information of a premeditated design to destroy the Welland canal by the use of explosives. It is further stated that requests were made on the United States government to assist in thwarting the alleged conspiracy.

The Insanity Dodge.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Specials from Milwaukee say it is discovered that Edward O'Donnell, who killed the informer Carey, in South Africa, lived with his parents, brothers and sisters in Milwaukee for many years. Two or three of the family have died insane and it is said that O'Donnell at times showed an unbalanced mind.

Not so Bad, After All.

Muscatine, Ia., Aug. 10.—The scare at Wilton Junction is subsiding. The disease proves to be malignant dysentery caused, the physicians say, by malaria. No additional deaths have occurred, though several persons are still very ill. The general condition of the sick, who number about fifty, is much improved. Dr. Wood is better. It is believed the disease is now under control.

THE TURF.

Interesting Contests over Eastern Tracks—Good Time Made.

Buffalo, Aug. 9.—This was the third day of the races at the Buffalo driving park. The weather and track were fine. Fully 10,000 people were present. The judges gave the drivers to understand that any crookedness would be summarily dealt with. The races were, therefore, not influenced so much as heretofore in the interest of the French pools, being very square, close and exciting, but the time was again slow. The 2:24 class for trotters was not finished, owing to the darkness. Three heats were trotted, Phyllis taking the first in 2:23½. The second heat was very close, and was awarded to Overman in 2:19¾, while the third was declared a dead heat in 2:20. The pacing race for $1500 Westmore won, General Jack 2d, Eddie D. 3d, Billy Smith 4th; time, 2:19, 2:18¾, 2:19¾, 2:18¾. The free for all horses, for a purse of $5000, St. Julien won, Edwin Thorne 2d, Fanny Witherspoon 3d, Trinket 4th; time, 2:17¼, 2:18, 2:20, 2:20¼.

Monmouth Park, N. J., Aug. 9.—Four thousand persons witnessed the running races to-day. The seven furlong race, Duplex won easily, Jacobus second, Strathspey third. Time, 1:29. The optional stakes for two-year-olds, three-quarters of a mile, Blossom won, Leo second, Thackeray third. Time, 1:16¾.

Saratoga, Aug. 9.—The first race, a mile, was won by Ascender, Bonnie Lizzie second, Tom Bowling third. Time 1:42½. The second race, five furlongs, for two-year-olds, was won by Burton Lloyd, Dolly second, Lufton third. Time, 1:03¼. The mile race Ascender won, Bonnie Lizzie second, Owen Bowling third. Time, 1:42. The three-quarters of a mile race Glasgow won, Dark second, Bell Boy third. Time, 1:16¼. The handicap steeplechase, about two miles and a quarter, all aged, Post Guard won, Disturbance second, Ripost third. Time, 3:14¼.

MAJOR NICKERSON WANTED.

Montreal, Aug. 9.—Major Nickerson is being looked for here by detectives. He was seen in the city a few days ago.

THE LUTHER FESTIVAL.

Berlin, Aug. 9.—The Luther festival was a great success. The historical procession traversing the streets of Erfurt yesterday afternoon excited much admiration, especially the group in which Luther was represented surrounded by armed knights. Bodies of singers greeted the procession at different points along the route.

HAYTI IN A STATE OF ANARCHY.

Port au Prince, Hayti, Aug. 9.—The country is in a very agitated condition. A revolution is momentarily expected in this city. The government is powerless and business is at a standstill. Jacmel has pronounced in favor of the revolution and a pronunciamento is expected at Cape Haytien. A great battle was fought before Jacmel, in which the government troops were completely defeated and several of their generals executed. The revolutionists are marching on Leogane. The government, therefore, is raising the siege of Miragoane and covering Port au Prince, establishing its headquarters at Leogane.

NOTES FROM INDEPENDENCE.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

INDEPENDENCE, Aug. 14.

David Hedges, Miss Locke and Miss Heffelman are very low with fever.

A fine country. Farmers are buying at the stores, for harvest hands, butter, hams, bacon, lard, beans, and even eggs and potatoes.

The sawmill at this place was forced to shut down on account of low water in the river. No logs could be brought anywhere near it.

Not in ten years has there been as much sickness around here as there is at present. Women and children seem to be mostly afflicted.

The decision of Judge Boise in the Ramp-Sloper case is a blow at old Independence, as it takes away the water power from the gristmill, and, I believe, the sawmill also.

The controversy between our county assessor and the Scotch Loan Company, has resulted in making him more popular than ever. Probably he will be our next Sheriff.

Wherever the threshers have been at work thus far they report good crops, way over average, and if the price should be somewhere near a dollar, there will be money enough to get along without any loan company.

One of the finest churches in the state, outside of Portland, is the Presbyterian Church of Independence. For nearly three months no services have been held in it. Some sacrilegious wag has put on it a notice "To let."

Sunday is getting to be a regular "toughs'" day. Last Sunday two drunken hoodlums drove their horse and buggy at full speed up and down the street, yelling and shouting with all their might. The City Marshal did not arrest them. Some say he was afraid. If it were some poor devil of an inoffensive farmer, who had accidentally taken a drop too much, he would have landed in the calaboose.

THE EAST SIDE.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ferguson left yesterday for a short visit to Astoria.

Miss Alma Shaw will leave on the outgoing steamer for a brief visit to Southern California.

Engine No. 16, attached to a gravel train, knocked down and ran over a cow at Albina Monday evening that refused to vacate the track.

Mayor Myers, with his family, returned last evening from Yaquina bay, where they have been sojourning the past four or five weeks.

Marshal Linville returned last evening from a week's visit to Long beach. He reports the East Portlanders there as flourishing well.

An invitation party will be given at Villard hall, Albina, to-morrow evening, being the first of a series to be given each Thursday evening.

Dr. Geo. E. Nottage will leave on the Oregon to attend the triennial conclave of Knights Templar at San Francisco. His wife will accompany him.

A Chinaman was brought in from tunnel No. 8 Monday evening whose hands, arms and legs had been dreadfully burned by a premature discharge of giant powder.

Dr. D. M. Ellis returned Monday evening from California, after an absence of about three weeks. His time in California was divided principally between St. Helena and Napa.

An old fiddler serenaded the saloons of East Portland last evening and charmed the savage breasts therein contained, but imbibing too freely, which appears to be his weakness, his music soon ceased to charm, and the appreciation of the savage breasts was shown by his being summarily bounced out upon the sidewalk and his violin broken. He will probably give East Portland a wide berth hereafter.

T. J. Mattock reported progress from the East Portland camp at Revenue's, on Eagle creek, last evening by sending in two fine venison hams, one for H. H. Kiesling and one for H. D. McGuire. The campers are killing time and game to their heart's content, and nothing has occurred to mar their pleasure except a recent runaway accident, by which Mr. Mattock and one or two others were slightly injured.

ASTORIA ITEMS.

From the Astorian, August 14.

The General Miles leaves for Gray's harbor at 6:30 this evening.

Dr. Jay Tuttle has moved his residence to the house formerly occupied by Mrs. Hewitt.

A. M. Johnson was a passenger by the Columbia yesterday on a trip to Norway, after eighteen years' absence.

At a special meeting of the city council last evening G. W. Coffinbury was elected to the office of police judge.

A large force of brickmakers has commenced making brick at the mouth of the Walluski. They intend burning 300,000 this fall.

The new school house is assuming definite shape, and is now one of the most prominent objects that greets the eye from the bay. It is the intention to have it completed and ready for occupancy by the 1st of October.

At the regular annual election for officers of the fire department there were 72 votes cast, of which F. F. Hicks received 71 votes for chief engineer; A. A. Cleveland and G. Charters received 57 and 46 votes respectively for assistants and L. E. Selig 1. There being no opposition, an extremely light vote was polled.

The condition of Smith was yesterday such as led to the opinion on the part of the physician that he might recover. The hospital is probably the safest place that he will find. About fifteen minutes after he got on board the boat to come to Astoria last Saturday, a crowd of men came to the landing to hang him and perhaps it is about the best use he could be put to under the circumstances.

Service will be held in the Swedish Lutheran church at upper Astoria next Thursday evening at half-past seven o'clock, by Rev. P. Carlson. Rev. J. J. Hoikka late of Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill., with Rev. W. Shans, arrived on the Oregon yesterday. Rev. Mr. Hoikka will take charge of the congregation here; his colleague goes to Portland to take charge of the Swedish Lutheran church there.

YAMHILL NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

MCMINNVILLE, Aug. 14.

Whooping cough is prevalent.

Wheat hauling is beginning in earnest.

James F. Bewley of Sheridan has moved to McMinnville.

The philosophical apparatus is being moved to the new college.

The Good Templars will give a sociable next Friday evening.

Custer Post G. A. R., talks of having an extensive reunion some time during the fall.

Public school will begin about the 15th of September, and there is public money enough for a six months' free school.

Elsie Wright threshed 1785 bushels of grain on Saturday. One field of spring wheat yielded 430 more bushels than was expected.

The new bank will begin business here Nov. 1. W. S. Garrison is putting iron shutters to the brick building that the bank will occupy.

Some wheat will yield 20 bushels to the acre without any rain between sowing and reaping. Indeed should we be grateful that "crops never fail in Oregon."

Hon. W. T. Newby and Councilman Wallace are negotiating for the erection of a two-story brick building at the corner of C and Third streets, to cost $6000.

Many old pioneers are getting ready to visit the land of their fathers. Some of them were children when they left them, and are nearly children again with age—morning, noon and evening in the wilderness! Commend them to the tender hospitality of the friends in the east, not as wandering adventurers, but as good a class of people as ever the sun shone on—the improved and refined fruit and seed of the Mayflower that turned its face always toward the setting sun.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Washington Territory.

The O. R. & N. Co. will furnish a new set of wheels for Walla Walla's fire engine, and will place it in perfect order.

The man who was shot in the saloon fight back of Port Blakeley, is said to be improving. The man who did the shooting and had his own rib and other bones broken in the fight, has departed, the sheriff failing to overtake or arrest him.

Seattle Post-Intelligencer: "The first piano" in Washington territory is now disturbing the press. The Tacoma Ledger asserted that the first piano was in that town, an importation of 1855, and the property of Rev. J. F. DeVore. THE OREGONIAN says that Col. M. T. Simmons imported a piano in 1854. The Transcript asserts that Geo. A. Barnes brought one to Olympia in 1851, and still owns it, while the Vancouver Independent says there is a piano, or a part of a piano, in that town, brought there by the Hudson Bay company in 1849. The Independent is ahead so far.

Idaho.

Printers are wanted in Boise City.

The Bellevue public school opened Monday.

Horse thieves are numerous in the Wood river country.

New flour is selling in Boise at from $3 75 to $4 per hundred.

Ice is selling in Boise City at two cents per pound. The supply is limited.

The Oregon Short Line is within fifteen miles of Boise City, having crossed the Owyhee road last Saturday.

The Silver Star and Salamander mines, on Little Smoky, have been sold to a Philadelphia company for $50,000.

Idaho Statesman: Long trains of emigrant wagons pass down the valley every day. They come mostly from Kansas and Arkansas, and are settling in the Payette and Weiser countries.

A New York company is developing the Banner mine, in Boise county, to its fullest extent, and have recently had assays made from all the workings, the lowest of which was $500 and the highest $800 per ton in silver. So abundant is the silver in the ore that it shows in the form of wire in almost every piece of ore taken up.

The Short Line company are erecting machine shops at Shoshone, having refused all offers for their erection by outside contractors. TRADE AND OUTLOOK.

Stocks continue their rattling [illegible] at a time when Portland is [illegible] toward a celebration of the [illegible] through rail communication. [illegible] Wall street is the cause of it is [illegible] is unquestionably making desp[illegible] a hold on Oregon railways. Th[illegible] big deals will be seen this mor[illegible] [illegible] ster, Aug. 14. [illegible] award pace, and [illegible] ribing liberally [illegible] that gives us the little man of [illegible] doubted, and he [illegible] efforts to secure [illegible] is not yet, and Freights quiet but firm, and San Francisco show more firmness. The George [illegible] comes returns to New York in Sutton & Co.'s line. She came out in Van Vleck's. Next week berth [illegible] be taken. Koshland Bros. will ship a round lot [illegible] valley wool, but salmon will come into the larger part of cargo.

Yesterday we took occasion to [illegible] that the present rise abroad was not a healthy one. To-day we were shown a cablegram received yesterday that reports the weather "changeable," and says: "Weather fine; upward tendency checked." We are led to believe, from diligent observation, that the market abroad has been stimulated by bad weather in England. The advance has been about $2 per ton over prices ruling a month ago. As is well known the weather is an uncertain influence to depend upon, and whether or not operators will take the chances of bidding up on the strength of unfavorable weather remains to be seen; but from our experiences we do not think they will. This sudden rise abroad has caused ship owners to stiffen their notions that were being shaken. Certainly three or four weeks must roll by before markets abroad will resolve themselves into proper shape for export business, by which time the European harvest will be over and results made definite. Until then no safe figures can be made on transactions in this market. On present English quotations we quote Walla Walla wheat nominal value, f. o. b., up at $1 45, and valley at $1 55. This disparity between Walla Walla and valley may be wider than later developments will warrant, but to-day it is as nearly correct as can be given.

The Victoria and Oregon brought a large quantity of feed which comes to an open market. Oats are in fair receipt with prices irregular.

Eggs in large stock, but receipts were small yesterday. We quote 25 cents.

Other products show no change.

Receipts for the past twenty-four hours have been 300 bbls flour, 446 ctls oats, 26 ctls millstuff, 6941 lbs wool, 547 lbs hides, 20 bxs eggs, 4 bxs fruit, 10 bxs butter. Also 3790 ctls wheat, [illegible] lbs wool, 2065 lbs hides from the eastern section.

Shipments of salmon per Oregon were as follows: Point Adams 925, Hapgood 200, Cook 600, Pacific Union 10, Fishermen's 600, Badollet 1000, Seaside 10, I X L 1300, White Star 975, Booth 1000, F. M. Warren 1000. Total 7552 cases.

The S. F. Commercial News of the 10th inst. says: The steamer Bonita, which arrived Wednesday from Nanaimo, B. C., is in trouble with the custom house authorities. On the 24th of July she sailed from this port for Astoria with a cargo of general merchandise, and thence to Nanaimo, B. C., without clearing the custom house at Astoria, and without having her papers changed from enrollment to register. From Nanaimo she came to this port with coal. As vessels under enrollment are not permitted to go into the foreign trade, the cargo and vessel are subject to forfeiture under the law. The vessel is owned by Goodall, Perkins & Co., the cargo, 482 tons of coal, is consigned to John Rosenfeld and the master's name is H. D. Leland.

The Pacific coast bids fair soon to outrival their Atlantic cousins in tonnage of iron steam vessels under the American flag. The increase has been very rapid indeed, and the prospects are that it will continue steadily for some time to come. The commercial eye is looking to the westward and southward on the Pacific, and we can see a very bright future for our commercial navy in those waters, and at no remote period. Intelligent, ambitious and clear-headed men have not been idle in measuring the opportunities to introduce steam on the Pacific coast to larger extent than seemed probable a few years ago.—Nautical Gazette.

Twenty-one British and foreign actual shipwrecks were reported during the week ending June 4, making the total for the present year 915, the increase on the total compared with 1882 being 2.5. Five were steamers, with an aggregate tonnage of 3151 tons, three being British owned, with a tonnage of 1926. Total tonnage lost for the week, 10,599 tons. Total number of lives lost and missing, 80. One British and one American were lost off the United Kingdom, against four in the corresponding week of last year.

WASHINGTON COUNTY NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

FOREST GROVE, Aug. 14.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Watt and their daughter, Laura, returned home yesterday, after an absence of two months. Mrs. Watt has been spending the summer in a very pleasant way visiting friends at Seattle, Walla Walla, Astoria and other points. About September 1st the family will make their home in Portland.

The burning of the warehouse Saturday evening caused the most [illegible] here to turn out, [illegible] though the fire was half a mile from town. The fences on either side of the street leading to the depot were loaded with men, women and children viewing the burning building. [illegible] on the Shipley farm, assisted by the citizens here, fought the fire manfully, as it had caught in the stubble and was in danger of burning the [illegible] grain.

LECTURE BY DR. WATTS.

By special request, Dr. J. W. Watts, president of the State Temperance Alliance, lectured on Sunday night in the congregational church. His subject was "Life, Liberty and Happiness." His argument was strong, clear and conclusive that the liquor traffic is destructive of all these, [illegible] gives liberty to none, but brings all its subjects into [illegible] bound down by passion [illegible]. He clearly demonstrated that the drink system is a menace to our form of government and the [illegible] of its ends and aims. The Dr.'s resolution [illegible] by the legislature of 1884 praying them for [illegible] amendment to the voters. All present signed it and the house was full. By a unanimous vote the Dr. was invited to lecture again to-night, which he accepted.

RAILROAD EMPLOYES.

The leading business men of Providence, R. I., compose the Hunt's Remedy Co., and they guarantee all testimonials published by them to be genuine. The following, dated May 4, 1883, from Mr. W. H. Blanchard, Lowell, Mass., is but one of the thousand remarkable cures that are being made by this wonderful medicine. Mr. Blanchard says: "I have been greatly troubled for over six years with acute kidney disease, with severe pain in my back and sides. I was formerly employed on the Boston and Lowell Railroad, but was obliged, owing to the constant jar, to give up the railroad business, as many others have been obliged to do on account of kidney diseases. I have tried many medicines, but received no permanent relief. A friend recommended me to take Hunt's Remedy. I purchased a bottle of one of our druggists in Lowell, and commenced to improve at once, and after using two bottles I was entirely free from all pain, and consider myself cured, and I cheerfully recommend this wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy, to all the sufferers from kidney and liver disease."

AT LIBERTY.

For a number of years I was [illegible] with kidney and gravel disease, and suffered with pains in my limbs and back so severely that [illegible] I could not [illegible]. I used several so-called cures recommended for these [illegible], but they did me no good. A friend of mine [illegible] had used Hunt's Remedy and pronounced it the best he ever used, urged me to try it and I purchased a bottle at George E. Hall's drug store in Manchester, and before I had used one bottle I began to feel much better, the pain in the bladder and kidneys were reduced a good deal, and after using [illegible] I found that Hunt's Remedy had done what it was recommended to do. It had relieved all the pains, my appetite improved, and I gained steadily in strength. In a few weeks I have renewed strength and vigor for [illegible] of years [illegible] thank the proprietors of Hunt's Remedy for [illegible] good health to-day; and you are at liberty to publish this that it may be the means of [illegible] being cured by the use of your truly wonderful remedy.
